Monks, quorum insolentia Regibus saepe molesta (est oppositum themselves against their Kings and lawfull Princes recommendations of an Archbishop to them.) jam tandem ab ipso Papa, quem contra Reges implorare consueverunt, fracta est, so as they durst not oppose this intruder of the Popes sending by way of Provision. But yet to preserve their right of Election in some measure, they were content forsooth, to chuse him whom the Pope had before designed, without and against their wills; then sent their subprior (who had formerly renounced his Election at Rome before the Pope) together with the Prior of Dover, and Official of Canterbury to him to London, qui cum Conventus nomine Electum salutarent. Ac Robertus; etsi Archiepiscopatum hunc Papæ acceptum tulit, ut Monachorum gratiam & benevolentiam colligeret, perhumaniter eos accepit & petrauit; secumque de Ecclesiæ (Cantuariensis) negotiis consilium daturus, octo diebus retinuit. Concessit autem ei Dominus Papa, ut munus consecrationis eligere possit à quocunque Episcopo Catholico quem ad hoc duxerit eligendum, Elegit autem Willielmum Batboniensem, quem fama sanctitatis inter ceteros multum efferebat. On the day of his consecration March 4. 1272. the Prior of Canterbury demanded of him the sum of 3000. Marks which the Covent had spent in the Election of their subprior Chilindon, which the Pope had promised him upon his renunciation, the next Archbishop should satisfie: but he loth to disburse this money, began to pick holes in the Priors coat, threatening to deprive him for his misdemeanors, whereupon the Prior perswaded this Covent to abate 1300. pounds of the 3000 Marks. The King was so much engaged to the Pope for supporting him against his Barons, and granting him three years Dismes and Croyfades towards the holy Warre, which Kilwarby and his Freers promoted, that he made no opposition against this promotion by the Pope. Soon after his consecration, * Richard More, Doctor of Divinity being elected Bishop of Winchester, he made exceptions against and refused to confirme him, for holding many benefices, according to the * Constitution of the Council of London under Othobon, And said, that a man of such conscience as was fit for that place, would rather content himself with lesse living, then load himself with the care of so many soules.

Yet notwithstanding though Pluralities were thus condemned by this Archbishop, the Council of London, and several Councils decrees before that, as very mischievous and scandalous to the Church, contrary to the Apostles Doctrin and practice, (* who ordeined many Bishops and Presbyters in every Church, not one over many; ) Popes had no conscience of at all to observe these Canons, but made great advantage of them, by granting dispensations to all (who had money enough to purchase & thereby to merit them) to hold as many benefices with cure as they would, witnesse this exemplification of Pope *Innocent*s dispensation granted to Theodore de Camel, to enable him to hold and purchase Pluralities with cure, notwithstanding any Canons to the contrary.

REX Omnibus, &c. salutem. Inspecimus dispensationem dilecti & familiaris Clerici nostri Theodori de Camel, sibi super pluralitate beneficiorum a sede Apostolica concessam, integram non cancellatam, non abolitam, nec in aliqua sua parte viciatam aut corruptam, in hæc verba.

*Mr. John *Fox* Relates, that this controversy between the Monks and Citizens of Norwich, fell out about certain Tallages and Liberties, that after much altercation and wrangling words, the furious rage of the Citizens so much increased and prevailed, that so little was the fear of God before their eyes, that altogether they set upon the Abbey and Priory, and burned both the Church and Bishops palace. When this thing was heard abroad, the people were very sorry to hear of so bold and naughty an enterprise, and much discommended the same. At the last King Henry calling for certain of his Lords and Barons, sent them to the City of Norwich, that they might punish and see Execution done on the chiefest malefactors, inasmuch as some of them were condemned and burnt, and some were drawn by the heels with horses through the Streets of the City, and after in much misery ended their wretched lives.

*Acts and Monuments, vol. 1. p. 441.

The *Continuer of Matthew Paris, and John Speed inform us, that King Henry as soon as he could, having in his Company the Bishop of Rochester, and the Earle of Gloucester, followed his Justice Thomas Trivet to Norwich, where beholding the deformed ruines of the burned Church totally consumed, he could hardly refrain from tears. The Bishop having therefore excommunicated all who consented to this wickedness, and the Judge executed the nocent, Next the King condemned the Town in three thousand Marks of silver, to be paid by a day, towards the reparation of the Church so burnt, and also to pay one hundred pound in silver towards the repair of a Cup arising to twenty pounds in Gold. Cum Rex Henricus condignam ultionem Norwicensibus dedisset sacrilegis, (this publick Act of Zeal to Religion and Justice being the last act which he did as a King,) he returning thence towards London, fell grievously sick at the Abbey of St. Edmunds in Suffolke, where after he had in a religious manner prepared his soul, by acknowledging his sins, he rendred up the same to his Redeemer, when he had reigned almost an old mans age, and more years then ever any King of England reigned either before or since, to wit fifty six years and twenty dayes. A Prince (writes Speed) whose devotion was greater then his discretion, as we see in permitting the depredation of himself and his whole Kingdome by Papal overbearings, the error of whose Government concurring with the tumultuous Treasons of his Nobles, did precipitate him into many mischiefs, out of which God Almighty did strangely deliver him; for if he had not been divinely protected, there is no cause for a reasonable man to doubt, but that his end had proved as headlong, as some of his own and his Barons actions seemed to threaten.

I must acknowledge, that this King Henry in the beginning and latter end of his reign, not out of any devotion to the Pope, but meer Policy and pure necessity, did more comply with and connive at the incroaching innovations, Usurpations, exactions of the Popes and Court of Rome, then all his progenitors or successors, upon these several accounts, 1. By reason of the deplorable and almost desperate condition wherein his Father King John, left him and the whole Realm at the time of his death, for the Roman Pontiffs having but 3 years before by Menaces, Wars, Censures, interdicts, rebellions of his Prelates and Nobles, enforced him to enthrall himself and his Realms to their vassallage, * left him an infant but nine years of age under the general disgust, hatred, disaffection of most of the English Nobles and Clergy, the hostile Power of the French intruder Lewis, before called in with a potent Army, Crowned King of England by the Barons, John being but * Regis Imago, as his Epitaph stiled him, & Papa Vassallus, for that little part of the Realm he had possession of, having no Treasure at all and scarce any revenue to support himself, to raise forces, or remunerate such persons as should engage their lives & fortunes in his quarrell. In respect of all which concurrent difficulties, he had no other probable meanes left to expell the French, reduce the revolted Bishops, Nobles to obedience, and recover the actuall possession of the City of London, or other Garisons of his Kingdome, but by the Popes assistance, which he and his Legats readily afforded him, for preservation of his own usurped interest therein wrested from his Father by force, fraud, treachery, rather then out of any affection to this young King. 2. The frequent conspiracies, rebellions of his Bishops, Barons against him, & their obstinate refusals to grant him ayds or subsidies in Parliaments in a legal way, when his and the Kingdoms necessities required them, or upon dishonorable termes, which severall times enforced him, not only to overstrain his regal Perogative, but likewise to make use of the Popes Usurped Authority, Legates, Agents, to excommunicate the Barons and other opposers, reduce the Prelates and Clergy (his grand Antagonists) to obedience, and supply his necessities by Croysadoes, Dismes, and other extravagant meanes, whereof the Pope and his Agents usually got the greatest share, who made use of his regal, as he did of their Papal power, to fleece and poll the Clergy, by sundry impositions and rapines. 3. The frequent use he had of the Popes favor, mediation, power, Legates, to maintain his interest in France, to make Leagues, Truces with the French King, and other foreign Princes, States; to obtain the Kingdom of Sicily and Apulia for his youngest Son, (wherein he was grossly cheated by the Pope,) to gain the German Empire for his Brother Richard, and Bishopricks or other Ecclesiastical preferments for his Queens forreigne kindred, who were no waies qualified for them; else when he was free from such necessities and entanglements, he alwaies joyned with much gallantry and resolution with his Nobles and People in opposing all the Popes Usurpations, encroachments, innovations, exactions, and his own Prelates invasions of his and his Subjects Prerogatives and rights, as much as any of his Predecessors, as his premised Letters, prohibitions, proceedings against them from time to time demonstrate, especially his embassy, and Letters to the Pope at the Council of Lyons, and banishing * Martin the Popes oppressing Nuncio out of the Kingdom, thus briefly related by Walsingham (a) Anno 1245. Innocentius Papa celebravit Concilium apud Lugdunum. Ad quod missi sunt per Regem Angliæ de consilio Prælatorum, Comitum & Baronum viri Nobiles. 4. dato eis advocato Magistro Gulielmo de Powike, ut concessionem Regis Johannis de Censu annuo pro Anglia & Hybernia contradicerent, eo quod de Regni assensu non processerat, sed & per Cantuariensem Archiepiscopum fuerat reclamatum vice totius Regni: sed Papa hoc indigere morosa deliberatione respondens, negotium posuit in suspenso. Prælati Angliæ hoc anno conquesti sunt Regi de oppressione Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ, cujus proventus omnes & redditus Italici occupabant, propter quod Magistro Martino Domini Papa consanguineo, qui Major inter ceteros, aliorumque tutor in hujusmodi negotiis videbatur & defensor, ut evacuet regnum indilate regio mandatur edito. Yea had not the Bishops then most unworthily betrayed both the Kings & Emperors Rights, Crowns, in subscribing the *Popes new draught of King Johns surrender of his Crown, when the old was burnt, and publishing his excommunication and deprivation of the Emperor, and yielded up their own Rights by their inexcusable cowardise, the Pope, had then lost all his former usurped interest and authority within our Realms. But what any Popes unjustly justly gained, extorted by these necessities, fears, weaknesses, excommunications, interdicts or intestine wars, either from this King Henry, or his Father King John, they soon after gradually lost by the courage, wisdom, resolution, vigilance of his Son, Grandson, and great Grandson King Edward the 1. 2. & 3d. as I shall (God assisting me) undeniably evidence by irrefragable, yet unpublished Records during their successive Reigns, in my next ensuing volume: In the meantime I shall close up his life with (b) Walingham, and (c) Rishangers Character of him (which will please our Pontificians) Iste Rex, quantum in actibus sæculi videbatur minus prudens, tanto apud Dominum majori devotione pollebat; singulis namque diebus tres missas, cum nota solebat audire, et privatim plures audire cupiens, assidue assidebat celebrantibus. Es cum sacerdos corpus Dominicum elevaret, manum sacerdotis tenere, & illam osculari solebat. Contigit autem aliquando S. Lodowicum, Francorum Regem, cum eo super hoc conferente, dicere, quod non semper missis, sed frequentius sermonibus audientis esset vacandum. Cui faceta urbanitate respondens, ait: Se malle amicum suum sapius videre, quam de eo loquentem, licet bona dicentem, audire. Now to recreate my tyred Readers, of this Voluminous Tome, I shall conclude it with this lively Poeticall Description of the Citie, Popes, and Court of Rome, written by * Gualther Mapes Archdeacon of Oxford, flourishing under King Henry the Second, Richard the First, and King John, an eye witness of them whiles he was in Rome, Anno Dom. 1201.

ROMA Mundi caput est, sed nil capit mundum:
Quod pendet a capite, totum est immundum.
Trahit enim vitium primum et secundum;
Et de fundo redolet, quod est juxta fundum.

Roma capit singulos, et res singulorum,
Romanorum Curia non est nisi forum:
Ibi sunt venalia jura Senatorum,
Et solvit contraria, copia nummorum.

In hoc Consistorio si quis causam regat,
Quam vel alterius, hic in primis Legat:
Nisi det pecuniam, Roma totum negat;
Qui plus dat Pecuniæ, melius allegat.

Romani capitulum habent in Decretis,
Ut potentes audiant manibus repletis.
Dabis aut non dabitur, petant quando petis,
Qua mensura seminas, eadem tu metis.

Munus et petitio currunt passu pari,
Opereris munere, si vis operari.
Cullum nec timeas, si velit causari,
Munus Eloquentia gaudet singulari.

Nummis in hac Curia non est qui non vatet:
Crux placet, rotunditas placet, totum placet,
Et cum ita placeat, et Romani placet,
Tibi munus loquitur, et lex omnis tacet.

Cum ad Papam veneris, habe pro constanti:
Non est bonus pauperi, soli habet tanti.
Et si munus præstitum non sit aliquanti,
Respondet hic tibi sic, non est mihi tanti.

Papa querit, Chartula querit, bulla querit,
Porta querit, Cardinal querit, Curio querit,
Sed si dares omnibus, at uni deerit;
Totum mare salsum est, tota causa perit.

Additional Appendix.

Some Passages pertinent to my Chronologicall History, being casually omitted in their due series of time, I thought meet to supply by this Appendix, then to insert them out of their proper places.

Book 2. Chap. 7. p. 248. l. 5. This should have been inserted; Anno 908.

King Edward the elder Anno 908. After this division of the Bishoprick of Winchester into two Bishopricks and Diocesse, ratified all Monasticon Anglicanum vol. 1. p. 36. 37.

Lands and liberties granted them by his progenitors, and limited the bounds of the Bishops Lands, by his Charter wherein he recites. *Ego Eadueardus, divina largiente clementia Angul-Saxonum Rex, tempore quo Diocasm Wentanæ Ecclesia in duas disti Parochias, obnixè rogatus fui à Hithelstano Episcopo, quem tunc Ecclesia prædicta Episcopum statuerunt, ut novarum astipulatione literarum, S. By this recital, the truth whereof they all attest, it clearly appears, that this King by his Regal authority (not the Pope or any other) did originally, authoritatively divide, constitute this Bishoprick, new Diocesse, Bishop, as King * Ethelred divided his Kingdom into severall Bishopricks and Diocesses before him, and placed Bishops in them, endowing them both with Lands and goods

Book 3. Chap. 1. p. 254. l. 9. These memorable Legal proceedings in the third year of King John Reign, should have been inserted, vindicating his Ecclesiastical Sovereignty, and strenuous opposition against the Popes Bulls and Delegates, which William Thorne in his Chronicle hath thus recorded to posterity.

Anno Domini 1201. Rex Johannes quorundam æmulorum istius Monasterii consiliis stimulatus, cepit graviter istud monasterium persequi, ratione Ecclesiæ Parochialis de Feverham, cujus patronatum simul & donationem sibi vendicabat, licet minus justè: sicut enim Rogerus iste Abbas tempore quo Electus fuerat, ob ejus benedictionem promerendam multas angustias sustinuit, ab Archiepiscopo Richardo, & Capitulo Christi Cant. ejus benedictionem impredientibus, ut igitur sibi amicos, & precipuz in Curia Regis perquireret, ad preces Regis Henrici, Patris Regis Johannis, prædictus Rogerus tunc Electus, suo Conventu inconsulto ac reclamante, dedit Ecclesiam de Feverham, cuidem Clerico de Camera Regis privato, nomine Osborno de Camera, sub pensione sex Marcarum annuatim reddendarum Monachis Sancti Augustini tanquam rectoribus Ecclesiæ antedictæ. Hac igitur causa & ratione Rex Johannes jus sibi præsentandi in eadem Ecclesia vendicabat. Mortuo igitur Osborno qui se pro rectore Ecclesiæ parochialis de Feverham gerebat, sub die Ascensionis Dominicæ anno supradicto, missus est Brandanus Monachus & quidam Magister Stephanus ex parte Abbatis & Conventus Sancti Augustini, ut corporalem acciperent de Ecclesia prædicta de Faversham possessionem. Qui venientes apud Faversham die sabbati proximo sequente post mortem Osburni prædicti, invenerunt Magistrum Everardum tunc Officialem Archidiaconi Cantuariensis in porticu ipsius Ecclesie. Prætestati igitur prædictus Brandannus Monachus & Magister Stephanus coram Officiali antedicto, jus Abbatis & Monachorum Sancti Augustini Cant. quod se in Ecclesia de Faversham habere dicebant, exhibuerunt instrumenta autentica tam Regum Willielmi, Henrici secundi, & Richardi, confirmationem quoque Cælestini Papæ inhibentem expressè Abbati & Conventui S. Augustini Cantuariæ, ne Ecclesias de Faversham, & de Middleton alienent ab usu proprio, aut aliquo alienationis titulo prædictas Ecclesias personæ conferant seculari. Quorum autoritate instrumentorum prædicti Brandannus & Stephanus statim ingressi sunt possessionem ipsius Ecclesie de Faversham nomine Abbatis & Conventus, & coram Parochianis pro se & pro suo Monasterio & Ecclesiis suis, & maxime pro Ecclesia de Faversham, ad dominum Papam solemniter appellaverunt. In eodem etiam porticu prædictus Brandannus Monachus presentavit Officiali antedicto quendam Capellanum Herbertum nomine, ex parte Abbatis & Conventus ministraturum in ipsa Ecclesia, quia Archiepiscopus tunc agebat in remotis. Quem Capellanum cum Officialis non admisisset, iterum eodem die in Capitulo Hosprenges præsentante eodem Officiali ipsum Capellanum præsentavit, & prædicta instrumenta in audientia totius Capituli fecit recitari, & appellationes, ut supra, solempniter innovavit. Abbas vero ex quibusdam verisimilibus & probabilibus conjecturis, quantum ad jus & proprietatem Ecclesie sue antedictæ de Faversham periculum sibi & Monasterio suo imminere perpends, die Jovis proximo ante festum Pentecostes ad Ecclesiam suam prædictam cum majoribus de suo consilio personarum accessit, et primo in domibus personatus Ecclesie supradictæ, pro se et suo Monasterio ad Dominum Papam solempniter appellavit, ac etiam pro statu Clericorum Ecclesiarum et Parochianorum omnium ad Monasterium Sancti Augustini pertinentium, et maxime pro Ecclesia sua de Faversham, et pro Monachis suis in ipsa Ecclesia nomine ipsius et Monasterii Sancti Augustini tunc existentibus. Indeque profectus ad ipsam Ecclesiam, convocatis parochianis in præsentia Decani loci & aliorum quamplurimorum, eandem appellationem innovavit: Duplex enim imminerebat consilium, et duplex periculum, Rex advocacionem Ecclesie prædictæ vendicabat, Archidiaconus custodiam ipsius Ecclesie prædictæ, tanquam vacantis, et fructus medii temporis, ac etiam cæterarum Ecclesiarum nostri patronatus quesivit.

Set de altercatione cum Domino Rege me expediam, ad Archidiaconum postea rediturus. Defuncto igitur Osburno de Camera qui Ecclesiam de Faversham ut supradictum est tenuerat, Rex Johannes ipsam Ecclesiam contulit cuidam Simoni Archidiacono Wellensi & Archiepiscopi Vicecancellario, & ipsum Simonem ad eandem Ecclesiam Archiepiscopo præsentavit, sed Monachis nostris per appellationes & alia juris remedia se opponentibus, & tam in Ecclesia quam in domibus personatus prædicto Simoni & ejus institutioni viriliter resistentibus, institui nullatenus potuit. Quibus auditis, Rex scripsit Abbati & Conventui Sancti Augustini in hæc verba.

Johannes Dei gratia Rex Anglia, &c. Dilectis Abbati & Conventui Sancti Augustini Cant. salutem. Concessimus ut nostis, dilecto & fideli nostro Simoni Archidiacono Wellensi Ecclesiam de Faversham, quæ est de donatione nostra, & eum Domino Cantuariensi Archiepiscopo ad eam præsentavimus. Verum quia sicut accepimus, vos jus vobis in ea vendicantes, jus nostrum & præsentationem nostram & ipsius Clerici nostri institutionem hætenus impedistis, unde miramur non modicum & movemur, mandamus vobis rogantes quatenus occasione & dilatione remotis, ipsum in hac parte de cætero non inpedatis, sed permittatis quod ipse in ea instituat, sive ad nos pertineant donatio, sive non, sicut vultis ad nos in negotiis vestris recursum habere & a nobis exaudiri. Teste meipso, &c.

Hiis itaque gestis, habita deliberatione quid consultius foret, missi duo Monachi nostri ex parte Abbatis & Conventus ad Regem, tunc in partibus Normannia agentem, qui ingressi ad Regem, exhibuerunt ei Cartam Willielmi Conquestoris super donatione Ecclesiarum de Middleton & Faversham, ac etiam Cartas Henrici primi, Stephani, Henrici

Henrici secundi, & Richardi Regum Angliae, super confirmatione prædictarum Ecclesiarum; confirmationem quoque Theobaldi & Huberti Archiepiscoporum, ac etiam confirmationem Celestini Papæ simul & inhibitionem, ne Abbas vel Conventus prædictas Ecclesias de Middleton & de Faversham alienent ab usu proprio, aut aliquo alienationis titulo personæ conferant seculari; Petierunt insuper Monachi nostri & obnixius precabuntur, ut prædictas Ecclesias Dominus Rex sicut & progenitores sui fecerant, ipse etiam confirmaret. Et ut petita facilius impetrarent, magnam pecuniæ summam pro hujus confirmatione se daturos Regi spondebant. Sed Rex nec prece nec pretio inclinatus, petitis nullatenus acquiebit; unde & sub hac forma non multum post rescripsit.

Johannes Dei gratia Rex Anglia, &c. Abbati & Monachis Sancti Augustini Cant. salutem. Volumus vos scire, quod nos jam dedimus dilecto & fidei nostro Simoni Archidiacono Wellensi Ecclesiam de Faversham, quæ vacat & est de donatione nostra, & ipsum Domino Cantuariensi præsentavimus, & quoniam, sicut nobis & Consilio nostro videtur, ratione Cartarum quas nobis ostendistis nullum jus vobis competit, eam conferendi vel in proprios usus retinendi; Prohibemus vobis, ne vos aliquatenus apponatis quo minus donatio nostra rata consistat, moleste enim feremus siquid feceritis in hac parte contra jus nostrum et libertatem, nec illud fieri sustinebimus. Unde vobis consulimus, quod ita vos contra nos & eundem Simonem in hoc negotio habeatis, sicut vultis quod nos habeamus nos erga vos in negotiis vestris & domus vestræ. Teste meipso, &c. Sed & ipse Archiepiscopus pro eodem Simone, scripsit sub hac forma, Hubertus Dei gratia Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus, totius Angliae primas, dilectis in Christo Abbati & Conventui Sancti Augustini Cant. salutem, gratiam & benedictionem. Audivimus Dominum Regem vobis scripsisse pro dilecto filio nostro Simone Archidiacono Wellensi, super Ecclesiam de Faversham, & quoniam scimus certissime Dominum Regem ipsius Simonis in hac parte velle promotionem, quem & nos similiter multum desideramus, dilectioni vestræ diligenter duximus scribendum, moventes, consulentes & affectuose supplicantes, quatenus intuitu Dei & petitioni, Domini Regis, & nostri, salvo jure vestro memoratum Simonem in Ecclesia illa promovere velitis, ipsam ei quantum in vobis est benignè, si placet, concedentes; si verò per vos in hac promotus fuerit, credimus & certi sumus, quod per eum poterunt facilius Cartæ vestræ tam de Ecclesia illa quàm de aliis à Domino Rege vobis confirmari, & alia negotia domus vestræ promoveri, ad quæ nos curam & sollicitudinem diligenter apponemus; scire autem volumus, quod non habemus aliquem tam carum vel tam specialem cujus promotionem magis desideramus quàm ipsius Simonis in hac parte, Valet.

Sed Monachi Augustinenses nec Archiepiscopi adulationibus flexi, nec Regis minis à proposito moti, licet multum consternati, se viriliter in ipsa Ecclesia de Faversham & in ipsis domibus personatus tenuerunt; & tam Regis ministris quàm Archiepiscopi officialibus ingressum undique constanter prohibuerunt. Quibus auditis, Rex quasi in furiam versus, iussit tam ipsi Ecclesiæ de Faversham quàm domibus personatus ejusdem ignem apponi, et tam Monachos quàm seculares qui in ipsis inventi essent, simul cum ipsis Domibus et Ecclesia conflagrari: sed nemine tam sævam jussionem adimplere volente, sed cunctis dissuadentibus Regi ne tam horridum facinus perpetraret; Rex tandem animi furorem temperans, licet non deponens, scripsit Viccomiti Kancia in hæc verba,

Johannes Dei gratia Rex Anglia &c. Viccomiti Kancia salutem; scias, quod dedimus dilecto nostro Simoni Archidiacono Wellensi Ecclesiam de Faversham, quæ vacat & est de nostra donatione: & quoniam sicut audivimus, Abbas & Monachi Sancti Augustini jus sibi in Ecclesia illa vendicantes, donationem nostram nituntur impedire, tibi mandamus & firmiter præcipimus, quod si fortè prædicti Monachi se in Ecclesiam illam intruserint, & se in eadem Ecclesia tenuerint, ipsos Monachos et fortiam eorum inde sine dilatione facias amoveri, et curam dilig-manum habens ad malum extentam, ad Ecclesiam de Faversham personaliter accessit, & inveniens ipsam intrinsecus munitam, non tam Monachis quam etiam secularibus

Monachisque Sancti Augustini ipsius Ecclesiæ de Faversham possessionem pacificè ingressis, Capellano per eosdem Monachos Officiali Archidiaconi præsentato, set non admissio, licet nulla causa reculationis tunc objecta, evolutis aliquantulis diebus post præsentationem & reculationem prædictas, Magister Edwardus Officialis Domini Archidiaconi ad Ecclesiam de Faversham accedens, Ecclesiam ipsam suspendit, Monachos in ea residentes, et omnes eis communicantes de facto excommunicavit, cum de jure non posset, tam propter privilegia eorum, tam propter appellationes ab eisdem ad sedem Apostolicam interpo-sitas, sepulturam etiam mortuorum interdixit; unde multa defunctorum corpora extra Cimiterium ipsius Ecclesiæ tradita fuerunt sepulturæ, & purificationes etiam quarundam mulierum extra Parochiam fuerunt celebratæ, nam Parochianis de Faversham mandavit Archiepiscopus per Officialem suum, ut alias Ecclesias licenter & libere frequentarent, & in ipsis Ecclesiastica sacramenta perciperent, defuncto-rumque suorum corpora ad alia loca humanda prohibito deferrent: set ipsi Parochiani, nec per tribulationem, nec per angustiam à devotione quam erga matricem suam habebant Ecclesiam, velut fidelissimi filii, nullatenus potuerunt amoveri, set super hiis omnibus ad Papam unanimiter appellaverunt. Unde effuso aliquan-tuli temporis curriculo quosdam majores de Faversham qui Mona-chis Sancti Augustini communicaverant, fecit Archiepiscopus nomi-natim excommunicatos denunciari, et Justiciarius Domini Regis Literis suis mandavit, ut caperentur et in carcerem Regis puniendi detruderentur; set et ipsi timentes Archiepiscopi tyrannidem qui tunc custos erat Angliæ, ipso Rege in partibus Normannia agente, Ministrozum Regis manus qui ad eos capiendos mittebantur fugæ præsidio evaserunt. Ipse etiam Archiepiscopus cum per Willelmum de Faversham transitum faceret, occurrenti ei populo Willelmi et benedi-ctionem ejus petenti, dixit, se eos nec velle, nec debere benedicere eo quod habebat eos omnes excommunicatos. Super tribus et singulis injuriis multis appellationibus interpositis universi tamen Burgensium de Faversham Domino Papæ satis lachry-mosis Epistolis conquerebatur, in fine ejusdem Epistolæ sic conclu-dendo. Quod nisi divina miseratione et Romana pietas illis velle cele-

rius subvenire, et tam circa ipsos quam circa Monachos Angustianenses errata ultrice manu efficaciter studuerit corrigere, omnes populi quocunque sumus rerum gestarum se diffuderit, in errorem corruent irremediabilem, ut qui hucusque legem et prophetas ac Evangelium fuerint secuti, de cætero pro Poetarum figmentis omnia reputabunt: vilescetque Ecclesiastica Doctrina, et a reverentia Romane Ecclesiæ quæ apud Cantuarienses Archiepiscopum et Archidiaconum nulla est, (Note it) populus totaliter, nec immerito recedet. Set nunc ad Monachos obsessos in ipsa sæpedita Ecclesia revertamur.

Intante festo assumptionis beatæ Virginis Mariæ, Rogerus Abbas ut erat vir magnanimus, condolens Monachorum suorum & servorum afflictioni & angustia, quod acceperat per internuncios, quod nisi quantocius obsessis subveniret, ipsam Ecclesiam gratis desererent, ut qui jam quatuor diebus transactis nichil cibi aut potus habuissent, omnibus victualibus eorum consumptis, præter alia incommoda quæ sustinebant. Unde deliberato cum fratribus & aliis amicis consilio, in Crastino Assumptionis ad Ecclesiam de Faversham Abbas iter suum direxit, magna stipatus familia & manu valida; Cujus adventum præsentientes Ministri Regis, immò Sathanæ satellites, (O the modesty of these Monks thus to stile the Kings Officers!) qui ipsam Ecclesiam obsederant, fuga dilapsi sunt. Abbas vero ipsam Ecclesiam intrans, eam ferè per mensem pacificè tenuit, donec Vicomes Kancia per ministros suos & complices ipsum Abbatem de præfatæ Ecclesiæ possessione violenter eiecit; nam octavo Kal. Octobris, Ministri Vicecomitis Kancia cum quibusdam militibus, ac etiam populi multitudine non modica accesserunt in manu armata, quorum adventum Abbas Rogerus præsentiens, seipsum cum quinque Monachis & paucis quibusdam familiaribus in ipsa Ecclesia obsideratis, ut qualitercunque januis interclusis ad cautelam continuit, malens injuriam sustinere, quàm aliis inferre: Sed Sathanæ satellites nec honori Dei aut Ecclesiæ differentes, in ipsam Ecclesiam sicut Leones in prædam irruerunt, hostia cum Machinis oppositis effugerunt, Abbatem violenter ejecerunt, Monachos vero alios per machina, alios per pedes calcatis in terra capitibus extraxerunt, pavimento Ecclesiæ sanguine Monachorum undique rubricato. Abbas vero ejectus incontinenti ad audientiam summi Pontificis appellavit, ne Ecclesia illa reconciliaretur, nec divina in illa celebrarentur donec super hoc Dominus Papa consuleretur. Nihilominus tamen G. Decanus per laicam manum introductus est in ipsam Ecclesiam, quasi loco Archiepiscopi, & custodiam ipsius Ecclesiæ per aliquantum temporis habuit. Dum hæc itaque gererentur missi sunt ad Archiepiscopum ex parte Abbatis, Brandanus Monachus & Magister Stephanus Clericus. Qui invenientes eum apud Hffington juxta Stanford, exposuerunt ei qualiter Officialis Archidiaconi post appellationes Abbatis, tot & totiens interpositas non solum Monachos in Ecclesia de Faversham consistentes, set etiam omnes Rectores Ecclesiarum de Patronatu Sancti Augustini eorumque familiares & Parochianos omnes qui terras aliquas de Abbate tenuerunt, generaliter excommunicaverit, et per totam Diocesim excommunicatos denunciari mandavit; Ecclesias etiam ipsorum omnes suspendit, Sacramentalia in eis interdixit, præter baptismum parvulorum et penitentias morientium. Prædicti siquidem nuncii Abbatis rogaverunt Archiepiscopum, ut prædictas sententias tam erroneas per Officialem Archidiaconi latas, ipse revocaret. Quibus respondit Archiepiscopus, se ratum et gratum habere quicquid Officialis Archidiaconi fecerit, et se manum aggravare, nisi citius custodiam Ecclesiæ de Faversham gratis traderent, ignorans penitus adhuc de ejectione Abbatis. Et ecce ipsis adhuc loquentibus accesserunt duo Monachi Sancti Augustini eidem Archiepiscopo graviter conquirentes, quod Abbas Sancti Augustini & Monachi sui de Ecclesia de Faversham violenter per manum laicam fuissent ejecti, factum & injuriam ex ordine sibi exponentes. Quo audito, Archiepiscopus ultra quam credi potest animo consternatus, ti-mens quod factum ejus nomine fuisset, licet ipso ignorante, nec ratum habente, quoquomodo per lapsum temporis in caput suum redundaret, statim tulit sententiam excommunicationis in genere, in omnes illos qui dictam violentiam Abbati & Monachis intulerant, dicens quod tam horribile factum, aut tam enorme non fuit perpetratum in Anglia post interfectionem Sancti Thoma, Martyris. Quam sententiam excommunicationis tam in generali Synodo, quam alibi Archiepiscopus multotiens innovavit, & per totam suam Provinciam literis suis demandari præcepit. Sententiam etiam suspensionis & interdicti quam Officialis Archidiaconi in Ecclesias & Parochianos de Patronatu Sancti Augustini tulerat, ipse revocavit, quæ sententia per septem Ebdomodas duraverat. Acta fuerunt hæc die Veneris proximo post festum Sancti Michaelis anno supradicto.

Eodem anno in Craſtino Apostolorum Simonis & Jude H. Archidiaconus E. Officialis ejusdem, & G. Decanus, cum aliis quibusdam Capellanis vicinarum Ecclesiarum venerunt ad Ecclesiam de Faverſham, ut altaria in ipsa diruerent in detestationem & opprobrium Monachorum Sancti Augustini. Quod præſentens Prior S. Augustini eis occurrit, & innovans appellationem ab initio factam, requisivit qua autoritate & qua de causa hæc attemptarent? Cui E. Officialis pro Archidiacono respondit, quod per præceptum Archiepiscopi, eo quod Monachi excommunicati in ipsis celebraverant super quo prædictus Prior specialiter appellavit coram multitudine Parochianorum qui condolentes confluerant, Archidiaconus tamen sprete appellatione altaria diruit, Ecclesiam reconciliavit, ipsas etiam pallas altarium & corporalia fecit comburi, & calices conflagrari. Abbas igitur Rogerus & Conventus Sancti Augustini talibus & tantis undique impetiti injuriis, & vexati opprobriis, in sola Dei misericordia et Curie Romanæ subsidio spem ponentes, mittunt Priorem suum Rome ad Papam Innocentium 3. qui ei injurias & gravamina monasterio Sancti Augustini illata deberet exponere, & super tantis excessibus remedium in forma juris expetere. Quibus tam in privato quam in publico Consistorio expositis, Papa sic fertur respondisse. Nos qui providente Dei misericordia ad Universalis Ecclesiæ regimen sumus vocati Ecclesiæ beati Augustini, Romana Ecclesiæ propriæ et specialis præ cæteris filiæ, in iuribus suis et privilegiis nulla ratione poterimus, nec volumus deesse, sed eam, Domino jubante, contra potentes potenter defendemus quatenus ordo juris exposcit, et suadet ratio æquitatis. Unde scripsit quibusdam conjudicibus delegatoriis, in hæc verba.

Innocentius Episcopus servus servorum Dei, venerabili fratri Eliensi Episcopo, & dilectis filiis Abbati & Priori Sancti Edmundi, Norwycensis Diocesis salutem, & Apostolicam benedictionem. Significaverunt nobis dilecti filii Abbas & Conventus Sancti Augustini Cant. quod cum Ecclesia de Faverſham cujus fuerant possessionem adepti, ad se pertinere contenderent pleno jure, licet & Charissimus in Christo filius noster Johannes Rex Angliæ illustris & venerabilis frater noster Cant. Archiepiscopus, jus sibi in ea vellent vendicare, laici quidam propriis nominibus nobis designandi Cant. Diocesis, in Abbatem & Monachos infra ipsam Ecclesiam usque ad effusionem sanguinis manibus violentis injectis, ipsos de eadem Ecclesia per violentiam temere ejecerunt. Volentes igitur eisdem Abbati & Monachis paterna sollicitudine providere, discretionis vestræ per Apostolica scripta mandamus atque præcipimus, quatenus si res ita se habet, laicos ipsos & eorum complices tamdiu appellatione remota excommunicatos publice nunciatis, & mandetis ab omnibus acriter evitari, donec passis injuriam satisfaciant competenter, & cum vestrarum testimonio literarum nostro se conspectui repræsentent. Autoritate quoque nostra sub interminatione anathematis districtè prohibemus ne quis in Civitatibus, oppidis, villis aut aliis locis ad quæ ipsos contigerit devenire, ipsis præsentibus præter baptismum parvulorum & penitentias morientium * divina celebrare præsumat, aut cum eis sub specie cujuscunque contractus aliquid permutare. Volumus etiam & mandamus, ut amoto quolibet illicito detentore, non obstante cujuscunque præcepto, sublato appellationis obstaculo, in eum statum reductis & conservetis Abbatem & Monachos antedictos, in quo fuerant ante violentiam attemptatam. Testes autem qui nominati fuerint, &c. quod si non omnes, &c. tu frater Episcopo, &c.

Commisit etiam Dominus Papa eidem iudicibus causam spoliationis domorum personatus, et violentiæ factæ Osterto Monacho in ipsa spoliatione. Et quia istius Commissionis licet verba discrepent, vis tamen & effectus est idem cum priore, nisi quod in ista commissione nominantur Henricus Doget, & complices sui qui superius nominantur in ipsa ejectione ipsius Osterti, ideo causa brevitatis formam istius secundæ commissionis non scribo. Set istæ literæ Domini Papæ quæ sperabantur esse consolationis et auxilii, nisi Deus prosperisset, fuissent causa maioris afflictionis et periculi. Nam cum istæ literæ fuissent iudicibus oblatae, et ipsi in causa Monachorum secundum formam eis a Domino Papa traditam judicialiter incepissent procedere, milites et alii majores qui Abbatem de possessione ejecerant, ad Galfridum filium Petri Com. Essex. et tunc Capitalem Justiciarium Anglia confugerunt, consilium et auxilium ejus contra Abbatem Sancti Augustini postulantes. Qui Comes assumptis secum eorum majoribus, ad Regem tunc in Normannia existentem transfretabit, exponens Regi, quomodo Abbas Sancti Augustini literas Apostolicas impetrasset, ad Dominum Elyensem et socios super spoliatione ipsius Ecclesiæ de Faversham, et quomodo iudices in causa ipsa processerunt, Adjecit etiam prædictus Comes, quod nisi processus iste per iudicium citius revocetur, erit in confusionem omnium, qui in ejectione ipsius Abbatis fuerant, et etiam in * opprobrium Regiæ Dignitatis, cum hæc de mandato ejus processissent. Quo audito, Rex iracundia fremens, literas comminatorias simul et prohibitorias Abbati et Conventui dixerit, in hæc verba.

Nota.

Johannes Dei Gratia, &c. Abbati & Conventui Sancti Augustini Cant. salutem, quam meruerunt. Scimus vos non ignorare, qualiter decedente Rectore aliqujus Ecclesiæ, si de ea inter aliquos de præsentando oriatur contentio, ea secundum Regni nostri consuetudinem in manu Diocesani loci salvo debet consistere, quousque in Curia nostra discussum fuerit, ad quem ejusdem præsentatio debeat pertinere, & si qua partium in eam sese interim duxerit intrudere, ea manu Regia si opus fuerit amovere debet. Cum itaque decedente Rectore Ecclesiæ de Faversham innotuisset nobis, eam ratione ultimæ præsentationis, ad nos tanquam ad patronum pertinere, & nos ad eandem cuidam Clericorum nostrorum duximus conferre, vos autoritate propria, in nostri et juris nostri contemptum eam occupare, et contra nos et Regni nostri consuetudinem violenter detinere præsumpsistis, qua de causa vos ab ea de consilio magnatum et fidelium nostrorum secundum regni nostri consuetudinem fecimus amoveri. Nolentes in persona nostra prætermittere quod universis de jure et Regni nostri consuetudine tenemur inpendere. Veniente verò nuper in Normanniam dilecto & fideli nostro G. filio P. Com. Essexia, & Justic. nostro, tam per fidelem ejusdem quam aliorum qui cum eo venerant in sinuacione accepimus, quod vos qui fideles nostri esse deberetis, literas Apostolicas, quod sine admiratione, et mentis turbatione non dicimus, contra nos et coronæ regiæ dignitatem, quam in diebus nostris pro posse depprimere contenditis, ad dilectos dominum scilicet Elyensem et conjudices suos impetrare curastis, in quibus inter cætera continetur, quod laicos quosdam qui ex præcepto nostro vos dictam Ecclesiam contra nos et dignitatem nostram violenter detinentes, ab ea secundum Regni nostri consuetudinem amoverunt, et eorum complices, (quod nos tangere liquido perpendistis) excommunicatos ubique denunciarunt, reducentes vos ad statum et in eo conserbant quam antequam amoti essetis habuistis. Et quia in hujus impetratione contra nos et Coronam nostram (quod per Dei gratiam cum se locus optulerit nullatenus relinquimus inultum) manifeste venisse præsumpsis, nec credimus Dominum Papam si sibi de jure et indeterata Regni nostri consuetudine plenius innotuisset pro vobis scripsisse sub hac forma. Unde in fide quam nobis et Coronæ nostræ servare tenemini, mandamus atque præcipimus, quatinus ab hujusmodi prosecutione mandati Apostolici quod contra nos et Regni nostri consuetudinem fraudulenter et infideliter elicere procurastis, sicut ea quæ de nobis tenetis diligitis. Ita vos in hoc et in aliis exhibentes, ne indebitionis vestræ excessus majoris quam deceret sit occasio tumultus, et Regiæ indignationis severitatem ultraquam expediret in se mereatur provocare. Teste meipso apud Rothomagum 30. die Martii.

The King likewise issued this Writ of Inhibition to the Popes Judges Delegates. Scriptis etiam Rex Domino Eliensi & conjudicibus suis sub hac forma.

Judicibus per Regem.

Iohannis Dei gratiâ, Rex Angliæ, &c. Venerabili in Christo Patri, E. eadem Gratia Eliensi Episcopo, & dilectis sibi Abbati & Priori de Sancto Edmundo salutem. Inter ceteras Regni nostri consuetudines (as before) & infra, ubi enarrat de consuetudine quando est lis inter aliquos de advocacione alicujus Ecclesiæ, ut in Priori rescripto. Narrat etiam qualiter Monachos per manum Laicam fecerat amoveri, & post veniente nuper ad nos in Normanniam dilecto & fidei nostro G. filio Petri Com. Essexiæ, & Justiciario nostro, tam per ejusdem quam aliorum qui cum eo venerant fidelium nostrorum insinuationem accepimus, Monachos Sancti Augustini, quod sine admiratione non dicimus, literas Apostolicas vobis porrexisse, in quibus inter cetera continetur, quod laicos quosdam qui et præcepto nostro sub forma præparata Abbatem et Monachos, suos, qui Ecclesiam de Faversham contra nos et Regni consuetudinem violenter detinentes auctoritate nostra amoverant et eorum complices excommunicatos ubique denunciaretis, dictos Abbatem et Monachos ad eum statum reducentes et in eo conservantes, quo fuerunt antequam ab ipsa Ecclesia fuerant amoti. Et quia eos in hujusmodi impetratione contra nos et Coronæ nostræ dignitatem, (quod sub dissimulatione nullatenus poterimus præterire) manifestius constat venisse, nec credimus Dominum Papam si sibi de jure et veterata Regni nostri consuetudine plenius innotesceret discretioni vestræ scripsisse sub hac forma, vobis qui Regni et Coronæ nostræ jura et dignitates nobiscum manu tenere debetis et tueri, in fide qua nobis tenemini mandamus, quatenus in hujus mandati cognitione, sicuti ea quæ de nobis tenetis diligitis, desistatis omnino. Dat. Rothomagi 30. die Martii.

Taliter igitur inhibitionibus Regiis Monachi Sancti Augustini terrebantur, nec mirum, sed à proposito minime flectebantur. Confidentes enim de causæ justitiâ, apud Judices suos acriter instabant, ut ipsi in mandato Apostolico secundum formam eis traditam absque personarum acceptione procederent. Judices igitur non volentes nec valentes Monachis in sua deesse justitiâ, ne forte inobedientes Apostolicis arguerentur mandatis, literas excusatorias Domino Regi scripserunt sub hac forma.

Regem.

Domino suo dilectissimo Johanni Dei gratia illustri Regi Angliæ, &c. E. divina permissione Eliensis Ecclesiæ Minister humilis, & S. eadem gratia Abbas, & H. Prior Sancti Edmundi salutem, & debitum ac fidele obsequium. Literas Serenitatis vestræ nuper recepimus, quarum serie inter cetera continebatur, à temporibus antecessorum vestrorum hanc invaluisse consuetudinem in Regno vestro, ut si pendente lite de presentando ad Ecclesiam vacantem aliqui in eam sese intrudere presumperint, ipsi autoritate Regia debeant amoveri: super quo satis admirantes, cum hoc nec consuetudinis esse nec aliquando factum fuisse audierimus, hæc Regiæ mansuetudinis auribus suggesta sicut deberemus non possumus non dolere. Est autem moris in Regno vestro ut intrasi in Ecclesiis postquam solempniter ab Episcopo loci fuerint excommunicati & publice denunciati, si obstinati in contumacia exire noluerint, ad postulationem Episcopi loci, potestas secularis autoritate Ecclesiæ debeat excludere taliter resistentes. Adjectum est etiam in eisdem literis vestris, quod Abbatem & Monachos Sancti Augustini juxta præfatam consuetudinem de Ecclesia de Faversham, per Ballivos vestros feceritis amoveri. Quæ confessio sicut nobis visum est circumspectius et Regiæ honestati congruentius tacita fuisset, quam scripto vel verbo publicata, quia sicut dicitur non sine violenta manuum injectione et enormi factum illud perpetratum fuit. In fine vero literarum, in fide qua vobis tenemur districtius nobis inhibere curastis, ne eos qui prænominos Abbatem et Monachos de Ecclesia prædicta de Faversham per violentiam ejicere præsumperant, juxta tenorem mandati Apostolici (quod super hoc valide districtum accepimus) excommunicatos denunciaremus. Sane certissimum teneat dominatio vestra, nos prompta voluntate et firmo proposito jura et dignitates Regias paratos esse in omnibus conservare, et mandatis vestris tanquam Carissimi Domini obtemperare, * quatenus ordo noster et obedientia qua in omni plenitudine tenemur Domino Papæ permiserit; scitum est autem et vestra discretio non ignorat, * quod nulli quicquam debere possumus nisi salva obedientia qua Ecclesiæ Romane tenemur affecti. Et ideo non indignanter ferat Regia celsitudo, si in tam districto mandato ejus cui nullo jure resistere possumus, procedamus; præsertim cum illud sicut nobis visum est Regiæ dignitati non obviet, sed congruat honestati. Valete.

The Pope must be obeyed before the King.

Rex autem ut vidit, quod propter Inhibitiones suas nec Monachi a prosecutione sua causa, nec Judices prædicti delegati ab Apostolici mandati executione cessarent, æmulozum beati Augustini instigatione totus in furiam verius, manum suam extendens ad malum, iussit, omnes possessiones ipsius Abbatie quæ de ipso Rege tenentur in capite, confiscarentur. Ministri autem Regis quibus hoc opus demandatum fuerat, sicut Leones rugientes ut raperent, non solum possessiones temporales in manus Regis seiserunt, verum etiam omnia bona mobilia et immobilia tam in Ecclesiis quam extra, ubicunque essent inventa occuparunt, asportarunt et distraxerunt, et quod inauditum est, bona quorundam hominum confiscarunt, eo quod ipsi amici Sancti Augustini bona ipsius rapere noluerunt. Verè dolor iste Monachorum Sancti Augustini & angustia super omnem dolorem, & omne cor eorum mærens. Contigit autem ut in hac tempestate Dominus Johannes Legatus Scotia Presbyter Cardinalis tituli Sancti Stephani in monte Cælio, cum à legatione sua rediret per Cantuariam transitum faciens, ad Ecclesiam beati Augustini orandi gratia divertit, & inveniens totam Curiam Sancti Augustini Ministris Regis occupatam, super afflictione Monachorum condoluit. Convocansque Conventum consolabatur eos, exhortans et confortans, ne in tanta tribulatione deficerent, sed de Dei adiutorio propter suæ causæ iustitiam firmiter sperarent. Cui Conventus respondit, se post Dei misericordiam, de sola Domini Papæ paternitate, et Romana Curie protectione consolationem et remedium expectare.

Itis sic actis, prædictus Legatus ad tumbam Sancti Augustini, in honore ipsius Sancti Missam solempniter celebravit, tota Civitate in ipsa Missa turmatim concurrente. In qua Missa idem Legatus Ministros Regios qui ipsam Abbatiam sic occupaverant, * omni timore postposito, solempniter excommunicavit, et excommunicatos denunciavit. Interim scripsit idem Legatus pro Monachis S. Augustini Domino Papæ, exponens ei per ordinem angustiam, et Archiepisc. Cant. et Archid. sui cæterorumq; æmulozū callidam machinationem. Unde in fine Literarum suarum sic scriptum est, attendat itaque sancta paternitas vestra, quod nisi maturius, et plenius eidem Ecclesiæ provideritis, et tantæ in-pugnantium malignitati in manu potenti occurrere velitis, funditus evertetur, et jam ruit irrecoverabiliter. Si igitur hoc per manifestum defectum Romane Ecclesiæ in fundamento fidei et Religionis in Anglicana Ecclesiâ invaluerit, adnichilabitur auctoritas Apostolica, non solum in Anglicano Regno set quocumque hujusmodi pestifer sumus se diffuderit. Abbas igitur et Conventus tam de Consilio ipsius Legati quam aliozū amicorū, iterato mittunt Priorem suum ad Curiam Romanam cum literis prædicti Legati, satis querulosis gemitibus Domini Papæ implozantes auxilium, ut ipse suæ Capellæ et speciali filiz in tantis tribulationibus celerius succurrat, et ne irreversibiliter ruat, jamque ruenti manum suam extendat. Dominus verò Papa tam ex literis Legati quam ex relatione ipsius Prioris negotio plenius intellecto, Regis sævitiam cupiens delinire, literas deprecatorias pro Domino Sancti Augustini scripsit Regi in hæc verba.

Innocentius Episcopus, &c. Non decet Regiæ serenitatis benignitatem ad suggestionem cujusquam in læsionem alterius declinare, nec ob gratiam alicujus aliorum lædere rationem. Sane significarunt nobis dilecti filii Abbas & Conventus Sancti Augustini Cant. quod cum possessionem Ecclesiarum de Faversham, & de Middleton, quæ ipsis fuerant in usus proprios per sedem Apostolicam confirmata, fuissent ingressi, quidam qui eos indebito insequuntur, usque adeo benevolentiam Regiam commoverunt contra eos, ut bona eorū mandaret, et faceret confiscari. Cum igitur Regiam serenitatem non deceat non solum in Monachos et Clericos etiam seu quolibet regulares jurisdictionem indebitam exercere, cum servus Domino suo stet aut cadat, rogamus munificentiam tuam et exhortamur in Domino; quatenus ob reverentiam beati Augustini qui Monasterium suum sepulturæ Regum Angliæ dicitur deputasse, ablata eis restitui facias universa, nec impedias nec impediri permittas quominus suam justitiam prosequantur, Laicis etiam si quibus bona sua forsan ablata sunt & confiscata fuerint quia in Abbatem & Monachos manus noluerunt mittere violentas, restitui faciat Regia celsitudo.

Et ut prædictum mandatum Apostolicum meliorem sortiretur effectum, Dominus Papa scripsit, E. Elyensi & M. Wygornensi Episcopis & Abbati Sancti Edwardi, ut ipsi Regem adirent et efficaciter inducerent ad omnia et singula prout Dominus Papa ei scripserat exsequenda. Quod & ipsi tam literis suis quam vivæ vocis oraculo satis efficaciter expleverunt. Et quia suggestum fuerat Domino Papæ per Abbatem & Conventum, quod Dominus Rex ad instigationem, et per procurationem Domini Cantuariensis Archiepiscopi et Simonis Wellensis Archidiaconi, et prædicti Domini Cantuariensis Vicecancellarii præcipue hæc mala supradicta eis intulerat, Dominus Papa scripsit Dominis Elyensi et Wygornensi Episcopis supradictis, ut ipsi super hoc tam per testes idoneos quam per famam vicinæ diligentius inquirerent, sublato quolibet appellationis obstaculo, et quicquid invenirent Domino Papæ sub sigillis suis referrent. Quod Mandatum tam Archiepiscopum quam prædictum S. Vicecancellarium balde balde terruit, unde ab illo die a persecutione Monasterii Sancti Augustini maturius se temperaverunt, et pacem inter Regem et Monasterium prædictum prout poterant reformari procurarunt, sicque Regis furore aliquantulum delinco, Regii ministri qui ipsam Abbatiam Sancti Augustini occupaverunt per ipsum Regem amoventur; sed possessiones minime restituuntur; unde de consilio amicorum mittuntur duo Nuncii, scilicet Brandann Monachus et Gagister Gervasius Clericus ex parte Abbatis et Conventus ad Dominum Regem, ut si forte prece vel præcio possessiones Monasterii de manu Regis velut clavam de manu Herculis extorqueant. Accedunt igitur humiles ad indignantem, supplices ad furem, et sermonibus Rethoricis, prout ambo erant eloquentissimi, Regiam deprecantur Majestatem, suppliciter exposcunt misericordiam, ut ablata restituat, et more antecessorum suorum libertates et jura Ecclesiastica, et maxime Ecclesias de Faversham de sua gratia eis confirmare dignaretur. Et ut facilius petita inpetrarent, Domino Regi ducentas marcas et unum palefridum Regiæ sellæ satis elegantem ex parte Abbatis et Conventus offerunt. Rex tamen licet more principum pecuniæ satis avidus, neque pecuniam, neque palefridum pro tunc acceptare velle respondit, quovisque super hiis Dominum Cantuariensem consuluerit, eo quod ad ejus instantiam bona Monasterii Sancti Augustini confiscari mandaverit. Dimissi igitur Nuncii nostri sub spe bona ad propria redeunt, tempore opportuno ad ipsum Regem rever-suri, igitur super hiis Dominus Rex consuluit Archiepiscopum per literas suas, quarum tenor iste est.

Johannes Dei gratia, &c. H. Archiepiscopo salutem. Accesserunt ad nos Nuncii Abbatis & Conventus S. Augustini instantes petentes & humiliter postulantes, quod Chartas antecessorum nostrorum confirmaremus. Et quia in multis nos offenderunt, propter gratiam nostram et possessionum suarum quæ in manu nostra sunt restitutionem obtinendam, nobis ducentas marcas et unum palefridum obtulerunt. Nos vero licet super eorum petitionem & oblationem plurimum movebamur, nolimus tamen in hiis eos plenè exaudire quovisque super hiis vestrum haberemus consilium, unde vobis mandamus quod super hiis nobis consilium vestrum significetis. Responsio Archiepiscopi in hæc verba.

Reverendo Domino suo I. Dei gratia, Illustri Regi Angliæ, Hubertus eadem gratia Cantuariensis Archiepiscopus salutem, & debitam in Domino Reverentiam. Placuit Excellentie vestræ a nobis consilium petere super confirmandis Cartis antecessorum vestrorum quas Monachi Sancti Augustini Caest. habent super Ecclesia de Faversham, & super restituendis eis possessionibus suis quæ sunt in manu vestra. Licet autem ipsi Monachi & vos & nos Domine multum offenderint, & ita tam a vobis quam a nobis magis promeruerint malum quam bonum, nolumus tamen eis malum pro malo reddere, nec fidem, quam vobis debemus malè vobis consulendo pro eis ledere. Immo ita vobis volumus consulere sicut fidem nostram erga vos & conscientiam erga Deum cupimus salvare. De Cartis igitur antecessorum vestrorum confirmandis vobis respondemus; quod cum constet quod idem Monachi habeant cartam bonæ memoriæ Regis Willielmi, qui prædictam Ecclesiam de Faversham eis concedit quantum ad Patronum pertinet, neque non confirmationem Regis Henrici filii sui, & confirmationem Regis Henrici Patris vestri, confirmationem quoque Richardi Regis fratris vestri super eadem Ecclesia, videtur nobis, quod vos quoque justè possitis & debeatis hoc ipsum quod prædecessores vestri memoratis Monachis de eadem Ecclesia concesserunt & confirmaverunt, quantum ad Patronum pertinet eis confirmare. De restituendis vero eorum Maneriis quæ sunt in manu vestra, vobis dicimus, quod cum nullo modo fuerit laudabilis vel laudanda talis eorum maneriorum destitutio, bona & laudabilis erit celeris eorum restitutio. Sed de recipienda oblata vobis pro eorundem restitutione, et pro gratia vestra pecuniæ, nil vobis consulere, volumus cum potius absque pecunia sit facienda restitutio ut nobis videatur quam pro illa, quia taliter ablata potius cum satisfactione, quam pro precio restituenda. Vos autem inde faciatis quod vobis bonum videbitur; scimus quidem quod vos ex destitutione illa parum commodi habueritis tum prædicti Monachi habuerunt plurimum dampni, et aliqui fortasse Ministri vestri non modicum lucri, de vobis enim in hac parte dici potest, quod vos dumos excusseritis, et alii ab eis collegerunt. Calete.

Rex igitur hec Archiepiscopi accepto consilio, nuncios Sancti Augustini prædictos revocat, pecuniam per eos sibi prius oblatam respuit, set palefridum victus nunciorum precibus acceptat, omnibus possessionibus suis Monasterio restituit, & in recompensationem dampnorum qualemcumque quæ huic Monasterio intulerat, Cartas prædecessorum suorum super Ecclesiis de Faversham, & de Middleton, & super iuribus & libertatibus Monasterii, ut paulisper poterit elucere, gratanter confirmat, sicque factus est illius Monasterii patronus & protector, qui prius fuerat immisissimus persecutor, by the Archbishops perswasion and Treachery, to gain the presentation thereunto. conflictus pro
versham cum Archiepiscopo & Archidiacono.

Anno Domini 1022. conflictu cum Johanne Rege super Ecclesia de Faversham sic expedito, ad conflictum qui cum Archiepiscopo Cantuariensi & Archidiacono ejusdem habebatur super eadem Ecclesia revertatur. Igitur Monachis Sancti Augustini ut superius dictum est, à domibus personatus prædictæ Ecclesiæ post interpositionem appellationem ejectis violenter, & à possessione sua pacifica spoliatis, Archidiaconus Cantuariensis ad cuius instantiam ejecti fuerant, possessionem prædictarum domorum ingressus violenter tenuit, unde Monachi Sancti Augustini appellationes suas coram Domino Papa Innocentio cum effectu sunt prosecuti. Partibus itaque Monachorum et Archidiaconi coram Domino Papa constitutis; Monachi proposuerunt se a possessione sua pacifica in Ecclesiæ domibus de Faversham post appellationem legitime interpositam violenter et contra juris ordinem per Archidiaconum spoliatos, quare petebant se restitui. Procurator Archidiaconi ex adverso respondit, custodias Ecclesiarum vacantium in Archidiaconatu Cantuariensi tam de Consuetudine quam de jure Communi ad ipsum Archidiaconum pertinere. Hiis & multis aliis in præsentia Domini Papæ judicialiter propositis, sicut ex illa decretali apparet, extra de appellationibus bonæ memoriæ O. de Camera quæ super istum casum est fundata, Papa mandavit Londonensi & Roffensi Episcopis, & Priori Sancti Albani, ut ipsi Abbatem Sancti Augustini Cant. & Monachos in eundem statum restituerent, in quo fuerunt tempore appellationis emissæ. Cujus mandati autoritate, prædicti Executores vocatis ad præsentiam partibus, possessionem prædictæ Ecclesiæ de Faversham, Abbati Sancti Augustini adjudicaverunt cum omnibus fructibus medio tempore perceptis. Unde Archidiaconus Cantuariensis, Henricus nomine de Stanford coram prædictis executoribus cessit a possessione Ecclesiæ antedictæ, ratione sententiæ contra ipsum prolata. Remisit etiam Abbati Sancti Augustini omnes actiones quas habebat erga ipsum ratione custodiæ Ecclesiæ de Middleton, & resignavit, literis super hiis impetratis in manus executorum prædictorum. Et Abbas Sancti Augustini remisit prædicto Archidiacono Cantuariensi omnes fructus & obventiones quos medio tempore perceperat de Ecclesia de Faversham, exceptis fructibus tunc in grangiis existentibus, sicut quædam litera tam executorum prædictorum quam Archidiaconi sigillis munita plenius testatur.

Causam istam Ecclesiæ de Faversham quantum ad violentiam per Archiepiscopum & Laicos Abbati & Monachis Sancti Augustini illatam ab initio commiserat Londonensi & Elyensi Episcopis & Abbati & Priori Sancti Edmundi, set ipsis mandatum Apostolicum minus frigide exequentibus propter partis aduersæ tribulas exceptiones et dilationes frustrarias, unde Dominus Papa iterato mandat eisdem Iudicibus sub hiis verbis.

Innocentius Episcopus, &c. Venerabilibus fratribus, &c. Grave gerimus & molestim, & de discretionem vestram compellimur non mirari solummodo set moveri, quod cum jam sit annus elapsus ex quo super negotio Ecclesiæ de Faversham mandatum datum recepistis Apostolicum exequendum, in tantum appellationibus frustrariis & frivolis exceptionibus detulistis, ut nondum sub examine vestro potuerit habere processum. Unde dilecti filii Abbas & fratres Sancti Augustini Cant. præter grandes injurias & jacturas, graves nihilominus labores & sumptus sunt subire coacti. Volentes igitur eisdem fratribus, qui post Deum alium præter nos defensozem non habent, in tantæ necessitatis Articulo subvenire, devotioni vestræ per Apostolica scripta mandamus et districte præcipimus, quatinus omni gratia & timore postpositis, sublato cujlibet contradictionis & appellationis obstaculo, cogitis partem adversam per distractionem Ecclesiasticam, litem protinus contestari, & testes quos utralibet pars tam super principali quam quolibet incidenti duxerit producendos, infra duos menses post litis contestationem recipere ac examinare curetis, ita quod si nequiveritis personaliter interesse, per viros discretos id nihilominus exequamini, à quibus non liceat aliquatenus appellare, cum hoc mandatum celerem velimus sortiri effectum, ne præfatum Monasterium cogatur diutius laborare. Attestationibus vero receptis, præfigatis partibus terminum competentem, quo cum ipsis, recepturi sententiam nostro se conspectui repræsentent. Ad quem si qua partium venire noluerit, nos nihilominus procedemus; si vero pars adversa litem noluerit infra triduum contestari, vos procuratozem Monasterii omni appellatione et contrarietate remota, in possessionem rei de qua agitur inducat, et defendatis inductum. Insuper si voluerit infra annum non vobis set nobis legitimam offerat cautionem. Testes vero qui nominati fuerint, &c.

Hujus igitur mandati nobilitate excitati suprascripti Iudices delegati, vocatis ad suam præsentiam partibus, in ipsa causa processerunt in forma qua sequitur. Quem quidem processum quia ipsum inter quædam acta & attestaciones prædictam causam contingentia scriptum reperi, annotare dignum duxi, nihil augendo, vel diminuendo in hæc verba.

Cum coram Dominis Londinensi & Eliensi, & Abbati Sancti Edmundi, iudicibus à sede Apostolica delegatis, lis inter Archiepiscopum & Abbatem Sancti Augustini & Monachos initium capere debuisset, contigit Archiepiscopum & Dominos Elyensem & Londinensem ex causis necessariis transire, sicque propter eorum absentiam causa usque ad eorum reditum cepit dilationem. Quibus reversis, Archiepiscopus citatus edicto peremptorio statim se per procuratorem defendit, nec subterfugium aliquod querens, nec etiam exceptionem aliquam proponens, dicebat se paratam litem contestari, & intentionibus Abbatis & Conventus respondere, si vicissim Abbas & Conventus Archiepiscopo eos reconvenire volenti responderent. Cumque & Iudicibus & partibus placeret reconventionem esse admittendam, procurator Abbatis & Monachorum Sancti Augustini, intentionem suam proposuit in hunc modum.

Archiepiscopus post appellationem Abbatis Sancti Augustini pro se & pro Monachis suis, pro Ecclesiis etiam Abbatis suæ cum Parochianis earum, & precipue pro Ecclesia de Faversham cum Parochianis suis ad Dominum Papam legitime interpositam, post eandem etiam appellationem sollempniter innovatam, & contra libertatem Monasterii Sancti Augustini, per Magistrum Everardum quondam Officialem Archidiaconi & per Decanos quosdam & Capellanos, quosdam Monachos Sancti Augustini excommunicavit.

Item, Ecclesias quæ pertinent ad donationem Abbatis Sancti Augustini, post eandem appellationem, et post appellationem Rectorum earum, et contra tenorem libertatis Monasterii Sancti Augustini, generali supplicavit interdicto. Parochianos etiam earum a divini Officii et Sacramentorum perceptione suspendit, mortuorum etiam sepulturam interdixit. Item cum Archiepiscopus transitum faceret per Faversham Parochianis sibi occurrentibus, benedictionem suam denegavit, denunciatis eos excommunicatos, eo quod Monachis Sancti Augustini communicaverant, hoc etiam post dictam appellationem Abbatis sacrum est.

Item, quod Archiepiscopus impedit jus Abbatis & Conventus in Ecclesiis suis vacantibus, differendo institutiones Clericorum, utpote Magistri I. qui presentatus est ad Ecclesiam de Stone, & R. Clerici presentati ad Ecclesiam de Langdon.

Propositum est etiam a procuratoribus supradictis, quod cum ipse Archiepiscopus post appellationem ad Dominum Papam pro eis interpositam coram eodem super Ecclesia de Stone vacante, ne quidin prajudicium eorum fieret & I. Clerici quem ad eandem Ecclesiam presentaverunt, post appellationem etiam procuratoris ipsius Clerici pro eo sic interpositam, eandem Ecclesiam supposuit interdicto, quod interdictum fere per annum duravit et dimidium.

Procurator vero Archiepiscopi reconveniendo Abbatem & Conventum super pluribus Articulis & approbata reconventionem, respondit hoc modo.

Archiepiscopus nescit an Abbas appellaverit, si tamen appellaverit, ejus appellationi in eo casu non fuit differendum, quia manifesta fuit ejus intrusio in Ecclesiam de Faversham. Probet igitur Abbas se appellasse, et si forte hoc probaverit, nos probabimus illi appellationi non fuisse differendum.

Item Procurator Archiepiscopi confessus est excommunicasse in genere omnes illos qui se intruserant in Ecclesiam de Faversham, et eum Ecclesiam de Faversham et Stone suspendisse, et quasdam alias Ecclesias Monasterii Sancti Augustini, set nescit quas, vel quot: et dixit has sententias excommunicationis et interdicti iuste tulisse ob delictum manifestum, Monachorum scilicet intrusionem. Cum enim monuisset eos, ut asseruit, ut ab intrusione sua desisterent, et illi semper pertinaciter in ea perseverarent, credebatur eos sic saltem a sua intrusionem revocare.

Adjecit etiam idem procurator, sententis illas latas fuisse non in prajudicium aliquus appellationis legitime factae, nec contra libertatem aliquam Monasterii Sancti Augustini competentem.

Adjecit etiam, quod Archiepiscopus ingrediens Faversham, una benedictione benedixit omnibus habitantibus in ea, set postea cum villa sit magna & populus multus, non potuit singulis sibi occurrentibus singillatim benedicere, nulli tamen benedictionem denegavit qui prius universitati benedixerat, nullum etiam sibi occurrentium nominatim denunciavit excommunicatum. Adjecit etiam, Archiepiscopum iuste differe institutiones duorum Clericorum sibi presentatorum, jure enim suo utitur, & juris executio non habet injuriam; Monachi enim in illas duas Ecclesias se intruserunt, de Langdon scilicet & Stone, & adhuc eas detinent; unde ad presentationem intrusorum nullum debuit Archiepiscopus admittere in illis, ipsis in intrusione perseverantibus. Recedant ergo Monachi ab intrusione, & Archiepiscopus libenter admittet Clericos ab eis presentatos.

Ecclesia de
Middleton per Archiepiscopum.

Idem reconvenit Abbatem & Monachos Sancti Augustini dicens, quod ipsi mortuo Francone persona Ecclesiae de Middleton, in Ecclesiam de Middleton vacantem quadriennio transacto se intruserunt, & fructus & obventiones ejus ad valentiam 80. Marcarum, minus rationabiliter in usus proprios converterunt, & quod saepius per Archiepiscopum moniti, tamen neque ei Clericum idoneum ad ipsius regimen presentarunt, neque ipsum vel ejus Officiale custodiam ipsius tanquam vacantis habere permiserunt. Petit ergo Archiepiscopus, ut autoritate Dominorum Judicum Monachis ab eadem Ecclesia amotis, ei Custodia dictae Ecclesiae tanquam vacantis tradatur. Secundo, ut Monachi solvant ei & Officialibus suis omnes fructus & obventiones quas perceperunt a tempore quo se intruserunt. Tertio, ut satisfaciunt sibi super injuria ab eis sibi illata super dicta Ecclesia dicto modo. Quarto, ut ipse sinatur Clerico cui voluerit, dummodo idoneo, Ecclesiam illam autoritate Lancasteriensis Concilii dare, irrequisito Monachorum consensu, salvo eis postmodum jure patronatus si saluum esse debeat.

Item mortuo O. de Camera persona Ecclesiae de Faversham, dicti Monachi se in illam Ecclesiam intruserunt, spreta autoritate Archidiaconi, omnes obventiones illius sibi indebitè appropriantes. Et licet saepius moniti, nondum tamen quinquam ad illi-us regimen Archiepiscopo præsentaverunt, & ibidem missas celebrare indebitè, & alia sacerdotalia ministrare præsumperunt. Petit igitur Archiepiscopus sibi super hiis injuriis satisfieri, obventiones a tempore intrusionis prædictæ perceptas sibi vel Officiali suo restitui, et ut liceat ei Ecclesiam illam Clerico idoneo auctoritate Lateranensis Concilii dare.

Adjecit etiam, quod Monachi Sancti Augustini in Ecclesiam de Stone elapso anno se intruserunt, & obventiones ad valentiam 20 marcarum indebitè usurparunt, jus Archiepiscopi & Archidiaconi sui in ea enervantes. Petit igitur, ut Monachis ab ea amotis sibi super hac injuria satisfiat, et obventiones a tempore vacationis perceptæ ei etiam de hac Ecclesia auctoritate Lateranensis Concilii disponere cum præscriptio sex mensium auctoritate Lateranensis Concilii currens contra patronum omnino non præsentantem æque curratur sicut contra patronum viciosum præsentantem. Adjecit etiam similem querimoniam super Ecclesia de Langedon, in qua Monachi similiter se nuper intruserunt, petens similiter illius custodiam sibi cedi, & super injuria sibi satisfieri.

Adjecit etiam Procurator Archiepiscopi, Archiepiscopum & Archidiaconum suum debere habere custodiam omnium Ecclesiarum vacantium, in quibus Monachi Sancti Augustini habet jus Patronatus.

Adjecit quoque Archiepiscopum & Archidiaconum suum esse in possessione hujus juris, unde petit ut hoc jure liberè & sine impedimento uti possit.

Procurator Abbatis & Monachorum Sancti Augustini respondit, quod cum Archiepiscopus proponeret Abbatem & Monachos intrusos in Ecclesiam de Middleton, eo quod ut assererat Ecclesia illa vacans erat & custodia ejusdem vacaret ad ipsum, vel Archidiaconum suum pertineret, certificari voluerint Abbas & Monachi utrum Archiepiscopus contenderet se an Archidiaconum jus custodiæ habere in Ecclesia prædicta. Et incontinenti responsum est à procuratore Archiepiscopi, Custodiam illius Ecclesiæ principaliter ad Archiepiscopum, secundario & auctoritate Archiepiscopi ad Archidiaconum suum pertinere. Consequenter respondit procurator Abbatis. Quod etsi vacaret Ecclesia de Middleton, nihilominus Custodia illius & Claves & proventus non ad Archiepiscopum, immò ad Abbatem & Monachos tempore vacationis pertineret. Adjecit quoque, illam non esse vacantem, immò Abbatem & Monachos Sancti Augustini ejusdem personatum habere, seu Canonicum titulum percipiendi omnes proventus illius, & sic eos jure sine consilio fraudis seu intrusionis Ecclesiam sibi retinere. Et ideo Archiepiscopus frustra ad vacantem super proventibus & ipsius quasi vacantis frustra eos molestabat, frustra quasi injuria ei illata fuisset sibi petebat satisfieri, cum Abbas & Monachi jure suo usi fuerint, & juris executio non habet injuriam. Super Ecclesia de Faversham omnino idem, eam totam in usus suos sibi retinuerint, quandoque etiam Clericis secularibus nunc sub majori, nunc sub minori pensione, nunquam tamen ad firmam concesserunt. Tandem defuncto Osberno de Camra cui Ecclesiam illam ad instantiam Henrici Regis sub pensione sex marcarum concesserant jure suo & licitè & citra injuriam Archiepiscopi, & sic citra vitium intrusionis ingressi sunt possessionem illius Ecclesiæ. Requisite procurator Abbatis à procuratore Archiepiscopi, Qui institute habuerunt Monachi jus patronatus in Ecclesiis de Faversham & de Middleton habita deliberatione respondit in hunc modum.

Abbas & Conventus credunt quod tempore concessionis & confirmationis Regis W. primi super Ecclesiis de Faversham & de Middleton eis factæ Archiepiscopus Cantuariensis qui tunc fuit instituit Abbatem & Conventum & in easdem Ecclesias, set ad idem probandum nec testes habent nec instrumenta super hoc specialiter confecta. Verum pro certo sciunt quod Archiepiscopus Theobaldus concessit eis Ecclesias illas, & bonæ memoriæ Calixtus easdem eis confirmavit. Præterea adjecit procurator Abbatis quod Archiepiscopus falsò suggestit Domino Papæ, Monachos manu armata detinuisse Ecclesiam de Faversham. Adjecit etiam quod Nuncii Abbatis & Monachorum cum literis eorum acceperunt ad Archiepiscopum ad Slyndon, conquerentes, quod post eorum appellationem factam & solempniter innovatam Magister Evradus Ans tunc Officialis Archidiaconi Canthuariensis in præ iudicium & contra libertatem Monasterii Sancti Augustini Monachos, in Ecclesia de Faversham tunc existentes, auctoritate Archiepiscopi Excommunicavit, & Ecclesias Abbatis generaliter supposuit interdicto. Cumque instantius peterent, ut Archiepiscopus illas sententias irritaret, Archiepiscopus Warrantizare eas voluit, nec eas irritare, dicens dictis appellationibus non fuisse deferendum. Cum igitur appellatio Abbatis ad notitiam Archiepiscopi pervenit, & ipse nihilominus illas sententias post appellationem factas ratas habuit cum rati habitio retro trahatur, excusationem ignorantie si quam ab initio, ex post facto amisit, adjiciens hæc omnia à Magistro Everardo & per eum & Auctoritate ejus facta fuisse.

Super Ecclesiis de Stone & Langedon respondit procurator Abbatis & Conventus, Quod cum custodia earum & aliarum sui patronatus ad Abbatem & Monachos pertinet, et cum & ipsi ad illarum Ecclesiarum regimen personas idoneos Archiepiscopo præsentassent, Archiepiscopus eos super custodia earum seu proventibus injustè molestabat. Item procurator Abbatis & Conventus confessus est in jure Monachos Sancti Augustini detinuisse Ecclesias de Stone & Langedon, ex quò vacaverunt, & adhuc detinere & notè custodiam earum Archiepiscopo vel Archidiacono dimittere, nec debere cum ad eos spectaret custodia omnium Ecclesiarum vacantium sui patronatus, & non ad Archiepiscopum vel Archidiaconum, & eos in possessione hujus custodiæ esse, & non Archiepiscopum vel Archidiaconum.

Huius itaque hinc inde propositis utriusque partis testes sunt admissi, multi quidem. Quorum multitudo à iudicibus ad minorem numerum redacta fuisset nisi quia partes instabant, ut omnes admitterentur propter Articulorum probandorum multitudinem.

Publicatis demum attestationibus, paratus fuit Archidiaconus a iudicibus sententiam accipere, & hoc instanter petiit, ut scilicet ipsi inspectis attestationibus sententiarent. Sed pars adversa sententiam Domino Papæ maluit reservare. Deinde cum renunciatum esset productioni super Testibus repellendis, die ad idem præfixo facta est instrumentorum Sancti Augustini exhibitio. Postmodum, vero die scilicet Martis proxima post Caput jejuni, dicti Iudices partibus peremptorium præfixerunt diem scilicet diem Natalis beatæ Mariæ, quo coram Domino Papa compareant sententiam recepturi. Set amicis mediantibus, et de pace tractantibus, Rex ipse scripsit Archiepiscopo supplicando, ne ipse Abbatem super Ecclesiis de Faversham et de Middleton molestaret seu impediret quo minus de prædictis Ecclesiis possit disponere et in usus proprios convertere. Igitur Archiepiscopus H. tandem volens ea quæ pacis sunt et non belli, ob Regis reverentiam, prædictas Ecclesias prædecessoris sui Theobaldi vestigiis inhærendo ratificavit, perpetuo possidendas.

I pretermits many hot contests soon after Annis 1214. 1215. &c. between the Archbishop of Canterbury, Monks and Abbots of Saint Augustines; about the Abbots making his profession of subjection to the Archbishop upon his Consecration, for refusal whereof the Archbishop excommunicated the Abbot, and Monks, and interdicted all Churches belonging to the Monastery, so that neither God nor the people during their contests must have any divine service in them, such was their presumption and impiety. Whereupon the Abbot appealing to the Pope, pleaded exemptions from any such profession or subjection by several Popes Bulls and Resolutions. In which Suites, the Archbishop alleadging the sentence of Pope Alexander the third to the contrary; What great delays, bribes, and indirect practises were used in the Court of Rome in these Suites, you may read at large in the Chronicle of William Thorn, Cap. 14. 19, 20, 21, 23. I shall only observe, that in the contest it clearly appeared upon full examination, that both the Monks and Archbishops of Canterbury, forged Popes Bulls & Charters, to maintain their Jurisdicions; The Archbishop Anno. 1215. produced before Pope Innocent the third, the Copies of two Decretal Epistles or Bulls of Pope Alexander the third, in a full Council, which were both proved to be forged; I shall only recite the latter of them, and detection, relation of their forgery.

videlicet privilegium beati Augustini ejusdem Ecclesie patroni, & privilegium Ethelberti Regis ejusdem Monasterii fundatoris, whereon they made the promised observations of rasure interlining and forgerie upon view. Whence Sir Henry Spelman gives us this good caution; Cautius igitur intuenda sunt veterimar Monasteriorum Charta, fraudem enim sæpe olent, & ab antiquis ipsis eo perstringuntur stigmatē. Bonum est in eorum datus accuratè observare annorum concordantiam, scilicet Christi, Papæ, indictionis atque Regis, in his enim sæpius contigit hallucinatum iri.

William Thorne renders us this account of King Lewis his landing in England, and of his Letter written to Alexander then Abbot of Saint Augustines Canterbury, disproving King Johas, and justifying his own Title to the Crown of England, as well by hereditary descent, as Election of the Barons, and disswading him, to denounce any excommunication against him by the Popes command by promises and menaces, both which the Abbot heroically contemned, proceeding in his excommunication.

Anno Domini 1216. Lodowicus Philippi Regis Francorum primogenitus, veniens in Angliam cum magno exercitu ut eam suæ subderet ditioni, applicuit apud Stonoram 12. Kal. Junii, animadvertens quod Alexander Abbas hujus loci haberet potestatem sententialiter contra eum procedendi, elegantem eidem Abbati & Conventui misit Epistolam, jus quod sibi in Anglicano Regno competere contendebat, declarando in hæc verba.

Lodowicus Domini Regis Francorum primogenitus Abbati & Conventui Sancti Augustini Cant. salutem, & synceræ dilectionis affectum. Ne quis in facto nostro de Regno nostro Anglie simplicitatem vestram per falsas circumveniat suggestiones, vel Conscientias vestras contra nos reddat scrupulosas, nudam & meram ipsius rei veritatem, ad universitatis vestræ notitiam volumus pervenire. Nostis itaque, quod propter prodicionem notoriam quam Johannes quondam Rex Anglia commisit contra fratrem suum Regem Richardum, dum esset in partibus Ierosolimitanis, in reditu ejusdem fratris sui, legitime fuit citatus, accusatus, & in judicio coram paribus suis, & per eos legitime tanquam proditor condemnatus, quæ sententia condemnationis per os Hugonis de Pinsac, tunc Episcopi Dunelmensis fuit solempniter promulgata; unde mortuo Rege Richardo, devolutum est jus Regni Anglia ad Reginam Castella, & hæredes suos, quæ sola tunc de omnibus fratribus & sororibus suis superstes fuit præter dictum Johannem. Ipsa autem Regina & hæredes sui jus quod habuerunt in Regno nobis & filix suæ quam habemus uxorem, liberaliter concesserunt: propter quod Hubertus quondam Canthuariensis Archiepiscopus in Coronatione ipsius Johannis publicè dixit, quod non ratione successionis, set per Electionem ipsum in Regem coronabat. Illa autem Electio vel Coronatio qualiscunque nobis non præjudicavit, tam quia per violentiam facta fuit, tum quia jus quod habuimus nobis sine culpa aut consensu nostro auferre non potuit: præterea satis notum est, quomodo de murthero Arcturi nepotis sui in Curia Charissimi Domini & genitoris nostri Regis Francorum, Cujus ambo erant homines leges, per pares suos citatus, & per eosdem pares tandem fuit legitime condemnatus. Quod quidem murtherum eisdem partibus pluribus in Anglia & pluries prædictus Johannes est confessus: per quam condemnationem bona sua ubicunque erant aut undecunque ea haberet, per usitatas consuetudines forisfecit, & tunc iterato nobis tanquam vero hæredi cessit jus Regni Anglia, maxime cum adhuc de carne sua hæredem non haberet. Nos vero pro

jure nostro extunc eidem Johanni guerram movimus, quam contra ipsum continuavimus absque omni interruptione pacis vel treugæ usque ad dies istos. De guerra enim quæ postmodum inter Charissimum Dominum & genitorem nostrum & ipsum facta fuit, nec sumus requisiti, nec alium requisivimus licet præsentem essemus, undè nec Crucis assumptio, nec aliqua Condicio postmodum lite pendente suscepta, potest ipsum tueri, quin contra ipsum jus nostrum prosequamur. Ad hæc, cum præfatus Johannes in Coronatione sua sollempniter prout moris est jurasset, se jura et consuetudines Ecclesiæ, et Regni Angliæ conservaturum; contra juramentum suum, absque Consilio vel consensu Baronum suorum idem Regnum, quod semper fuit liberum, quantum in ipso fuit, Domino Papæ subiecit, et fecit tributarium; bonas consuetudines subvertens, malas inducens tam Ecclesiam quam Regnum multis oppressionibus, multisque modis studens ancillare; quas oppressiones vos melius nosti quam nos, ut quis eas familiari sensistis experimento. Pro quibus cum post multas requiritiones guerra mora esset contra ipsum, à Baronibus suis, tandem, inter cætera de ejus expresso consensu ita convenit, ut si idem Johannes ad flagitia prima redierit, ipsi Barones ab ejus fidelitate recederent nunquam ad eam postmodum reversuri. Verum ipse nihilominus paucis diebus evolutis, fecit nobilissima sua pejora prioribus, studens Barones suos non tantum opprimere, sed potius penitus exterminare. Qui de communi Regni consilio et approbatione, ipsum Regno judicantes indignum, nos in Regem et Dominum elegerunt. Unde apparet, quod sive ad successionem, sive ad electionem habeatur respectus, nos potissime jus in Regno Angliæ habemus. Nos autem cum istis et aliis rationibus ad Dominum Papam sollempnes nuncios nostros dudum destinavimus, et audientes interim, quod Cardinalis quidam Gualo nomine, veniret in Franciam, misimus ad eum rogantes, ne contra nos aliquid statueret, donec nuncii nostri a Curia Romana redirent, aut a Domino Papa novum reciperet mandatum postquam nuncios nostros audivisset. Et cum jam idem Cardinalis ad Dominum nostrum et genitorem Regem Franciæ accessisset, idem in præsentia Prælatorum et Bagnatum Franciæ fecimus dici coram nobis expresse, jus et propositum nostrum potestantes. Ipse autem Cardinalis tunc contra nos in nullo processit, nec visus est velle procedere. At nunc in Angliam ingressus, suggestionibus et muneribus inimicorum nostrorum immutatus, nos et nostros, ut audivimus, per Prælatos et Officiales Ecclesiarum intendit gravare. Quapropter vestram attente rogamus discretionem, quatinus sicut ad libertatem Ecclesiæ et Regni Angliæ venimus, ut videlicet tam Regnum quam Ecclesiam antiquæ et debite per Dei gratiam restituamus libertati, propter nullius fallam suggestionem vel iniquam jussionem nos vestris turbare, vel nostrum bonum et ipsum propositum et commune bonum Angliæ impedire, nec aliquid contra nos vel nostros nobis irrequisitis promulgare. Scituri quod qui bona fide in hac parte nobis assisterint, perpetuum nos amicum contra quemlibet habebunt & defensorem, nec pro lucro vel damno ei aliquo unquam tempore deerimus, illi vero qui secus egerint, nos perpetuum sententient inimicum. Valete.

Set Abbas Alexander, ut alter Alexander Macedo magnanimus, nec Lodovici præcibus & blanditiis emollitus, nec comminatoriis pertectus, a favore Regis et auxilio nullatenus se elongabit, sed in ipsum Lodovicum et ejus Complices et eis adherentes, consilium, auxilium, vel favorem eis præbentes, sententias excommunicationis et interdicti incessanter pro-promulgabit, et executioni demandabit secundum quod a Papa hoc negotium ei fuerat delegatum, nam et ipsa Papa in Concilio Lateranensi eundem L. vix vocis oraculo excommunicaverat. Complices vero et fautores ejus hac sententia irritati, primo in insula Thaneto, postea in singulis maneris nostris blada, animalia, victualia, &c. quaecunque invenire potuerunt depredaverunt, vix a Sanctuario nostri Monasterii manus suas continentes.

REX Dilectis & fidelibus suis Philippo de Uletos, & sociis suis itinerantibus in Comitatus Cumberland, Westmerland, & Lancaster, salutem. This (in my observation) is the first president, that Tryals ratified by our Civill Laws, and antient usage in the Realm, were altered and set a side upon consideration of the Decrees of Popes and the Church of Rome, by the King and his Counsils advice and Writ, without an Act of Parliament, but the Justice of the Decrees, the superstition, uncertainty, and injustice of the former kinds of Tryals, might be a sufficient warrant for such an alteration as this for the better.

Book 4. Chap. 3. p. 373. between l. 4 and 5. this should have been inserted, In the second year of King Henry the third, Pope Honorius the third, upon the earnest Petition of the Abbot and Monks of Saint Albani granted them this Bull, and confirmed all former Bulls of his predecessors and Charters of our Kings whereby any Priviledges, Lands, Cells, Churches, or ought else were formerly granted, or which hereafter should be granted to them, with exemptions from all Regal, Episcopal and other Taxes, services, jurisdictions whatsoever, but only of the Pope himself or his Legate being a Cardinal, reserving one ounce of Gold to be annually paid to him and his successors for the Liberties and Priviledges ratified and granted in or by this Bull, to which his Cardinals subscribed, and for which (no doubt) he received a considerable summe in hand from the Monastery.

HONORIUS Episcopus servus servorum Dei, Dilectis filiis Willielmo Abbatu Monasterii Sancti Albani ejusque fratribus tam presentibus quam futuris, regularem vitam professis in perpetuum. Religiosam vitam eligentibus Apostolicum convenit adesse praesidium, ne forte cujuscumque temeritatis incurtus, aut eos a proposito revocet, aut robur, quod ab sit, sacrae religionis infringatur. beati Benedicti regulam absque ullius contradictione Abbatem eligere, qui in susceptione benedictionis suae cunctis in posterum diebus, * soli Romanae Ecclesiae professionem obedientiae debet exhibere. Cui etiam Abbati licitum sit, sicut à praecessoribus nostris vobis concessum, personam de suis fratribus quam maluerit honestam, idoneam & maturam constituere, quae curam animarum sub eo gerat, & Archidiaconi Officium in omnibus impleat. Ceterum ne per huius dignitatis praerogativam Abbas praedicti Monasterii aliquo tempore facilitatem fortassis ad Episcopatum habeat accessum, Apostolica auctoritate interdiximus, ne unquam in Monasterio beati Albani * sedes Episcopalis constituatur, ne occasione ista quandoque Monachi dispositioni subiaceant Clericorum et Clausstralis quies turbetur, nec non et regularis observantiae disciplina, simul cum substantia Monasterii minuatur; sed cunctis in posterum diebus Ecclesiae Sancti Albani, non Episcopum sed Abbatem a quo Pontificalis dignitatis, in quantum * Abbati concessa est, debeat obtinere; videlicet, ut sicut Pontificalia habet jura ita et Pontificalia habeat ornamenta, mitram scilicet, circetecae et annulum, et sandalia, tunica quoque et Dalmatica in celebrationibus missarum utatur, quae liceat ei non tantum in propria Ecclesia et in Cellis vestris, sed et in omnibus Ecclesiis ad quas rogatus accesserit in festis diebus gestare, benedictionem dare, vestimenta sacerdotalia benedicere, Clericos suos tonsare, et in sortem dominicam assumere, sanctimoniales suas benedicere. Et sicut beatus Albanus Anglorum protomartyr esse dignoscitur, ita et * Abbas Monasterii ipsius inter Abbates Angliae primum omni tempore dignitatis ordine habeatur. Ita tamen, quod nunquam hac occasione infra Clausura Monasterii Abbas ipse praesumat uti Cappa Clericali, vel seculari aliquo indumento, sed Monastici habitus reverentiam in omnibus diligenter observet, & formam Religionis praetendere inuentum oculis comprobetur. In ponendis vero vel removendis Prioribus Cellarum vel Monachis, nullus omnino Clericus sive Laicus se obiciat, sed Abbas qui pro tempore fuerit absque alicujus contradictione liberam habeat facultatem, quatinus tam Priores quam Monachi in Abbatum suorum semper potestate permaneant, & ita per omnia liberi sint ubilibet habitantes ab Episcoporum subjectione ac si in corpore Monasterii morarentur, in quos nulla omnino persona praeter Romanum Pontificem vel Legatum Cardinalem a nostro latere destinatum, excommunicationis seu interdicti sententiam audeat promulgare. Quod si quispiam alius aliquo tempore attemptare praesumpserit, ejus in hac parte factum omnino viribus careat, et penitus irritum habeatur. Prohibemus quoque, ut nullus Episcopus sive Archiepiscopus in vestro Cenobio, vel adjacentibus Ecclesiis in quibus ejusdem Monasterii Abbas jus Pontificale habere dignoscitur, missas publicas vel Conventum sive Synodum celebrare, Cathedram collocare, processionem sollempnem facere aut erigere, Regem coronare, seu aliquod Episcopale Officium in aliqua Cellarum suarum exercere vel hospitium erigere praesumat. Universis itaque statuentes, ut quicumque Episcopi, Archiepiscopi vel eorum Clerici aut ministri super ipsum Monasterium, vel super Cellas et praedictas Parochiales Ecclesias nullam aliquatenus potestatem habeant, nec earum Praebytros, vel Clericos quoscunque sive Laicos, sed nec Abbatem, Priores vel Monachos ad Synodum suam vel Capitulum convocare, vel ab officio divino suspendere, seu aliquod in eos vel minimum jus exercere, aut Parochianos suos a communione illorum prohibere praesumant, sed omnia Pontificalia eorum jura et quaecunque cunque Ecclesia Sancti Albani fuerint Abbatis, solummodo ejusdem Monasterii potestate licere tractanda subiaceant. Nolumus enim ut alicui nisi tantum Romano Pontifici debeant in aliquo respondere. Nec Monasterii vestri Abbas vel Monachi, seu Cellarum vestrarum ubilibet positarum fratres, pro qualibet interdictione vel excommunicatione, etiam si commune interdictum terræ fuerit, divinatorum Officiorum suspensionem patiantur; sed tam Abbas et Monachi ipsi quam et famuli eorum, et qui se Monasticæ professioni debuerunt, Clausis Ecclesiarum januis, non admittis excommunicationis et interdictis, non pulsatis tintinabulis, humiliori voce divina celebrent, et sepultura eis debita peragant. Liceat quoque vobis quandocunque vos manifeste gravari senseritis, ad remedium appellationis confugere, etiam si in causa quæ contra vos agitur appellatio sit remota: post factam vero appellationem nemini liceat in vos sententiam dare vel aliquid innovare, seu vos aut possessiones vestras ausu temerario perturbare. Ad hæc sancimus, ne quis fratres vestros post factam in Monasterio vestri professionem absque Abbatis licentia suscipere audeat, vel retinere. Inhibemus insuper, ut nulli omnino hominum liceat in Cellis vestris absque assensu vestro Abbatem aliquando constituere. Ecclesia autem in quibus jura Pontificalia non habetis sive Capellæ vestræ et Cimiteria libera sint, et ab omni exactione immunia, præter Episcopi consuetam potestatem et iustitiam in Presbyteros si adversus sui ordinis offenderint dignitatem. In quibus etiam Ecclesiis vel Capellis liceat vobis seu fratribus vestris Presbyteros eligere, ita tamen quod ab Episcopis vel Episcoporum vicariis animarum curam absque venalitate suscipiant. Quibus nimirum Presbyteris cum tantum assignaveritis unde victus et vestitus necessaria possint honeste percipere, quicquid residuum fuerit liceat vobis in usus proprios convertere. Si qui præterea fidelium Monasterio vestro aut villis ad ipsum pertinentibus Ecclesiam aut possessionem aliquam seu beneficium pietatis intuitu conferre voluerit, nullus omnino audeat impedire. Adjicientes, etiam autoritate Apostolica prohibemus, ut nullus Minister decetero, dapiter videlicet vel pincerna, Camerius, dispensator, ianitor, seu per manum Regis, vel alicujus Principis violentiam vobis invitis in vestro Monasterio vel in locis ad ipsum pertinentibus ordinetur, antiquas quoque consuetudines & redditus Monasterio vestro debitos, scilicet in sexta feria post ascensionem Dominicam de unaquaque Caruca Harefordensis Comitatus obolum unum, & in eadem die sive Hebdomada Pentecostes, extoro Comitatu processionem sollempnem. In secunda vero sollempnitate beati Albani, de unaquaque Caruca * nummum unum, itemque eodem die unaquaque domo totius terræ Sancti Albani nummum unum vobis auctoritate Apostolica confirmamus, et perpetuis temporibus inviolabiliter precipimus observari. Decernimus ergo ut nulli hominum liceat supradictum Monasterium temere minuire, sive quibuscumque vexationibus fatigare, sed illibata omnia & integra observentur eorum pro quorum gubernatione & sustentatione concessa sunt usibus omnimodis profutura, salva in omnibus Apostolicæ sedis Auctoritate. In this Bull it is observable. 1. That although most of the privileges, exemptions from Archiepiscopal and Episcopal Jurisdiction, and the Abbots Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction and Pontifical habit, as well as the Lands, Cells, Churches, Chappels, &c. there mentioned, were originally granted by * King Offa, and confirmed by other Kings Charters mentioned in this Bull, and did not principally flow from Popes, who did but confirm the Kings Charters; yet this Pope (as some of his Predecessors) took upon him, to be as it were the originall granter of them; and of the Abbots Pontifical Robes & Precedency before all other Abbots. 2. That he reserved an ounce of Gold to be paid annually to him and his successors for this Bull of liberties granted them, as Pope * Celestine had formerly done, in high derogation of the Kings regall Perogative, as King Henry the 2d. declared to the Abbot upon sight of Pope Celestine's Bull. 3. That Abbots out of their Pride or ambition, were the principal advancers of the Popes usurpations, by petitioning for, and purchasing such Bulls as these from Popes, to exempt themselves from all Secular, Archiepiscopal and Episcopal Jurisdiction (which raised many contests between our Archbishops, Bishops and Abbots) to be only under the Power of the Pope himselfe and his Legates; who inserted, à salvo in omnibus Apostolica sedis auctoritate. 4. That the Pope in this Bull gives Precedency to Popes and their Bulls before our Kings and their Charters, which was not usuall in most preceeding Bulls of confirmation. Matthew Paris in the life of John the next Abbot and others succeeding him complains, that notwithstanding all these privileges and Popes Bulls very dearly purchased, they were presently and frequently violated by Popes and their Agents, or evaded by Non obstantes, as meer insignificant Cyphers, and pious Cheats to pick their purses.

The Bishops in Ireland usurping upon the Kings Crown and Courts, in presuming to hold Pleas of Advowsons, of Churches, Chapples, Chattels, Layfee, and Goods which were not given in marriage or by will, against the Laws of England there established by him and his Father King John, issued this general Writ or Proclamation to inhibit them to hold Plea thereof.

Matthew Paris in the life of William Abbot of Saint Alban relates this story of an Italian who had been violently intruded by the Popes Provision against right into the Church of Hertsburne for many years, being troubled in his conscience for it, resigned it up to the Abbot, the only president of this kind in our Histories, whereupon the Abbot reconferred it on him, as right Patron thereof.

Ad titulos autem dignoscitur ipsius Abbatis Willielmi pertinere, quod cum Magister Hugo natione Italicus, Ecclesiam de Hertsburne, per intrusionem Romanae Curie violenter obtinisset, cavens Conscientiæ suæ quam graviter læsam senserat, venit ad Abbatem Gulielmum, et dixit ei, cum iachrymīs, Domine, illegitimum ingressum habui ad Ecclesiam vestram quæ ad donationem vestram pertinet, unde fructus ægro animo plurimis annis (heu mihi) recepi temerarius. Ipsam igitur, Pater sancte in manibus vestris resigno. Cui Abbas misercatus et miseratus respondit, non inveni tantam fidem in aliquo Transalpino, et ego ipsam recipio; Et post dimidium minus horæ intervallum cum silentio ipse Abbas, (nullius præterquam spiritus sancti fretus consilio) recolens, qualiter beatus Thomas Martyr Cantuariensem Archiepiscopatum in manus Papæ (quia ingressum habuit imperiosis præcibus Regis Henrici) resignavit, et iterum Canonice instituit promeruit, accito Hugone ait, et ego tibi eam Charitative confero, ut tua serenetur Conscientia. Quam recipiens cum gratiarum actionibus, multis annis vixit idem Hugo sanctissime. Quod audiens Papa cum suis Cardinalibus, factum quamplurimum laudavit, sed similia facere recusavit.

Book 4. Chap. 2. p. 766. l. 1. This passage was omitted by the Printer; How numerous, rich, insolent the Popes Italian usurers were, who returned his extorted monies for him from England, and furnished the King, Prelates and others who wanted money, upon good security, at excessive rates both at Rome and in England, to pay what was extorted from, or given by them to purchase preferments, provisions, or bribe the Pope, Cardinals, officers of the Court of Rome, what stately Houses they purchased, and how they were questioned, imprisoned both as Hereticks, Traitors by the King, till they purchased their peace with money, is thus registred by Matthew Paris.

Temporibus sub eisdem, Usurarii Transalpini, quos Causinos appellamus adeo multiplicati sunt, et ditati, quod nobilissima Palatia Londini sibi comparantes, stabilem sibi, moxæ Tibium indigenarum mansionem statuerunt. Nec sunt ausi prælati obmutire, quia se Peratores Dominum mini Papæ extitisse assemarunt, nec audebant Civem obloqui quia Magnatum quorundam, quorum, ut dicebatur, pecuniam ad multiplicandam seminabant, exemplo Romane Curie, favore defendebantur. Veruntamen tunc temporis graviter in civili foro, Dominus Rege sic volente et caute procurante, sunt accusati, et in causam ante iudicem tractati, et sedente Londini pro Iudice ex parte Regis accusantis, velut schismatici, vel hæretici, et Regiæ læsæ rei Majestatis, vocati tenebantur tanquam incarcerandi, et gravius puniendi, pro eo nimirum quod se Christianos profitentes totum Regnum Anglia turpissimo quasi fœnoris macularunt. Unde Dominus Rex Christianissimus, qui juravit Sancta instituta Ecclesiæ conservare illaesa, se conqueritur in Conscientia sua graviter laesum. Quod cum non posset inficiari, capti sunt eorum aliqui carcerali custodiae mancipandi, alii vero in locis abditis latuerunt. Quibus auditis, gavisus sunt Judæi, suæ se habere jam participes servitutis. Tandem interveniente haud minimæ pecuniæ quantitate amulsi Judeorum Causam in pace ad tempus sunt demissi. Dixeratque unus eorum mihi hæc de ipsis scripturo, sub attestazione magni sacramenti, quod nisi sibi mansiones sumptuosas comparassent Londini vix aliquis eorum in Anglia remansisset.

Book 4. Chap. 2. p. 813. l. 30. Before, (what power) these passages should have been printed.

In what vast Debts and summes of money the Pope involved the King to gain the Kingdome of Sicily and Apulia for his Son: how unchristianly and violently he extorted monyes from time to time from the poor Jews to satisfie the Pope, and how lamentably they complained of the Kings rapines, and the Popes followers undoing them by taking away their trade of Usury; and how earnestly they petitioned for license to desert the Kingdome; will appear by these two passages. Diebus quoque sub eisdem, post Pascha, citra dies tamen Rogantium, Rex ne quiesceret, adeo delæxit in Judeorum popellum miserum ut vivere fastidirent. Et cum convocarentur, exegit ab eis Comes Richardus ad opus Regis quamplurimum indigentis, pecuniam non minimam, sub pœna Carteris terribili, & mortis ignominiosæ. Elyas igitur de Londino, Judeorum Pontifex, habito (cum sociis suis, consilio, respondit pro omnibus, qui maximam frequenter, nolens, volens solverat pecuniam. O Domini Proceres, videmus indubitanter, quod Dominus Rex nos delere proponit de sub cælo. Det nobis, petimus pro Deo, licentiam, & conductum recedendi a Regni suo, ut alibi quæramus & inveniamus mansionem sub aliquo principe, qui alicujus viscera gestat misericordiæ, & veritatis ac fidelitatis stabilitatem. Et recedemus irredituri, relictis hic suppellectili, & domiciliis. Quomodo diligeret nos misellos Judeos, vel nobis parceret, qui suos Anglicos destruit naturales? Habet Papales, imo suos Mercatores, non dico fœderatores, qui de præstationibus cumulos coacerbant pecuniarum infinitos. Tunc tatur Rex eis, et suis inbiat emolumentis. Nos profecto supplantarunt et depauperarunt. Quod utique scire Rex dissimulat, exigens a nobis quæ non possumus exhibere, etsi oculos erueret, vel exoriatos jugularet. Et hoc singultibus & lachrymis sermonem impediens dicens, sileat, fere cadens in extasim moriturus. Quod cum ad notitiam Magistratuum pervenisset, non permisit eos a Regno recedere, dicentes. Quo fugeritis miseri? Ecce Rex Francorum vos odit, & prosequitur, & exilio perpetuo condemnavit, vitantes Charybdis in Seyllam mergi desideratis. Et sic parva substantiola quæ eis ad eorum exilem sustentationem relinquebatur ab eisdem violenter est extorta.

Et cum carnalium tempus advenisset, Rex a Judeis, licet multos depauperatis, exegit cum magna instantia octo millia marcarum, sub pœna suspendii temporis sibi persolvenda. Ipsi vero videntes nil aliud sibi imminere nisi exterminium cum

Et nos nobis qualem qualem quaeremus mansionem. Quod cum Rex audisset, exclamavit querula voce dicens : Non est mirandum si aveo pecuniam, horrendum est imaginari debita quibus teneor obligatus. Per caput Dei, ascendit ad summam ducentorum millium marcarum, & si dicerem trium, metas non transgrederer veritatis. Seductor undique. Mutilatus Rex sum & abbreviatus, imo jam dividiatus. Facta enim reddituum certa expensionis æstimatione, ascendit summa annui redditus Edwardi filii mei ad plusquam 15. millia marcarum. Neesse igitur habeo vivere de pecunia undecunque, à quibuscunque qualitercunque adquisita. Factus igitur alter Titus vel Vespasianus, vendidit Judeos per aliquot annos Comiti Richardo fratri suo, ut quos Rex excoriaverat, Comes evisceraret. Tamen Comes pepercit eis considerans eorum potestatem abbreviatam, & paupertatem ignominiosam;

Eodem vero anno Abbas Abendonie paralyticus, dum inutilis langueret morti subaratus, venerant Monachi ejusdem domus ad Regem, postulantes humiliter, ut cedente Abbate sibi et aliis inutili liceret, eis domum suam pacifice possidere; et eidem consulere utiliter disponendo. Propter quam gratiam, et abundantiam eidem Regi quingentas numerarunt marcas. Cum autem domum redirent, infra quindecim dies obiit Abbas paralyticus. Conventus autem sibi illico eligendo providit salubriter: quod enim sic eis liceret, insertum fuit Chartæ, quam de Rege obtinuerant, Credebat enim Rex, quod diutius vitam continuaret. Consueverunt enim paralytici vitam protrahere diuturnam. Cum autem Rex de morte ejus certificaretur, obstupuit vehementer. Et dolens exclamavit, dicens: O pro capite Dei (ut verbis ejus utar consuetis) qualiter fallo; seductus et circumventus, qui non plus quam quingentas marcas ab illa optima domo recepi; tam cito in posterum vacatura, qui de sylvis ejusdem domus, si in manu mea paucis diebus teneretur, absque aliis emolumentis, tantundem fuero recepturus, ut mille marcas vel plus, ad ærarium meum revocarem. Patuit ergo luce clarius singulis & universis, quod de die in diem magis ac magis, postquam Rex juraverat se pacem & libertatem Ecclesiæ sustinere & conservare, ejus avaritiam sitim & incrementum suscepisse, only to furnish the Pope with moneyes for to gain Apulia.

This Archbishop of Colen with others, was sent into England from the Princes of Germany, to Richard Earle of Cornwall to recertifie him, that they had unanimously elected him for their Emperor; which he was loath to accept of, quia duo paucis elapsis annis in Regem Almanniæ electi & promoti, sinistros & finales casus, quasi Deo irato, promoverant. Whereupon fuerunt qui dicerent Comiti verba consolatoria. O Comes sapiens & circumspicte, quid hasitas, quasi te perterreat casus Landegravii Henrici, & iterum casus sinister Comitis Williel. Hollandi? Non Papate intrudite violenter (as he did them) qui de spoliis Ecclesiæ et rapinis Crucelignatorum tibi spondet necessaria; quæ nunquam tibi forent profutura. Ipsa nempe Papa turpiter adquisita, non ad misericordiam, scil. potius ad iram provocarunt. * Anno 1258. Gravis in urbe Romana facta est seditio & civium maxima cum schismate perturbatio, &c. Consideratis igitur popularibus, De consilio cujusdam Anglici, concivis eorum, magistri pistorum in urbe Mathei dicti de Bealueri, facto impetu vehementi, catervatim ruentes & glomeratim, carcerem in quo Brancaleo pri-stinus Senator tenebatur in vinculis, confregerunt, & liberantes constituerunt eum Senatorem, facientes ei secundum pristinam urbis consuetudinem cum juramenti fidelitate. Roboratus igitur Brancaleo, expulit ab urbe sibi adversantes, et Hannibales duos, scilicet consanguineos cujusdam Cardinalis, patibulis fecit presentari, spernens Papalem reverentiam, nec Papali-bus pepercit amicis aut consanguineis. Quos cum Papa excommunicaret, scilicet Brancaleonem Senatorem et suos fautores, ipsi cachinnantes omnes minas suas contempserunt, et potestatem in eos exercendam non tantum parvipendebant, sed etiam sannis visipendebant. Ipsi se asserabant habere privilegium, quod nequit ali-quis Papa eos excommunicare, et subannantes comminabantur ipsum Papam cum suis Cardinalibus, usque ad internecionem persequi et damnificare. Quo cognito, Papa sibi timuit, et dixit fratribus.

Dum furor in cursu est, currenti cede furori.

Et ne malis pejora succederent, se subito contulit Viterbium, proponens se remotius, scilicet Assisum conferre. But as he was forced to humble himself to Brancaleo, and implore his favor. Whereupon Manfredus, quia Papam odio habuit, & Senatorem Brancaleonem præcordialiter dilexerat, gavisus vehementer est: quod qui paulo antè minas jaculabatur, et sententiam excommunicationis comminabatur fulgurare, sic humiliatus est, quod ea quæ pacis sunt rogebatur postulare. Sponspondit igitur Princeps Manfredus, eidem Se-natore Brancaleoni se ad omnia necessaria subventurum. Et sic destitutus est undique amicus Regis Anglorum Henrici, cui consuevit potenter suffragari, totaque inestimabilis pecunia, quam pro Regno Apulie adquiritendo effuderat, et illuc transmiserat, non sufficiebat ad adquietandum usuras, quæ tacite subrepentes, ipsum Regem ig-narum illaquearent, et incircumspectum. Imposuit insuper et Papa, quod deceperat Ecclesiam et circumvenerat: unde fama ejus, inter omnes nationes obsoletè vehementer. When as the Pope himself was the grand and most infamous Cheater

Excanduit Papa

Angliæ.

Diebus sub eisdem, excanduit Papa in Regem Anglorum, eo quod promif-sa toties iterata non observans, seipsum ultro obligaverat sub pœ-na amissionis Regni, excessus corrigere consuetos. Instante igitur Episcopo Rossensi Laurentio (such was his Episcopal Loyalty) et aliis multis urgentissime, proposuit Papa, post admonitiones infructuosas in Regem fulgurare sententiam excommunicationis, et Regnum interdicere, (such was his Papal presumption) et gravioza gravibus successive simulare Rex igitur mente confusus, (who wanted the courage

Domino Papæ numeravit, ut iram temperans cordis sui hanc senten-tiam ad tempus prozogaret atque differret. Dominus autem Papa p[re]cio et p[re]cibus postulantis sileo acquiebat. (*Whereas the King should have derided, contemned it, as the Romans then did under his very Nose in Rome it self,

 & undique bonis suis spoliato, omnis spes de obtinendo Regno Apulia penè evanuit exsufflata, nisi quod in sinu novi Regis Alemannia Richardi aliquantula, sed nimis exilis, est reposita, quia nondum culmen Imperij est adeptus. *Such a grosse hole

What an Ecclesiastical Sovereignty King Henry the 3d. exercised in the appropriating of Churches, and endowing of Vicaridges, this memorable Writ for that pur-

Courteous Readers,

FOR the readier finding of the principal persons, places, matters contained in this Volume, I have made several distinct Indexes or Tables thereunto.

The 1. of the Authors and Authorities of all sorts therein quoted and made use of. The 2. of the English and other Abbies, Priories, Monasteries, Nunneries, Abbots, Priors, and all matters relating to them. The 3. of the English and Welsh Archbishopricks, Bishopricks, Archbishops, Bishops, their Elections, Actions, Treasons, Extravagances, Contests, and all matters relating to them in this Tome. The 4. of the Irish. The 5. of Forraign Archbishopricks, Bishopricks, Archbishops, Bishops, their elections, and actions herein mentioned. The 6. of the English, Irish, and other Archdeaconries, Deaneries, Archdeacons, Deans. The 7. of the English and other Earls. The 8. of the chief Officers of State of England and Ireland. The 9. of Barons, Knights, and other principal persons Names of our English or other Nations. The 10. of the Popes of Rome. The 11. of the Romish Cardinals. The 12. of the Popes Legats, Nuncios, Agents in England, Ireland, or other foreign Dominions. The 13. of Cities, Castles, Churches, parishes, places, and passages relating to them; with the Pages wherein you may finde them. The 14. of the Principall matters herein contained, wherein the Names, Actions of our own and other Kings, Emperors, Princes, and chief Persons, are more particularly related. The 15. of sacred Texts occasionally abused by the Pontificians to maintain St. Peters and Popes Supremacies, the adoration and Sovereign Exaltation of the Virgin Mary, Saints departed, Transubstantiation and other Popish errors; or made use of, to refute their mistakes, and corruptions.

In the respective Indexes of the Abbies, Monasteries, Archbishopricks, Bishopricks, Priories, Archdeaconries, Deaneries, Earldomes, Offices, I have observed an Alphabetical method, in respect of the Places themselves; but pursued a Chronological method in relation to the Abbots, Priors, Archbishops, Bishops, Archdeacons, Deans, Earls, Officers, beginning with the antientest, and so descending, as most consonant to my Chronology. Only I have observed an Alphabetical method in the Popes.

An Alphabetical Index of the Authors quoted in this TOME
upon several Occasions.

Johns* famous Charter of Resignation, Homage and Fealty to the Pope, 290. and to the Archbishop of the Patronage of Rockefter Bishoprick, 339. A Writ to remove all those who had intruded into any of his Lands and possessions during the differences between the King and him, and put him into personal possession of them, 334. The Popes Legates Mandate to him to suspend all Clergymen who adhered to the King, received any Benefices, celebrated Divine Service by his command, or openly communicated with him during the Excommunication and Interdict, till they personally went to Rome to be absolved; the rigour used therein, 334, 335. dyed, soon after canonized a Roman Saint by Pope Honorius, for his Ingratitude, Treasons, 379, 380. Prohibited any vicuals to be sold to the Jews; the King commands the contrary by his Writs, under pain of imprisonment, 387. The Kings Teste to a Writ in his presence to admit a Clerk 389.

Robert Grossetest, Graftstead; A mandatory Writ to him to command the Archdeacon of Oxon. without delay to revoke his presumption in removing the Kings Administrator placed in the Hospital of St. Johns Oxon. of his Ancestors foundation, and thrusting his Chaplain into it, to the great prejudice of his Royal dignity, 480. Churches dedicated by him according to the new Decrees of Otto the Popes Legate, and Council of London, 504. A cruel persecutor of the Monks and his own Canons who made him their Bishop, 509. Resolved to visit the Dean and Canons of Lincolns, never formerly done in the memory of man, against which they appeal; they at last submit to an arbitrement, all Visitations in the mean time to cease, 509. Contests about the word cease, since he and his predecessors never visited nor began to visit before: They refuse his Visitation, repent of his Election, tell him so publicly to his face, openly declaim against him and his oppressions in their Sermons; saying, if they held their peace, the very stones would speak; at which words a great part of the Church fell down, 509. Their appeals, contests, excommunications at Rome concerning his Visitation of them, Ibid. The Popes agreement with the Romans to conferre all Benefices in England (especially of Religious persons) on them when they fell voyd, his Letters to Graftstead and two Bishops more to provide 300. livings that next fell voyd in their Diocesses for Rome, admired at by all, 564, 572. turn him the number of all Benefices, Prebendaries, Ecclesiastical Dignities in his Diocese, their values, and how many were conferred on aliens, by the Pope, his Legates, or others by Provisions, 573. He conjures and persuades Nicholas de Perham to accept the Bishoprick of Durham to which he was elected, though he formerly refused it, 565, 566. A prohibition to the Popes Delegates not to proceed in the cause between him, the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln by the Popes authority concerning Visitations and Procurations, to the prejudice of the Kings Crown, dignity, 577. He with two more Bishops sharply reprehended the King for his tyranny in persecuting the Bp of Winchester, adding prayers to prayers, yea menaces to menaces to interdict his Chapel, forcing him to rescite his proceedings till he heard from Rome, 590. An high contest between the King and him concerning the Church of Thame: his high Message to the King by his Archdeacons, and menaces to excommunicate all the infringers of the privileges of his Church; his contempt of the Popes provision and authority in this case, which caused the Kings Clerk to desist, 595, 596. The Dean and Chapter forced by the Bishop to shew their ancient Charters, which gave the King a claim against both, 596, 597. The Bishop rash, obstinate, wills all the Archdeacons Bishops to joine to oppress the Abbot and Monks of Canterbury; they excommunicate each other with Bell, Book and Candle; condemn each others excommunications, interdicts, celebrating notwithstanding them, 598. The Popes Decree at Rome between him, the Dean and Chapter, concerning their Controversie, 599, 597. He excommunicates the Monks of Bardsey after their Appeal to the Pope, the King. Writ to the Guardians of England not to take them upon a Writ of Capias Excommunicatum, 599. Nor yet to permit the Prior and Monks of Canterbury during the Sees vacancy, to attempt any Noveltie, or exercise any new power against the Bishop of Lincoln or other Suffragans, to the disturbance of the Clergy, Realme, or prejudice of either Church, and to supersede all proceedings till his coming into England, to settle their differences by advice of his Bishops and Nobles, 600. A Prohibition to his Archdeacon of Oxon; exacting annual procurations against Law from the Kings Church of St. Cross, 602. Causes Wesham Dean of Lincoln to be elected Bishop of Cowetre and Lichfield, without the Kings license or consent, in opposition to the King, who was consecrated by the Pope at Lyon against the Kings will, He injuriously seized upon his Church of Alisbury, by whose opulency he thought the Dean took horns against him, to humble and subject him to his will, for which the King was highly offended, 625, 626, 627. A person of an unquiet, contentious spirit, his hand being against every one, and every ones almost against him, 629. After many Letters, and inestimable expence of monyes, he purchased Pope Innocent the 4th. his Decree against the Canons of Lincolne to visit the Dean, Chapter, Canons Clerks of the Quire; Choristers, Priests and Parishioners of the Churches belonging to them, to correct their excesses, reform their manners; but freely without any 'procurations, 629, 630. He and other Bishops meet to consult about the desolation of the Church, the election of a new Pope long deferred, to send Messengers to the Emperor for that end, prescribing fasts and prayers through England, that God would provide for and relieve the Church of Rome being destitute of a Pastor, 648. Published Pope Innocent Bull throughout England, whereby he granted Donisface Archbishop of Canterbury the first years profits of all Benefices and livings which should fall voyd for 7. years within his Bishoprick, Province, till he should raise the summe of 10000 Markes, to defray the pretended Debts of his Church, at which the King at first was amazed, and exceeding angry, 683, 684. After his purchased Priviledge at Rome, to visit the Dean, Chapter, Canons of Lincolne, and their Churches, he, his Deans, Archdeacons, Officials exceedingly oppressed, vexed those of his Diocese, as well Noble as ignoble, especially religious persons, Monks, under pretext of correcting, reforming their manners; enforcing them to make inquiries, presentments, and give in testimonies upon Oath in their Visitations and Courts, against their wills, never practised before in England: Which the King hearing of by many grievous complaints, by advice of his Court and Council issued Writs of Prohibition to the Sheriffs of his Diocese, not to suffer that any Laymen in his Diocese at the will of the Bishop, or of his Archdeacons, Officials, or Rural Deans, from thenceforth to assemble in any place to make any Recognitions, Presentment, or Attestation upon their Oaths, except only in causes of Matrimony or Testament; (not of incontinency, manners, scandal) which Grosthead hearing of, asserted; That the King followed the footsteps of those in France, who had then newly broken forth into the like audacity, to cast off the Popes and Prelates extravagant Oppressions, Oaths, Censures, and entered into a Confederacy to assist each other, 698, 699, 700, 701, 702, 704, 761, 762. This obstinate Bishop and his Officers proceeding notwithstanding, the King issued forth New Writs to the Sheriffs, to prohibit all such Recognitions, Inquiries and Attestations upon Oath, 704. which he and his Officers obstinately persisting in; the King issued several Writs to attach, summon the Bishop himself by good sureties and safe pledges, to appear before him wherever he should be in England, to answer his contempt in causing Laymen and women to be cited, and compelling them by Ecclesiastical censures to appear before him, to take an Oath at his pleasure against their wills, to the great prejudice of his Crown and Royal dignity, and likewise to his grand damage, dishonour, and against the Custom of this Realm. Upon which the King issued forth this memorable Prohibition to the Bishop of Lincoln himself, reciting, We are informed, by the complaints of many, as well Great men of your Diocese, as others, that you by your Clerks and Deans, do every where cause certain poor men of your Diocese, and other Freemen, whose men or tenants soever they were, to be promiscuously cited, and draw them from divers places to sundry other places, and compell them by the power of excommunication, to appear before your said Clerks & Officers at divers places to their great burthen, when they ought to attend their plowing, husbandry, and other necessary temporal affairs: by which they are unduly impoverished and enormously vexed: And moreover, which was never heard of before, the fore-said Inquisitors (or Visitors) compell them to swear concerning the private sins of others, which were not (as is reported) to be purged by publick coercion, for which many Christians, perchance without merit, were shamefully defamed. And because these Vexations are devised against the long custom of the Realm, and a double danger hangs over the people by them, as well for the losse of their necessary labors, as by reason of the Oath taken upon the private facts of others, wherein men are deceived, by which they may easily incur the guilt of perjury; We therefore prohibit you, that from henceforth you do not cause such assemblies of the people to be made in your Diocese against the long-continued custom of our Realm: Neither also have we heard, That the Church hath used to compell any to give testimony but in certain causes, and unless any through favour, hatred, or force, shall withdraw himself from giving testimony. And know ye, that unless you shall desist from such unusual & undue vexations of our people, We cannot suffer them any longer, but shall put to our Royal hands to redresse, punish you and them. Whereupon after 7. years contest between the King, his Court, Council, Bps. by these several prohibitions, this first introducer of Visitation Oaths, Inquisitions, Excommunications, ons, & vexer of the Subjects by them was quelled, and his Innovations prevented, till Baniers time, who revived them, p. 705, 706, to 711, 761, 762. His justification of the Forged Relique and Viol of Christs blood reserved, shewed, adored at Westminster Abby, 711, 712, 713. Reprehends the King with other Prelates, in the Parliament at London, for violating the Liberties of the Church, he was bound by his office, Oath to protect, to its great impoverishing; and for his prodigal expences: refuseth to grant the King an Ayde, whereby the Parliament brake up in discontent, so as the King was enforced to go a begging for money to particular Prelates and Abbots, p. 721, 722, 723, 724. The Kings writ to him for endeavouring to remove his Clerk out of a living, to which he presented him by vacancy of the Archbishoprick of Canterbury according to the ancient right of his Crown, to put in the Popes Clerk by Provision, by the Popes order, to the manifest prejudice and enormous disinherison of the rights of his Crown, prohibiting him upon his Oath of Fealty made to him, not to attempt ought therein against his Clerk, threatening to seise his Barony, as became his Majesty, if he desisted not, 725. Published the Popes general Letters, and others granted by the Pope to the Earl of Cornwall, for the Collection of Dismes, and redemption of Vowes of persons crossed, commanding them to be diligently, speedily, effectually executed, 731, 732. An indefatigable injurer of Religious persons: summons all of them to appear before him, purchaseth with a vast sum of money at Rome a privilege to reduce all their Lands for which they could produce no good evidences, under his own power: many of them appeal against him to the Pope, others compound with him, 737. Goes in person to Rome to dismise the Appeals and complaints against him. Failing of his ends after many travels, and infinite expences, he taxed the Pope with injustice and corruption; who recriminating, charged him with Tyranny, Rapine, Covetousnesse, suppressing, spoiling others, and many religious persons, to advance, enrich himself; whereupon he departed confounded from the Popes presence, but continued still at his Court, hoping to effect his designs yet failed therein, 737. Excommunicates the Sheriff of Kutland for not taking and imprisoning a Clerk upon his Significavit, whom he deprived for incontinence, and excommunicated for contumacy in continuing in his benefice notwithstanding his deprivation, contrary to the Rights of the Crown. The Kings Writ, & Popes Letter to him to absolve the Sheriff, not to molest the Kings Officers, who ought by Law to be punished in his own Courts only, 738. His high contempt against the King, in holding plea of temporal causes in his Courts, against the Law, Kings prohibitions, in prohibiting his Clerks to appear or answer their contents in the Kings Courts for disobeying his Prohibitions, and attachments on them, to the subversion of his royal authority and rights of his Crown; which he neither would nor ought to suffer, for which he was highly incensed, p. 739, 740. Crossed in his exorbitant proceedings by the Kings Prohibitions, and in his appeals to the Pope, he resolved to retire from the world, and quit his Bishoprick, yet retains it only in spight to the King, that he might not seise the Temporalties by its vacancy, 740. Held his exorbitant Visitations by colour of Pope Innocents Bull, which prohibited Oaths and coercion which he exercised, 743, 744. Archbishop Boniface oppressed Canons and others he visited, by his example, 754. A prohibition to him not to hold plea of Chattels in his Ecclesiastical Court, for which there was a suite pending before the Barons of the Exchequer, 747. His Visitation of Religious Houses within his Diocese with austerity, inhumanity, he violently searching these Chambers, breaking open their Chests, Cabinets, overturning their beds, trampling their Cups under feet, thundering out execrable horrid maledictions against all who transgressed his Edicts, but pronouncing Blessings on those who kept them taken out of Moses Laws, as if his were equal to them, 761. He enjoined all Priests to live continently, to remove all suspected women far from them; depriving transgressors of their benefices: allured many with flattering words to turn Priests, ibid. frequently preached to the people; compelled Priests living near to hear his Sermons under penalties; hated dishonest Romans having Popes provisions like the poyson of Serpents; said, he should play the Devil if he committed the cure of souls to such; oft times throwing away such Bulls of the Pope, refusing to execute them, 762. Publickly opposeth the Disme granted by the Pope to the King for 3. years, with much scorn, great indignation, induced the other Bishops to withstand it, for which the King was highly incensed, 771. The Parliament thereupon dissolved with high indignation and discontent, 774, 795. Forced Priests, Schoolmasters to take orders, reside on their benefices; and procured a Bull for augmenting the Stipends of small Vicars; out of Religious persons impropriations, out of hatred to them, 774, 775. Suspended his Bishoprick for opposing the Popes provisions, and trampling them under feet, 762, 777, 790. Computes the Revenues of the Roman provisions in England, which amounted to 700000 marks a year, being three times more then the Kings Revenue, 777. A Mandate to him to admit the Kings Clerk, or else to summon him to appear before the King for his contempt, 781. Joined with other Bishops in the publick excommunication of the infringers of the Churches Liberties and Great Charter, which he commanded to be published in every parish Church throughout his large Diocese, which made most mens ears to tingle, hearts to tremble, 796, 797, 802. He opposeth the Popes Letters for an Ayde to the King, exciting all the Bishops unanimously to withstand it, which they did, notwithstanding the Kings and Popes petitions to them, 795, 796. His notable Epistle to Pope Innocent the 4th. against Provisions, Non-obstantes, with other corruptions, comparing him to Lucifer, Antichrist, the Murderers of Christ, &c. The Popes Oaths, indignation, intentions against him for it, though perswaded to passe it by, 799, 802, 803, 926, 927. His great learning and skill in tongues, 801. His sickness at Bugden, actions; discourses against the Popes, Court of Rome, Legates, Cardinals, Priests, and Monks corruptions, rapines, avarice, usury, indulgences during it, stiles, proves them to be Hereticks, Antichrist few Popes to be saved: that they cannot reverse the Bulls, Constitutions of their predecessors, 801, 802, 803, 804. An open Reprover of the Pope, King, Prelates, Monks; Mall, contemner of the Romans, &c. His death, Musick heard at it, ib. The Pope intended to dig up, cast out his corps, burn his bones, declare him an infamous Ethnick, Rebel, Disobedient person throughout the world; writ a Letter to K. H. 3. to that effect. His apparition, words to the Pope the next night, whom he smote with his pastoral staff, terrified, pricked him to the heart, killed, 804, 805, 811. 469, 802. Being excommunicated by the Pope he appealed him to appear before Christs Tribunal, ibid. His miracles famous, yet not canonized a Saint by the Court of Rome for opposing its corruptions, 805. The difference between the Archbishop of Canterbury and Canons of Lincoln after his death, 805. The Rebels in the Isle of Ely stiled him a Saint, affirmed they followed his doctrine, 1082. He encouraged the Barons and Earl of Leicester (who committed his children to him) in their wars against King H. 3. affirmed the peace of the Church could not be settled without the material sword, p. 1022. One of the Bishop of Darbours provisors to retain 3. Mannors of his Bishoprick during life, upon his surrender thereof, 724. The Popes principal Commissioner, Agent to publish his general Letters through all Bishopricks for a collection of Dismes, and redemption of Vows, for Richard Earl of Cornwall, 731, 742. The Popes command to him to absolve William Beauchamp the Kings Sheriff of Worcester, and others, from an Excommunication denounced by him against them, for things belonging to the Kings Court, to his prejudice, or else the Archbishop to absolve them; a Patent of Procuracion by the King thereupon, 735. The Kings Letter to the Pope to call him to an account for the Crosse-money and redemption of Vows received or distributed, 738. Appointed one of the preachers of the Crosse to all the Londoners summoned to Westminster by the King, 766. Joynes with Bishop Grossthead in opposing a Tax and Disme granted by the Pope to the King, 771. Collectors assigned in his Bishoprick for the Disme granted the King in Parliament, 814. Writs to them to hasten the Collection, 917, 1034. Protested, he would rather be hang'd then yield to such an insupportable exaction as Rustand demanded for the Pope, from the English Prelates and Clergy, 823. Excommunicated some of the Sheriff of worcesters Bailiffs, for distreining upon his Lands; after which an Attachment and Distingas issuing against him for this contempt, he released his Excommunication; whereupon the King suspended his Attachment and Distingas, 860. One of the Kings Counsil; the Bishop of Ely his Will produced under his Seal, 965. A Writ to him to sequester the Benefices of John Waterland, an accountant and debtor to the King, 978. A Writ to his Official prohibiting the citing of any of the Kings Clerks to answer for their Benefices out of the Realm, 981. One of the Kings Proxies and solemn Nuncios before the French King and Popes Legate, Arbitrators of the differences between him and his Barons, 1001. Peremptorily adhered to the Barons Constitutions at Oxford, against the King; asserted, that the King having sworn to them, the Pope had no power to absolve him from his Oath, nor reverse those Provisions made and sworn to by common consent; drawing with him many false Prophets into this his error, ravenous Wolves in Sheeps clothing, against the Vicar of Christ, and the Lords anointed their own King, muttering not what the Holy Ghost gave them to utter, but what the object of the supreme power (this Bishop) to gain say, 1016. The night before the battle of Lewes he absolved Simon Earl of Leicester, and all his Souldiers, Complices, from all their sins, commanding them upon the remission of their sins to fight manfully for justice the next day, promising entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven to all who dyed in that cause, 1012. Publickly excommunicated by name in the Council of Northampton by the Popes Legate, for siding with, and encouraging the Barons against the King; He soon after dyed basely, 1018.

Gulstif Gifford, the Kings Chancellor, elected Bishop; one of the 6. persons chosen in and by the Parliament at Kenelworth, to elect 6. more, who upon their Oath were to draw up Articles tending to peace and settlement between King H. 3. and those who had been and then were in armes again him; who thereupon drew up the Statute of Kenelworth, 1019. The King upon his election presently granted him the profits of the Bishoprick during the vacancy, belonging to the Crown of antient right, towards the repair of the houses and edifices then fallen to decay; gave him a special license to fence his houses within the Close at Worcester, and at Widdington in Gloucestershire, with a wall of stone, lime, and battlements in form of a Castle, by two special Patents; and so to hold them to him and his successors for ever, without question or impediment of him or his Heirs, 1038, 1064. His seal and testimony to Pope Martin the 4th, his acquaintance for 4000. Marks received from King Edward the 1. by his Agents for his use, for some years arrears of the annual rent granted by King John to the Pope and Church of Rome, 312, 313.

This Index (with those in the other Tomes when finished) will adde a considerable Supplement to the defects, and rectifie some mistakes in Francis Godwin his Catalogue of the Bishops of England.

An Index of the Irish Archbishops, Bishops, Archbishops, Bishops

INDEX 4. Of the Archbishops, Bishops, Archbishops, Bishops, Clergy of the Kingdom of Ireland in general and particular, and all matters concerning them, mentioned in this Tome; which will add some Supplement to James Ware his Book, De Præsulibus Hybernæ.

Matters in general. A Writ to the Chief Justice of Ireland, that no Benefice or Ecclesiastical living belonging to the King in Ireland, shall be conferred without his privy and assent, to the prejudice of his Crown, as was lately practised in his and his Fathers days, to the derogation of his Prerogative, p. 378. A Writ to all the Archbishops and Bishops in Ireland, to attempt nothing to the prejudice of the Crown, in conferring Prebendaries belonging to the King during the vacancies of their Sees, 401. Writs to all the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, to levy the 15th. part of their goods, granted the King by the Pope for his relief, 406, 407. To the Archbishops of Ireland, to admit no Bishops or others to any Dignities belonging to Cathedral within their Provinces, unless they first have the Kings special Letters Patents to elect, and afterwards his assent to their elections, 407. The King to have the custody of all Bishopricks in Ireland during their vacancies, and that their Tenants ought to sue in his Courts for Justice, of which ancient Prerogatives the Irish Bishops endeavoured to deprive him; his Letters to the Pope, and his Proctors against this attempt, 428. See Limerick. Prohibitions that no election should be made in any voyd Cathedral in Ireland, without the Kings special license first had, since it tended to the dishonouring of him and his Heirs, 481. The Kings Writ to all Chapters of the Freers Minorites in Ireland, that no Freer of their Order should be elected an Archbishop or Bishop in Ireland, nor consecrated though elected, which the King assented to, 632, 633. To the Chief Justice not to suffer J. de Frussa the Popes Nuncio to exercise any other Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in Ireland, but to collect the Dismes for relief of the Holy Land, and absolve those who layd violent hands on Clerks, although the Prelates would suffer it, 634. A Writ to the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland summoned to the Council of Lyons, not to assent to any thing to the Kings or Kingdoms prejudice, 640, 641. A Writ of King H. 3. for a Cup to be provided to keep the Eucharist in, for every Cathedral in Ireland, by his Chief Justice, 798. To the Archbishops and Bishops to certify who, and what number of persons had there taken up the Crosse for the Holy Land, 807, 808. Writs to all Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, Archdeacons, Officials, Deans, and other Prelates in Ireland, to assist the Collectors of the Dismes there for relief of the Holy Land, 815. and satisfaction of the Queen and Pope, 1049, 1054. A Writ to Prince Edward to redresse several grievances and oppressions complained of by the Bishops and Clergy of Ireland, to the prejudice of their Liberties, by advice of the Chief Justice and others of the Kings Council, 827, 828. Pope Alexanders Bull for that purpose, upon complaint of the Archbishop of Tuam and his Suffragans, to excommunicate the Kings Justices, Bayliffs, as well as others, for their proceedings at Law against their Clerks and Tenants, notwithstanding the Kings Prohibitions; with the Kings Proctors protestations against it, and the Bishops holding Plea of Advousons in Ireland, as derogatory to the Kings Prerogative, which they endeavoured to procure from the Pope, 857, 858, 859. A Prohibition for Archbishops, Bishops, and Ecclesiastical Judges in Ireland, to hold Plea in their Ecclesiastical Courts of Advousons of Churches, Chapples, Lay-see, or Goods not given in Marriage or Testament, Appendix p. 34, 35.

Aden, Alledon, Aland Bishoprick, Bishops.

THe Bishops complaint to the King against his Justices oppression of him and his Tenants, in citing them out of their Counties and Provinces, in hindring the Wish to make Wills, take up the Crosse, and distraining them to make suit in causes which concerned them not, 827, 828. The Popes Bull upon his and other Bishops complaints, to redresse their grievances, excommunicate the Kings Justices, Bayliffs; and Kings Proctors appeal against their Excommunication of them, for executing their Offices, as against his Crown and Dignity, whereupon the Excommunication was agreed to be suspended as to the Justices, 857, 858, 859.

Ardacan Bishoprick, Bishops.

An Appeal against this and other Bishops electing an Archbishop of Ardmach, without the Kings license, against his Right and Dignity, 240.

Ardmach Archbishoprick, Archbishops.

Its Suffragans, their actions against the Kings Right and Dignity, by electing Eugenius Archbishop without his privy or license; his appeal, Writs against it; A Prohibition issued to all Archbishops, Bishops, others of his Diocese, not to receive or own him as Archbishop, 240, 241. A Writ to the Archbishop to collect the 15th. part of all Ecclesiastical and Religious persons goods in his Province, granted by the Pope to the King for his ayde, 406, 407. A second Writ to that purpose, to proceed therein with all diligence without delay, 422, 423. Cueren Bishoprick subject to it, 604. A Prohibition to the Archbishop, not to cite any out of the Realm, nor proceed in his Ecclesiastical Court in a case of the Prior of Lentan for Advousons or Lands, belonging to the Kings Temporal Court, which he would by no means suffer, since thereby he might utterly cast down and enervate his Crown and Dignity, which he ought by no means to will, if there were loyalty in him, 628. Power granted by the King to the Chief Justice of Ireland, to grant a license to the Dean and Chapter to chuse an Archbishop, and consent to his election, so as it might not be drawn into example, because the Pope endeavoured to deprive him of this ancient right, 690. Letters to the Archbishop to publish a Croysado, and raise monies for the Kings voyage to the Holy Land, 735.

St. Patrick Archbishop of Ardmach, Christs apparition, gifts to him; and his Purgatory, p. 69.

D. Archbishop of it: The Kings Writ to him to admit and consecrate a Bishop, to whose election he had given his Royal assent for that time, though elected only by his Chief Justice license, without his own first craved and obtained, which ought to have been, 474. The Archbishop complained against by the Bishop of Clogher, for grievances, spoliations of Land, Churches of him and his Tenants, imprisoning his men, as excommunicated by the Kings Letters, since the Archbishop circumvented the King therein by his Proctors, he and his Tenants being then in truth excommunicated, as the King was certified by other Bishops, to whom the cause was referred to be examined: Writ to the Chief Justice to right him and them according to Law, 481.

Audelmus of Colen, consecrated at Westminster Archbishop of Ardmach, (Primate of all Ireland) in King Henries and the Popes Legates presence, 566.

A. Archbishop; licensed by the King to repair to the Court of Rome for his Churches affairs; a protection from suits granted him for a time, 808. Consecrates a Bishop elected without the Kings license, approbation, command to the prejudice of the Crown; a Writ to the Chief Justice to remove him, his Lay-force, and null his presentations, 816, 817.

Abraham; a person profitable to promote the Kings affairs, residing at Rome about his Churches affairs, at the Popes request was restored to the Temporalities by the Kings special grace, against custome, before he came personally to the King to do his Fealty; the profits thereof collected by his Bayliffs to be sequestered till he did his Fealty, and then delivered to him, 939, 940. He nulls the Bishop of Dunes election, which the King approves, and at his request consented to the election and confirmation of a new Bishop recommended by him to the King, 941.

Arfsen (alias Kerry) Bishoprick, Bishops.

G. approved by the King, a Writ to the Archbishop of Dublin to consecrate him, according to the Popes command, 393. He resigns his Bishoprick, 480. The Dean and Chapter electing a new Bishop without the Kings license, the King refuse to confirm the election, as null, apparently derogatory to his Crown, and contrary to custome used in all Cathedrals belonging to his Patronage, who upon every avoidance ought to petition for a license to elect, ere they proceed to chuse a Bishop; but because the Bishoprick was poor, the King granted the Archbishop of Dublin and Chief Justice power to grant them a license to elect and approve a new Bishop by his Royal favour and authority, so as the person be faithfull to him, and necessary for his land of Ireland, 480, 481.

Brendan; A Writ to the Chief Justice not to suffer the Archbishop of Cassien to disturb or implead this Bishop for any Lands or Temporal things belonging to the Kings Crown or Dignity, without special command, 603. He relinquisheth it; the Dean and Chapter petition the King for a license by sealed Letters, contrary to usage, to elect a new Bishop; which the King assented not to, but of his special grace gave power to his Chief Justice to grant them a license in his stead, so as they present the person elected to him for his confirmation, 783.

Attaden Bishoprick, Bishops.

His with other Bishops complaints to Pope Alexander, against the Kings Justices and Bayliffs grievances and proceedings in Ireland; A Bull procured to redresse them, with the Kings Proctors exceptions against some clauses therein, 857, 858. See Tuam.

Cassal, Cassel Archbishoprick, Archbishopps.

His Suffragan Bishops, 603. A Writ to the Archbishop to put the Bishop of Waterford in possession of Lismore Bishoprick, of which he was fraudulently dispossessed by a false suggestion to the King, 373, 374. Pope Honorius his command to him, upon the Kings complaint, to release his unjust Interdict of the Kings Tenants and Lands, after his appeal, within 15. dayes, else other Bishops are authorized to release it upon caution, 384.

Mauritius O'Brien Bishop of Cork, promoted by the King at the Popes request to this Archbishoprick; a Writ to restore his Temporalities, and another to him to consecrate the Bishop of Clew, 393. A Writ to restore whatever the Kings Bayliffs had received from his Archbishoprick or Clerks Lands, after the Kings first Writ of restitution, and his journey towards Rome, 397. A Writ to him to repair to Dublin, to receive and execute the Popes Mandate for a competent Ayde granted the King from the Clergy and Religious persons of Ireland, and those within his Province, 406, 407. The Kings Proctor appointed to prosecute a cause before him, as Popes Delegate, concerning the election of the Bishop of Imelin, which the King opposed, 412. The Kings Prohibition to the Archbishop, not to take advantage of any laps of time to sequester the Bishoprick of Arfsen, (by reason of the Deans and Chapters electing a Bishop without his license, which election he nulls, putting them to a new one with license) to the prejudice of his Crown and Dignity, which he would no wayes suffer, there being no neglect in him, 481. A Prohibition to the Chief Justice, not to suffer the Archbishop to sue his Suffragans or molest them for any Lands or Temporalities belonging to his Crown, but only for their Spiritualities, 602, 603. A Writ to him to promote the preaching and business of the Crosse in Ireland, 733. A Writ to prohibit the Archbishop to confirm the Bishop of Limeric, chosen without the Kings license or confirmation, and to seize his Temporalities and appeal against him if he proceeded therein, 757. A Writ to him to preach the Crosse daily by Freers Predicants, and permit the Kings Collectors to collect all Legacies, redemptions of the Crosse, and other gifts towards that expedition within his Province, 768.

David Archbishop of Cassal, confessing his error in consecrating some Bishops in his Province before the Kings confirmation, not out of fraud or malice, but ignorance, promised by his Letters Patents under hand and seal for him and his Successors, never to offend in this kind, nor to consecrate any Bishop till first elected by the Kings license, and afterwards specially confirmed by the King according to custome, 1038, 1039.

Cenanes Bishop.

The Kings appeal against him and other Bishops, conspiring to elect an Archbishop of Ardmach without his license, contrary to his Right and Dignity, 240.

Clocharen, Clocores, Cloer Bishoprick, Bishops.

The like appeal against him as next before, 240.

N. Bishop thereof, a Writ to the Chief Justice to hear his complaints against the Archbishop of Ardmach, for grievances, spoiles of his Lands, Churches, and imprisoning his Tenants, by pretext of Excommunications and the Kings Letters, wherein the Archbishop circumvented the King, and to do him full and speedy justice, 482.

Cloansenis, Clemenfis, Clauen, Clan Bishoprick, Bishops.

The like appeal of the King against him as the two former Bishops, 240. A Patent to the Dean and Chapter to elect a Bishop, so as he be an English man, 402.

Florentius, the Kings Royal assent to his election, and Mandate to the Archbishop of Cassal to consecrate him, 393.

Elyan, resigned his Bishoprick, 473.

Thomas Dean of Clan, elected by the Chief Justice his license only, without the Kings first petitioned for and obtained, which ought not to be, yet approved by reason of his poverty for this time, out of special grace; A Writ to the Archbishop of Dublin to consecrate, and Chief Justice to confirm him, 474, 475.

An Index of the Irish Archbishops, Bishops, Archbishops, Bishops.

Alanus; an Affise of Novel Disseisin was brought against him by the Bishop of Imleth, for a Tenement in Kilcompy, of which he apparently disseised him; whereupon the Bishop of Clon threatened to excommunicate the Chief Justice if he proceeded, who desisted thereupon; the King admiring at it, by special Writ commanded the Chief Justice to proceed, notwithstanding his threats, to amerce the Defendant, and give damages and possession of the Tenement to the Plaintiff, according to the Law and Custom of Ireland; to take and imprison the Judges who held plea thereof in the Ecclesiastical Court, and the Bishop too, for prosecuting the cause there against his Prohibition, in contempt of his Crown and Dignity, till they made full satisfaction to the King for such an enormous and grand contempt; and to proceed in like manner in other like cases, that he might lose none of his right, 635. See Imleth.

Daniel; the King at the earnest importunity of many great and Religious persons, gave order to his Chief Justice to restore his Temporalities, although the Dean and Chapter of Clon refused to prefer him to the King after his election, for to approve or disallow him; and without his favour proceeded by the Popes command to consecrate him, in prejudice of his Royal Dignity: Provided that the Bishop, Dean and Chapter should first give security by a Charter under their hands and seals, that they would not hereafter proceed to any election of a Bishop, without first petitioning for a license, and that after the election they should present the person elected to him and his heirs before his consecration, p. 719.

Other Bishops.

To. An Attachment against him for holding Plea in the Ecclesiastical Court of a Lay fee against the Kings Prohibition, p. 272.

Claudenis, and C'uenfert Bishops, with others under the Archbishop of Tuam, procured a Bull from Pope Alexander to excommunicate the Kings Justices and Bayliffs for inquisitions, imprisonments, and legal proceedings against them, their Tenants and Officers, notwithstanding the Kings Prohibitions: The Kings Proctors appeal and exceptions against these clauses, as contrary to the Kings prerogative, p. 857, 858.

Cork Bishops: Maurinus translated to the Archbishoprick of Cassel by the Kings license and assent, p. 391.

Curragensis Episcopus: William a Monk of Juriposte, confirmed by the Popes Legate; his confirmation approved by the King, a Writ to restore his temporalities, p. 1033.

Cumrén Bishop: Adam, subject to Armagh, 604.

D.

Dary Bishoprick, Bishops.

D'Armsis Episcopus; The Popes delegate to absolve the Archbishop of Cassel causeless interdict of the Kings men and Lands after an Appeal at the Kings complaint, in case he took it not off in 15. dayes, 384. His certificate of a Bishops consecration by the Archbishop of Dublin at Rome, 980.

Dublin Archbishoprick, and Archbishops.

Henricus Leuades; subscribes King Johs Charter in Mt. Paris of his surrender of England and Ireland to the Pope, p. 274. His protestation against it, and grief at Pandulphus trampling the first money under his feet, 274, 293, 300. Joyns in a Letter with the Barons for recalling the exiled Bishops and Stephen Langton, and their safe return into England, 277. Sent with others by the King to meet them, 278. A Writ with his Teste to deliver two imprisoned Clerks to the custody of the Popes Legat, 283. An Attachment against him for holding plea of a Lay fee in his Court against the Kings prohibition, 372. The Kings Writ to him to consecrate the Bishop elect of Astensen, according to the Popes mandate, which he approved, 393. Justice of Ireland; a Writ commanding him to proceed in a certificate to the Justices in Affise of Mordunchester where Ballardy was pleaded, to take the proofs of the plaintiff therein, notwithstanding any Appeals according to the Law, and Custom of Ireland; and to give a definitive sentence therein, that Justice might not be obstructed, the Kings Court declined, and his Jurisdiction transferred to another Judicature, 393, 394. Pope Honorius Bull to him to punish the detainers of the Kings Castles with Ecclesiastical Censures, if they refused to surrender them to him, 397. A Writ to him to collect the 5. part of all movable goods of Bishops, Abbots, Priors, and 26. of all inferior Clergymen within his Province and Ireland, according to their annual values, granted to H. 3. by the Pope, and to dispose, reserve, pay and account to the King for them; that it should not be drawn into example for the future, 406. The other Archbishops summoned to meet him at Dub in concerning it, 409. A mandate to him, when any Cathedral within his Diocese fell void, not to admit any person to vacant dignities, until it shall appear they have petitioned for, and obtained license from the King to elect, and obtained his royal assent to the election, 407. The profits of all Archbishopricks and Bishopricks which should fall voyd in Ireland, granted to him, till a debt owing him by the King was fully satisfied, p. 413. A Mandate to all Abbots, Priors, Earls, Barons, Knights, Citizens, Burgesses, and other persons within the Archbishoprick to pay Tithes of their Fishponds to their parish Priests, without expecting the Kings royal Mandate and assent, 424. A Writ to transmit to him the Constitution of Merton concerning Ballardy, that the issue born before marriage ought not to inherit Lands or Tenements, but the Brother born after marriage: That the Lord ought not to be vouched to warranty in such cases by the tenant, nor duel allowed, to proceed accordingly in Irel. 474. A special Writ to him and the chief Justice to grant a license to the Dean and Chapter of Arefaxen to elect a new Bishop for that time out of special grace, and to confirm, consecrate the person elected in his royal name and right; that his right might not be impeached; and to null their former election made without his license, which he would by no means confirm, to preserve his prerogative; to confirm, consecrate no Bishop without his precedent license to elect, & subsequent confirmation when elected, 480, 491. A Writ to him to preach the Crosse, publish the Popes Bull through all Ireland to ayde the Holy Land, by such persons as he should think meet; to reserve the Bull safe when published, in the Priory of Trinity in Dublin, where all might resort to it, and use diligence therein, 722, 733. A Writ to him to permit Stephen Langsp and his agents according to the Popes Bull to him, to collect all the monyes in Lagenia, for the redemption of the Vows of such who had taken on them the Crosse in that Province, and to assist them therein, 737. A writ to collect and unite the Dismes of Beneficed persons in Ireland by the Chief Justices advise, 763. A mandate to him to release the Excommunication he had published against Stephen Langsp, and to the chief Justice to induce him to it, 784.

Luce; the Kings Patent to him and others, with the Bishops of Northwich, Chichester, and Abbot of Westminster Letters and instructions to them concerning the business of the Crosse; and collecting the Dismes of all Ireland for relief of the Holy Land, p. 815, 816.

Ranulphus de Norwiche, Chancellor of Ireland, elected Archbishop by the Canons at Dublin, was excepted against, his election nullified in the Court of Rome, and the Electors blamed, because he was a secular person brought up in the Kings Court, sitting at the receipt of Customs, and the Archbishop bishoprick bestowed on Fulco Sandford, his Proctor at Rome, who betrayed him, 850, 852, 1056.

Fulco, established therein by the Popes assistance, after many irreparable devastations of his Archbishoprick, 852. His Official in his absence at Rome by his authority confirming the Bishop of Offory, the King upon his and two other Bishops certificates thereof, granted a Writ to restore his Temporalities, 979, 980. The King after the death of Fulco de Saunsford Archbp. of Dublin granted the issues & profits thereof to Pr. Edward, towards the expences of his voyage to the Holy Land, excepting all Knights fees, wards, reliefs, escheats, advowsons of all Abbies, Priories, Dignities, Prebends, Churches, that fell void; Writs to the Escheator and Archbishops Tenants to this purpose, 1056.

Robert de la Prevend: The King of special grace granted this privilege to him, his heirs and their Tenants in perpetual, that their goods should not be distrained in any place for debts, wherein they were not principal or sureties, unless where the debtors were within their power, p. 1017.

Dumensis, Dume Bishop.

Thomas Lidel, his election justly null'd by the Archbishop of Ardmach, who was ready by his Metropolitcal authority to confer it on Reginald Archdeacon of Dume, if the King thereto assented; the King thereupon at his request assented to him as a fit person, receives his fealty, and issued a Writ to the Chief Justice after the Archbishops confirmation of him to restore his Temporalities, and to the Archbishop to do his duty in confirming and consecrating him, p. 941.

Elfin, Elphis Bishoprick, and Bishops.

I Archdeacon of Elfin, approved Bishop elect by the Popes Ordinance in derogation of the Kings prerogative, being chosen without the Kings assent; the Archbishop of Tuam refused to consecrate him; yet because the Pope gave a laudable Testimony of him in his Letters to the King, he issued a Writ to his chief Justice to restore his Temporalities to him, p. 635.

Thomas Dean of Archada, elected Bishop of Elfin by the Dean and Chapter before they obtained a license from the King, yet the King assented to his election, to prevent danger to the Church, so as by occasion of his grace at this time, no prejudice might accrue to him for the future, nor any prerogative conferred on them, but that the Chapter of Elfin when the See became void, should have a license from the King before they went to an election, 687. He joynes in a complaint to Pope Alexander with the Archbishop and Suffragans of Tuam against the Kings Justices in Ireland, for interdicting, imprisoning, oppressing their Priests and Tenants for crimes and suspicions of crimes before confession or conviction; and binding them to appear before secular Judges; procuring a Bull to excommunicate them if they desisted not from it, notwithstanding any prohibition or constitution, p. 857, 858, 859.

Thomas made Archbishop of Tuam, p. 951. See Tuam.

Milo Archdeacon of Clos, elected by the Kings License; and none excepting against it, the King gave his assent thereto, commanding the Archbishop of Tuam to do his duty therein, and the chief Justice to restore his Temporalities, if his election was confirmed by the Archbishop. After which the Dean, Archdeacon, Treasurer, and Provost of that Church, presented Thomas Abbot of Buelie of the Cistercian order, whom they elected Bishop, to the King, by Letters Patents under their Common Seal, certifying him that the Archdeacons election was unduly made without expecting the Kings license, which the Archbishop also certified by his Letters Patents; and that by his Archiepiscopal authority he had null'd his election for certain causes: And although the King by reason of the contradiction of these their Certificates, might well doubt which of them was justly to be preferred, as duly elected, yet he assented to the Abbots election upon the Archbishops certificate, so as he more fully examined the merit of both elections, and certified the King which of them he ought to admit without violation of Law, p. 979. After this the Archbishop of Dublin confirming and consecrating Milo, and the Archbishop of Tuam, Thomas, as duly elected, Thomas appealed to the Pope, who gave a definitive sentence for Thomas, as appeared by the Popes certificate to the King: and Milo being dead, as appeared by the Archbishop of *Tuam*s Letters: thereupon the King (who suspended the restitution of the Temporalities till the controversy decided between them) issued Writs to his Escheator to restore the Temporalities to Thomas without delay, out of special grace, he receiving first in his name, an Oath of fealty, which he and all other Bishops and Prelates of the Land were bound to make, p. 991, 992.

F.

Firn Bishoprick, Bishops.

Albinus; a Writ to the Chief Justice to attach him by safe pledges and sureties to appear before him on a set day for his contempt in prosecuting a suite in the Ecclesiastical Court before the Archbishops of Dublin, Tuam, and Bishop of Clew against William Earl Marshall for his Layfee, against the Kings Prohibition to them, p. 572. A Patent to him and the Archbishop of Dublin, to promote and collect the Ayde of all the Irish Clergy granted by the Pope to the King, and to repair to Dublin to confer with the other Archbishops and Bishops concerning it, 406, 407. A Delegate of the Pope with others in the case of the Bishop of Imelic, 423.

John, a Patent for him and another to receive the profits of all Archbishopricks and Bishopricks which should fall void in Ireland, to satisfy a Debt the King owed the Archbishop of Dublin in the first place, and after that for the Kings use during pleasure, to be answered to his Exchequer, 423.

Finabernus, Finabern Bishop.

Pope *Alexander*s Bull to him his Dean and Archdeacon to compel the Kings Officers and Bayliffs in Ireland by Ecclesiastical censures, to give over their grievances of indicting, suing, and imprisoning the Archbishop of Tuam and his Suffragans Clerks and Tenants in Temporal Courts, notwithstanding the Kings prohibition, or any constitution, p. 857, 858, 859. The Kings Proctors exceptions & protest at Rome against it, as against the Kings prerogative. Ibid.

Mauricius, elected Bishop thereof by license from the King; was unwarily confirmed and consecrated Bishop by the Archbishop of the province, before and without the Kings royal assent to his election: or receiving or sending to the King for his assent: which offence and neglect the King at this time remitting, issued a Writ to the Escheator of Ireland to restore the temporalities to him, receiving Fealty first from the Bishop in the Kings name, according to usage, and Letters Patents from the Chapter, that they shall not draw the said negligence or omission into consequence; yet punishing the Metropolitans Trespass done to the King in admitting the Bishop elect without his assent, according to the quality of it, 1017, 1018.

belonged, gave way to reduce it to its pristine state; the Archbishop petitioned for the Kings favor and assent thereto; whereupon a Writ of Inquiry issued to the Chief Justice concerning it, p. 783, 784. See Tam.

I.

Imlic Bishoprick and Bishops.

A Suffragan to the Archbishop of Cassell, p. 613.

John O'Connell pretending himself Bishop elect of Imlic; the King appealing against his election, the Pope appointed the Archbishop of Cassell, Bishop of Fen, and Archdeacon of Dublin to hear and determine it, before whom the King constituted a special Proctor to defend his right p. 412.

C. A Writ to the Chief Justice of Ireland not to intermeddle, if the Archbishop of Cassell questioned him and other his Suffragans concerning their Spiritualties; but not to permit him to trouble or sue them for their Lands and Temporalities belonging to the Kings Crown and Dignity, 603.

Christians Bishop of Imlic, sued an Assise of Novel disseisin, against the Bp of Clos for a Tenement in Kylcomry of which he injuriously disseised him: The Bishop of Clos threatening to excommunicate the Chief Justice, who for fear thereof delayed to give judgement against him, and damages or possession thereof to the Bishop of Imlic, according to the Lawes and custom of Ireland; for which the King by special Writ checks, and commands him to proceed to judgement notwithstanding his threatened Excommunication or any other cause; and to imprison the Bishop of Clos, and those Judges who held plea of it in the Ecclesiastical Court against his Prohibition, Crown and Dignity, p. 635. See Clos.

L.

Limerick, Lann Bishop:

D. Bishop thereof, a Suffragan to the Archbishop of Cassell; prohibited to molest or sue him for his Lands and Temporalities held of the King, but only concerning Spiritualties. p. 603.

Lann: The Bishop one of the Popes Delegates in a case of the Election of the Bishop of Meden. The Kings prohibition and menace if he unduly proceeded therein, p. 816, 817.

Lebhis Bishops.

Archdeacon of Lebhis elected Bishop thereof after him, without the Kings precedent license required, his election declared null in Law; yet the King out of special grace, by reason of the honesty of the person, afforded him his favour & royal assent thereto, though his election were deservedly void; Upon condition, that the Chapter and Clergy of Lebhis should first make Letters Patents to the Justice of Ireland, of a license craved from him, lest it should prejudice him and his heirs in a like election in future time, p. 423, 424.

Limerick, Limbrick Bishoprick and Bishops.

Suffragan to the Archbishop of Cassell, p. 629. The Bishops of Ireland contending to deprive the King of the Liberty he and his predecessors usually enjoyed, to have the Custody of their Bishopricks during the vacancies, and that their Tenants from thenceforth should not require Justice from the Kings Court, and Pleas which were used to be brought in determined by his Writs to the prejudice and hurt of his Royal Dignity, specially sent or intended to send the Bishop of Limerick to the Popes Court to obtain these designs; whereupon King Henry the 3. sent a special Letter to the Pope not to permit any thing to be obtained or granted, by any ones suggestion against him that might hurt his rights or deprive him of his accustomed power in this behalf: but remain safe under the wings of his protection against the machinations of his Enemies; Commanding 4. Proctors manfully to resist those who would obtaine these things in the Court of Rome, so as thereby he might have cause to commend their discretion and fidelity, p. 428.

H. A Prohibition that the Archbishop of Cassell should not molest nor implead him for his Lands and Temporalities held of the King, but only for Spiritualties, p. 602, 603. A Prohibition to the Archbishop of Cassell, not to confirm a Bishop if canonically elected, in the Church of Limerick, notwithstanding the Kings royal assent was not required thereto, and to revoke whatever he had done to the Kings prejudice without delay: 716, 717. See Cassell.

Lismore Bishoprick and Bishops, Suffragans to the Archbishop of Cassell, p. 603.

R. de Belesford, by Letters patents from the Chapter of Lismore to 2. Canons thereof, was elected Bishop of Lismore, to which election the King gave his royal assent, they affirming the Church to be then void, the King issued a Writ to put him in possession thereof; while R. Bishop of Waterford, to whose Bishoprick it was annexed, was sent into England by the Popes Legates command to help consecrate the Bishop of Carlisle. The Bishop upon his return complained of this surprise to the King and Council, producing before them the instrument of J. the Popes Legat for the union of both Bishopricks; and alleged that he could not be justly put out of either of them without hearing, or summons while absent, and thus united, by a false and fraudulent suggestion: whereupon the King decreed, that the lying informer (who circumvented him) should not obtain his suit, that his fraud and guile should not patronize him; thereupon he by Writ commanded the Chief Justice of Ireland to put the Bishop of Waterford in full and speedy seisin of all possessions and goods belonging to the Bishoprick of Lismore or Waterford: The like Writ issued to the Archbishop of Cassell, 373, 374. After which the Pope referred the examination of this cause to his Legat then Bishop elect of Norwich, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and Bishop of Winchester, who by their definitive sentence adjudged R. de Belesford his election and possession to be good, legal, and that he ought to enjoy the Bishoprick; whereupon there issued a Writ to the Chief Justice of Ireland, by advice of the Council, to put the Bishop of Lismore into the possession thereof, and of all its profits without delay, p. 381, 382.

Griffis, gaining possession of the Bishoprick by pretending to the King, he was elected, and confirmed, so deceiving the King, being not confirmed; the King by Writ commanded his Chief Justice upon sight thereof, to seize into and keep safely in his hands, the Bishoprick then in Griffis possession with all the appurtenances, lands, goods, rents, possessions belonging to it, till further order, p. 412. A Writ that the Archbishop of Cassell should not molest nor sue the Bishop for any Lands or Temporalities belonging to the Crown, but only for Spiritualties, 602, 603. The Kings presentation of VV. de Kylkeny to the Church of Dangruay directed to the Bishop of Lismore, by the King, 756.

An Index of the Irish Archbishopricks, Bishopricks, Archbishopps, Bishops.

Hugo Bishop thereof having obtained confirmation, and the spiritualties and temporalities of the Bishoprick, Galfridus de Cusack pretending himself Bishop thereof, being consecrated by the Archbishop of Ardmach to the prejudice of the Kings dignity, when he neither demanded nor had the Kings consent to his election or confirmation, conferred certain Churches belonging to the Bishoprick, to the Kings and Bishops prejudice, one of them on the Chancellor of Ireland. Upon which the King issued a Writ to the Chief Justice, that he should not detain that Church, nor do such things for the future, that he should take those persons according to the Custom of Ireland, who were excommunicated by Hugo or his Officials, remove all Layforce resisting him, out of Churches: and if any menaced him or his in their goods or bodies, to take good security and sufficient pledges from them to attempt no evil against the person elected: the Archbishop and Hugo endeavouring to seclude the King and his heirs, that no license should be demanded from them to elect a Bishop in the Church of Miden, which would redound to their great prejudice, p. 816, 817.

The Bishop of Miden certifies a confirmation of the Bishop of Offory to the King, p. 980. Executor of the Dism granted to the King in Ireland, p. 1055.

O.

Offory Bishoprick, and Bishops.

The Kings grant to the Queens Chaplain of the next Prebend or benefice belonging to the Patronage of that Bishoprick which should fall voyd during the vacancy, p. 971.

Galfridus de Sancto Leodegaris his election to it confirmed by the Archbishop of Dublin official by his authority whilst absent at Rome, certified to the King by his Official and 2. Bissh Bishops; whereupon seisin of all his Temporalities is awarded him by a Writ to the Chief Justice, p. 980.

T.

Tuam Archbishoprick, and Archbishopps.

Thomas, an attachment against him and others for holding Plea of a Lay-fee against W. Earl Marshall, at the suit of the Bishop of Fern against the Kings prohibition, p. 371. Writs issued to him to levy an ayde granted upon the Clergy of Ireland by the Pope, and to repair to Dublin to receive instructions concerning it, p. 405, 406. See Dublin.

Martin Archbishop, refused to confirm or consecrate the Bishop of Elfin by the Popes order, without the Kings consent, p. 635. A Petition to the King for a license to elect a new Bishop after his death, the Chief Justice commanded to grant one freely, yet to require them to elect such a one who might be fit for their Church, profitable to the kingdom of Ireland, and faithfull to the King, 735. A mandate to the Archbishop to employ Freers Predicants daily to preach the Crosse, and collect Legacies, redemptions of the Crosse, and all monies belonging to that affair, p. 768. The Archbishop requested the King that the Church of Henneshdun, alias Eanden, formerly belonging to his See, but having two Bishops successively placed in it as a Cathedral, might become parochial as at first, as the Pope had ordained; the examination thereof referred by Writ to the Chief Justice: the value of the Lands and Edifices belonging to the Church to be enquired after, to be exchanged for other Lands of like value, that the King might build a Castle there: The Patronage of the Church to remain at present in the Kings hands, whose license was required for election and confirmation of the Bishops there: till enquiry made who were the ancient patrons: To inquire what land belonged to the Church before it was made a Bishoprick: that the Archbishop should have the lands belonging to him of right, and be assisted with favour to recover his right in the Kings Courts against the Tenants, 783, 784, 818.

Five Articles of Complaint & Grievance of *Florentius Archbishop thereof, his Suffragans and Clergy, whereby the Church of Ireland was enormously oppressed, grieved, defrauded of its rights, Liberties by the Kings Justices, Sheriffs, other Officers, and some Irish Barons, referred by the King to Prince Edward, to examin and redress, by the advice of his Chief Justice, other discreet men of his Council there, and of the Archbishopps, Bishops, Abbots, Barons, Justices, and all the great men of Ireland, to be assembled for that purpose with all convenient expedition, in such sort as should be most expedient for the Churches indemnity, his and the Land of *Ireland*s profit, tranquillity: So as the glory of the Church might encrease by him, and the beginning of his new government might receive more increase of praise, 817, 818.

Walter de Lundie Dean of Pauls being made Archbp, the Pope granted him the profits of all his former livings (by way of Commenda) for two years, not excepting his former grant to the King of all Dignities and livings falling void for 5. years, towards his expedition to the Holy Land; whereupon the King issued a Writ to his proxies not to collect the fruits of the Deanary and Prebendary of London, or other benefices before his promotion by this Commenda, which if they presumed, they should answer them to him, p. 913. He being made Archbp. by the Popes provision without the Kings license, the King refused to restore his temporalities to him; at last he permitted his Bailiffs to dwell in the houses, and manure the Lands belonging to the Archbishoprick; yet so, that all the profits and rents thereof should be sequestered, laid up, and safely kept in certain places within the Archbishoprick without diminution, untill the Archbishop should come to the King, and do his Fealty in person to him. Which he accordingly performing, the King restored him to his grace, favour, Archbishoprick, with the Temporalities, and profits thereof from the time of the sequestration, by a Writ to the Chief Justice of Ireland, 939.

Thomas (O Connor) Bishop of Elfin, being elected and confirmed Archbishop of Tuam by the Pope, as the Pope certified the King by his Letters, he approving and confirming his translation, sent Writs to his Chief Justice and Escheator of Ireland, to give him full seisin of all his Temporalities and possessions without delay; and to all the Tenants of the Archbishoprick, to obey and answer him as their Lord, 956. The King receiving contrary Certificates concerning the elections of two persons to the Bishoprick of Clon, commanded the Archbishop to confirm and consecrate him he had certified to be duly elected, yet to inquire further of the election, and give him a fuller account thereof, that the King might know which of the two to admit without injury of right, 979. See Clon. After which one of them being confirmed and consecrated by the Archbishop of Dublin, the other by the Archbishop of Tuam, who upon his appeal to the Pope had his definitive sentence to be duly elected and confirmed; the King upon the Popes certificate, issued a Writ to his Escheator to give him seisin of the Temporalities without delay, p. 991, 992. See Elfin.

King the Church was void, elected and presented a new Bishop to him, whom he confirmed and restored the Temporalities to; but upon complaint of the Bishop of Waterford, and proof of the Union, restored him to the possession thereof. Upon an Appeal to the Pope, the Bishop of Notwich elect then his Legate, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Bishop of Rochester to whom he referred the examination of the cause, resolved the Union to be void; the election and confirmation of the other good; whereupon the King restored him to the possession of Lisnor; and the other to all the possessions and Temporalities belonging only to Waterford, p. 373, 374, 381, 382. See Lisnor.

Philip Dean of Waterford being elected Bishop thereof, whom the Pope approved to be Bishop, the King thereupon granted him his Royal assent and favour: And because he had done fealty to the King, he issued Writs to his Chief Justice to give him full seisin of the Temporalities thereto belonging, according to usage, and to all Tenants of the Bishoprick to be intendant and respondent to him, p. 784. King H. 3. being in Gascony, granted a license to elect to the Dean and Chapter of Waterford, yet to spare their labour and expenses of sending thither for a confirmation after the election made, he commanded his Chief Justice of Ireland, when the person they required or elected should be presented to him, he should give the royal assent and favour to him; yet so, as the King might have no reason to suspect his loyalty; and to restore him full seisin of the Bishoprick, and all Temporalities thereto belonging, when he was confirmed, having first received the due and accustomed Fealty to the King from him; and that he should take care he received Letters Patents from the Dean and Chapter, containing, that they should not draw this grace of the King into consequence in future times, p. 818.

An Alphabetical Index of the Popes of Rome, their actions, &c.

294, 431. This Tribute payd, and a Disme promised him in England and Ireland by King H. 3. his Proctors, to null Hervshams election, and promote Richard to the Archbishoprick of Canterbury, which he did thereupon, 307, 308, 419, 420. The Kings Letters to him and his Cardinals, to assist him in his extraordinary Affairs; his payment of the arrears of the annual rent on that account, 308, 309. He nulls the election of the Bishop of Durham by the Monks, rejects the person recommended by the King, and promotes another, 406. Grants an Ayd to the King from the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priores, Clergy in England and Ireland, 406, 407, 422. Pronounces a general Excommunication against all who hinder any to passe to, or repasse from Rome; his Bull to that purpose to the French Bishops, King, not to hinder the King of Englands Nuncios or Subjects from going thither, or returning thence, 408. Presseth a Croysado by his Bulls, privately intended against the Emperor Frederick, 408, 409. He injuriously Excommunicates the Emperor Frederick, Interdicts his Territories, without hearing or conviction, in all Countries, places, for not going personally to the Holy Land, when hindered by sickness, inevitable weighty affaires of the Empire, and the Civil Wars he raised against him; He most unchristianly hired, employed Johā de Brennes to seise on, and deprive him of his Empire, during his absence in the Holy Wars against the Saracens; for which treachery the Emperor stirred up a great sedition against him, seising upon the Churches pretended Patrimony, Cities, Castles, anciently belonging to the Empire, caused the Romans to expell him out of Rome, pursue him to Viterbium, and from thence to Perusium, he having no other means to revenge himself, but to excommunicate his persecutors: His Bull of the Emperors Excommunication, 409, 410, 411, 412, 414, 415, 416, 417. The Emperors Letters of vindication against it to the King of England, and all other Christian Kings, shewing how this Pope Gregory inflamed with apparent covetousnesse, lust, not satisfied with Ecclesiastical goods, revenues, attempted without fear to disinherite Emperors, Kings, Princes, and make them Tributaries, as his predecessor Innocent 3. did King John, and the Earl of Tholouse, keeping them so long under Excommunications and Interdicts, till he reduced them under his Vassallage; His and the Roman Courts, Churches execrable Symonies, various new Exactions, never formerly heard of; their manifest and secret Usuries towards the Clergy, hitherto unknown, wherewith they infected the whole world; their manifold snares to illa-queate all and every person, cheat them of their monies, liberties, rights, disturbe their peaceable lives, being meer ravenous Wolves in Sheeps cloathing; with his serious exhortation to all Princes throughout the world, to provide against so great avarice, iniquity, Antimonarchical designs, 414, 415. He sent his Legates abroad into all places, only to excommunicate, suspend, punish those who were potent; extort monies, pillage Churches, and rashly to invade others Empires, Kingdoms, though he and they were base, unworthy persons, whose learning and ambition made them mad, 414, 415. He against the Law of Christ decreed to conquer the Emperor with the Material, when as he could not cast him down by the Spiritual Sword; with what consideration or conscience the Emperors Friends, Clergy admired, 416, 417. He daily pro forma excommunicated robbers, incendiaries, tormentors of Christians; yet gave consent, yea authority to such to invade and War against the Emperor, 417. He caused the Prelates, Clergy in Jerusalem, not to say Masse in the City, nor to communicate with the Emperor whiles in it, when he recovered it from the Saracens, because he had injuriously Excommunicated him; yea suborned the Templars and Hospitalers to betray him to the Soldan, after his conquest of the Saracens; He dispersed scandalous Letters to defame him as an Apostate, &c. and most greedily raised monies, forces in all places to dethrone him, 418, 419, 424, 425. He reputed all the Emperor did in the Holy Land as nothing, moved War against him, asserting, it was just, necessary for the Christian faith, that so strong a persecutor of the Roman Church, his Mother, should be deposed from the Imperial dignity, 425. He exacted a Disme from England, Ireland, Wales, and all other Sons of the Church, to carry on his begun War against the Emperor to depose him, because the wealth of the See Apostolicke was not sufficient; lest if the Church of Rome miscarried in this design, her Members should seem to be vanquished with their head, 425, 426. King H. 3. his Letter to him concerning the Emperors Excommunication, and reconciliation to him, 425, 426. He continues his Excommunication notwithstanding his actual voyage to the Holy Land, 426. Maligins the Emperors victories over the Saracens in the Holy Land, stirs up the Templars and Hospitallers against him, 428. His Decree concerning the Monks of Cowenby and Canons of Litchfield electing the Bishop by turns, 428. The Kings and Bishops Letters to him against Hervshams election to the Archbishoprick of Canterbury, 429. Preiers Richard to it at the Kings and Bishops requests, not by election, but provision and donation, 429. His Bull concerning it; his love to, prayes of Canterbury Church, Becket, Langton, 420. He introduced the first Papal Provisions in History or Record, 420, 778, 779. He sent the Archbishop of Armenia into England, with Letters of recommendation to the Prelates and Religious persons, 421. His dispensation with some of the Kings Clerks to hold Pluralities, 422. Constitutes Delegates upon the Kings appeal against the Bishop of Imole his election, 422. Interposed in the Truce between France and England, which he was to confirm when they had agreed on the Articles, 423. Sends his Legate into England to collect a Disme for him against the Emperor Frederick, whom he defamed by his Letters in all places, 424, 425. His Bull for this Disme, wherein he styles Rome, the Mother of all Churches, who were bound to assist her; it is levied with greatest rigour by Ecclesiastical censures, according to the full value of Ecclesiastical livings, and money of full weight, 426, 427. Invades the Emperors Dominions, Cities by Johā de Brennes the second time, whiles absent in the Holy Wars, whom he fed with money; the Emperor on his return defeating him, recovered his Territories, marched to Rome with his Army, forcing this Pope to absolve him, and restore the rights of the Empire he had invaded, 427, 428. He and the Emperor reconciled, he feasted the Emperor, Cardinals, Nobles three dayes together in his Palace at Rome, ibid. King H. 3. appeals to him against the encroachments of the Irish Bishops on the rights of his Crown, 428. His Letter to King H. 3. to bestow a pension of 40 Marks a year on one of his Italian Brekers, 428, 429. Richard Archbishop of Canterbury, complains to him against the King and Hubert his Chief Justice, for maintaining the Kings Prerogative in a case of Wardship, wherein he sided with the Archbishop against the King, granting whatever he desired, 430. He endeavoured to wrest the power of electing, confirming the Archbishop of Canterbury by the Kings license, out of his hands, to conferre it on whom he pleased; nulls the election of Ralph the Kings Chancellor by the Monks, approved by the King, without alledging any cause but his own Papal pleasure; commanding the Monks to make a new election by clauses prejudicial to his Prerogative, 431. The Kings Inhibition thereupon to the Monks, to do nothing therein to the prejudice of his Crown, nor go to a new election without his special license, 431. Nulls their Priors new election by the Kings license, because because old, too simple to govern that Church nullified their third election of Blondus, approved by the King, because he held two Benefices without his license, 433. Commanded the Monks at Rome to elect Edmund, to whom he sent a Pall; who refused to do it without the Kings license; they and the King at last enforced to accept of him for Archbishop without any election, 433, 434. The corn, goods of his foreign Clerks by provisions, publicly threshed out and sold by a general insurrection against them, 434, 435, 436. The Pope very angry at the tidings thereof, writes biting Letters to the King for not punishing the offenders, contrary to his Coronation Oath; threatens to Excommunicate him if he did not exemplarily punish them to deterre others; commanding some Bishops and Abbots to Excommunicate all they found guilty thereof, till absolved by himself: Whereupon sundry found guilty by Inquisition were imprisoned, others forced to fly, 436, 437, 438, &c. Habert de Burgo his Mannors sequestered to give them satisfaction, he removed from his Chief Justiceship for conniving at, confederating with these Rioters, and not punishing them, 438. His Bull for visiting all Religious Orders, Houses in all places, for their vices, corruptions, by his special visitors; their severe proceedings therein, appeals against them, 440, 441, 442. His Letters on behalf of Hugh de Burgo, 443. King Henry submits himself at his command to prolong the Truce with France for three years, to ayd the Holy Land, 446, 447. His abusive Bulls to all Christians for the ayd of the Holy Land, only to extort monies upon that pretext; levied by, and paid to his own Agents, to be employed against the Emperor Frederick; promoted by Freers without the names of Nuncios, yet having their power, and authority to absolve men from their Vows for money when crossed, and to compell them to pay their monies by Excommunications, Interdicts; the Indulgences therein contained, 447, to 451, 466, 367. He propounds a marriage between Isabella King Henrys Sister and the Emperor, his Letters concerning it; the Kings answer to him, and submitting himself to the Jurisdiction, censures of the Pope and Roman Church, in case he failed to pay the marriage portion promised, 450, to 455. King Henry 3. sends Proctors to him concerning his own Marriage-Treaty, to be ratified by his Papal authority, dispensation, which he prayed, 454. Humbly resorted to him for counsil, refuge upon all emergent occasions; his over-submissive Procurations, Letters to that purpose, 454, 455. His remonstrance to him of grievances by Philip Earl of Britain, in seising his Castles, Lands, and revolting from his Allegiance, and prayer to compell him to give him satisfaction; who instead thereof employed him in his Wars, 455, 456. His Letter to the King for receiving the Bishop of Winton into England, who fled out of it, was sent for by him to Rome to supply him with monies, and ayd him in his Wars, being a better Souldier then Preacher, which he is content to do at the Popes request, 456, 457. His Legate prohibited to enter into Ireland without the Kings command, 458. His encroachments upon the elections and confirmations of Abbots; his new Oath of Fealty exacted from the Abbot of St. Albans, to the prejudice of the Crown, Churches, Abbots Priviledges; his Bulls, and his Delegates proceedings therein, 458, to 467. Published new compendious Decretals to get monies, and usurp a legislative power over the world, 457. He set up, countenanced Usurers called Cambui, in all places, especially in England, to whom most Prelates, Abbots were bound in strange Obligations, to raise monies for his use; protected by him against the Bishop of London, whose threats to excommunicate and banish them the City they derided, 467, to 470. The insolency, cruelty, secular employment of the Freers Minorites against their Orders, by his countenancing them, 469, 470. King H. 3. by his Bull endeavours to revoke sandy of his grants, as if unable to make them without his consent, 470, 486. His frequent abuse of Croysado's, and new wayes to raise money by dispensing with Vows, and perverting it to his own use, to the great scandal of many, discovered, declamed against, 470, 471. Confirmed the Archbishop of Rome election, which the King approved, 482. His license to hold Pluralities to such of the Kings Clerks as he should appoint, 483. The miserable estate of Engl and by his Agents, Bulls, Provisions to unlearned vicious Foreigners; extortions, symony, abuse of Ecclesiastical censures, being made a common prey by his Hypocritie, Tyranny, 484. The Greek Church rejects his pretended authority over them; separated from the Church of Rome for his and her avarice, symony, corruptions, and claims superiority over it; against whom he grants a Croysado, and sends Souldiers to reduce them, 484, 489, to 494. He sends Otto at the Kings request into England, under pretext to reform abuses, who proved a ravenous wolfe, 485, &c. See Ind. x. 12. Opposed by Archbishop Edmund, as prejudicial to his Archiepiscopal authority, ibid. The Nobles refuse to grant King H. 3. an Ayd, publicly reprehend him in Parliament, for saying publicly and secretly, he could dispese, exchange or alien nothing in his Kingdom without the Popes or Legates consent, as if he were not King, but the Popes Feudatory, Vassil, as many stiled him, 470, 485, 486, 504, 505. He Decrees St. Edwards Feast to be publicly observed; His Canonization of Francis and Dionisick for Saints published, and that his Legates Decrees in Councils should be valid after his Legateship ended, 488. Recalls his Legate Otto from England, by reason of the commotions against him for his rapines; the Kings supplication for his stay notwithstanding them, 492, 493, 505. Gives sentence for the Monks of Rocheſter and Earl of Arandel at Rome, against Archbishop Edmund, awarding them costs of suit; yet granted him a privilege to the prejudice of the Monks of Canterbury, whom he oppressed by it, 498, 499. His unjust sentence by bribery against the Canons in the cause of Alenor, married to the Earl of Leicester against her vow of chastity; and in case of the Monks and Bishop elect of Winton, upon appeals to him, 498, 500, to 504. His Statutes concerning the reformation of the black Monks, and proceedings on them, 503, 504. His sharp Letter, Bull to King H. 3. for giving, alienating the Lands of the Crown to Bishops, Abbots, Nobles, others, to the prejudice of the See Apostolick, to whom the Realm of England belonged, and command to resume them notwithstanding his improvident Charters & Oath, 504, 505. His Legate not permitted to enter Scotland by the Scots King, 486, 506. Sir Robert Tynng his complaint to the King, Nobles in Parliament, of his oppression, fraud, in depriving him of his presentation to his only Church, by a Provision; their Letters to the Pope on his behalf, 497, 506, 507. His insatiable avarice, depriving of Laymen, Ecclesiastical and Religious persons of their presentations, by Provisions, conferring them on strangers; and other grievances complained against by all the Nobles in Parliament; their Letters to him to reform them, with his answer thereto, 506, 507, 508. His Letter to his Legate concerning moderation of Provisions, not to grant advowsons of Lty Patrons by the Popes authority, without their assents, 508, 778, 779. Peter Saracen his Agent in England, taken, imprisoned by the Emperor till ransomed; He refused to pay his ransom, writ to, moved King H. 3. to pay it; his discontent therat, 508, 509. The Dean and Chapter of Lincoln appeal to him against their Bishops Visitation of them, 509. The Monks of St. Albans offer a sum of money at his feet, which he gratefully received, to consent their their Priors election; They bribe his Cardinals, Agents of all sorts, who would do nothing for the Kings or others Letters, without great gifts; for which they would not so much as invite them to a small dinner, 461, 463. He prohibited the ordination, preferment of Bastards, Pluralities, &c. only to gain monies for dispensations in such cases by the See Apostolick, which alone must grant them, 467, 753. The Grecians set up Germanus Patriarch of Constantinople as an Antipope against him, who denied his Supremacy, renounced him and the Church of Rome, for their detestable symonies and corruptions, 490, 491, 512, 513, 643, 752. The Emperor opposed against him Heliar, chief of the Freers Minors, a most famous preacher, who absolved all this Pope had bound with an Anathema; who had rendred the Church of Rome infamous by symony, usury, various rapines, and became a step-father to her sons; thrusting only after money, which he extorted by sundry devices, not caring at all for prayers, masses, exhortations, which used to free oppressed ones from persecutions; fraudulently and privately disposing in his own Chamber, the money collected for relief of the Holy Land, without the Cardinals consent, employing it and the forces raised against the Saracens, against the Emperor and Greek Church, better Christians than himself; prohibiting them to go to the Holy Land against their vows, when ready, yea marching towards it, to employ them against the Emperor, against whom he was raging mad, to destroy the rights of the Empire, and trample him under foot: He sealed many blank Bulls and sent them to his Legates, to write what they pleased in them for his or their advantage, 408, 409, 512, 513, 514, 753. He excommunicated Heliar for reprehending instead of reforming these his execrable crimes; His words, double dealing, breach of faith generally declaimed against by the Crescigiani, Ibid. He more desired the encrease of gold and silver, than of the Christian faith, 517. He persuades, commands all who had taken up the Cross for the Holy Land, not to proceed but return home again, when they were in their journey towards it, by his Bulls, Nuncios; who thereupon exclaimed against his double dealing, and were like to mutiny against his Nuncio, had not the Prelates pacified them, 512, 513, 514. Richard Earl of Cornwall proceeds in his voyage, notwithstanding this Prohibition, Ibid. The Emperor Frederick according to his Oath resuming the Isles, Territories belonging to the Empire, notwithstanding this Popes Inhibition; he thereupon studying revenge, fomented the Rebellion of the Citizens of Miliss against him, excommunicated, deprived him of the Empire, without any hearing or conviction; excited all he could against him, under pretence he had raised sedition against him in Rome, intending to expell him and his Cardinals thence, against the privilege, dignity of the See Apostolick, and to tread the Liberties of the Church under feet, against his Oaths: His scandalous Excommunications, Letters successively published in England and elsewhere to defame him, with his memorable Letters, replies thereto, shewing his Rebellion against the Emperor, slanders of, and unchristian deportment towards him, to his great infamy; his endeavours to depose him, 514, 515, to 550, 649, 752, 753. Verses found in his Chamber, that Rome should cease to be the Head of the World, which he and the Emperor applied to each other, 520. His extreme avarice, abuse of money collected for the Holy Land, exacting monie by several other means, to War against the Emperor; His stirring up his Subjects of Miliss, other Cities to rebell against him: who were defeated, punished, destroyed for their Rebellions, notwithstanding his Papal assistance and benediction, 532, 539, 541, to 550, 624, 605, 640. His execrable, infamous contradictory slanders published against the Emperor in all places, as inclined to Mahumetism, Achism, to exhort, exasperate all Christians unanimously to rise up against him, as an open enemy of Christ and his Church; against which the French, &c. people justified him, as more pious, religious, lesse oppressive than himself; his impiety, dishonesty being so notorious, execrable to all, that his authority was regarded by none, or very few; his Letters, actions so scandalous, that his fame and authority suffered great detriment, ruine in all places; so as wise and holy men feared greatly the total losse of the Roman Churches, Popes, Clergies honour, and that God in justice would smite them with an incurable wound, 539, 540, 544. He caused another Emperor to be elected, who peremptorily refused it; two others elected, blasted by God, 540, 753. The French Kings and Nobles notable answer to his Letters and Nuncio, 544, 555. The Emperors Letters, countenancing those who contemned his Excommunications, 656, 657. The English Bishops complaints against his oppressions, injuries, contrary to the Kings Oath, Charters, Priviledges; their Excommunication of their infringers; King H. 3. neither would nor durst contradict his exactions, though against his Priviledges, and Subjects Liberties, 545, 546, 548. He exacts the fifth part of the Clergies goods, for which the Emperor expostulated with the King; Archbishop Edmund, others opposed, but yielded to it at last, 546, 547, 563. The Romans and Cardinals consult together to oppose his Papal violence, to the danger of Christianity, 548. Having gained money enough in France to wage War with the Emperor for a whole year, he perfidiously brake his Truce, sends for the Cardinals who procured, made the Truce with him, from thenceforth to desie and denounce War boldly against him to his face; which John de Columpus one of them dissuading him from, and contradicting, as favouring of inconstancy, he told him, He would not from thenceforth account him for a Cardinal: To which he replied, Not I thee for a Pope: Upon which the King of France detained all the money there collected for him till he saw the issue, 549. He summoned the Duke of Venice and other enemies of the Emperor to a Council; engaged the King and Prelates of England to exhaust the Kingdoms Treasure, to depose the Emperor by force, 550, 551. He endeavoured to subject the Emperor and all Christian Kings to his Papal Dominion, and make them his Vassals, taking example, boldnesse from his predecessors trampling the King and Kingdom of England under his feet: The Emperors resistance of him, the only means to secure the Rights, Crowns of all other Christian Kings; though they deserted or engaged against him, and their own interest, by ayeing this Pope with monies extorted by his Nuncios, 544, 552, 553, 554. The Emperor contradicts his summons of a General Council, designed to excommunicate and depose him; prohibited all Legates, Bishops summoned to it to repair thither, under pain of imprisonment; who presuming to repair to it upon this Popes Letters, great naval forces to transport them by Sea; Gods owning of the Popes, Churches cause, and disowning of the Emperors as accused, excommunicated by him; were all intercepted, spoiled, some of them slain, drowned by the Emperors naval forces, the Popes Fleet scattered, his Legates, Cardinals, Prelates long detained in prison; the Popes designs, Council frustrated to his grief, infamy, 552, to 556, 655, 656, 657: A Carthusian Monk at Cambridge brought before his Legate and others, affirmed to their faces, *That Gregory was not Pope, nor head of the Church: That he was the Devil broke loose; an Heretick, who pulled the church, yea world; That he had not power to bind or loose souls, nor was St. Peters Vicar, nor had his power on earth; being a Simoniack, usurer, and perhaps involved in greater crimes; following not Christs footsteps, virtues, as St. Peter did; At which the Legate blasphed, and all were silenced, 560. He conferred the Bishoprick of Landaff by his Papal provi-*

tion, which the King assented to, 518, 559. Granted K. H. a Dispense in Ireland for relief of the Holy Land, 559, 560. He grants the Tenth of all profits of Benefices to the Abbot and Monks of Cluny, belonging to any houses of their Order in England, without the Kings privy, against his prerogative, and custom of the Realm, for which the King issued Writs to prohibit the collecting of them, 562. Grants a privilege to Edmund Archbishop of Canterbury, that he and other Archbishops in their Provinces should present to all Bishopricks, Abbots, Priories continuing voyd in the Kings hand after 6. months space, which he afterwards nulls, as contrary to the Kings prerogative at his instance, 563. He intends to bestow all the benefices in England upon the sonnes, kindred of Romans, to encourage them unanimously to rise up against the Emperor; writing for 300 of the next benefices that fell voyd only in 3. Bishopricks to be conferrd on them by provision, 564. He sent Peter Rabes to demand an intollerable Tax of the English Clergy, proposed privately to each of them under an Oath of secrecy not to discover it, which the Prelats and inferior Clergy generally, cistercians manfully withstood, 565, to 570. Recalls Otto from Eng. to Rome, who burnt his letters, to advise, assist him in a Council against the Emperor, 401, 402, 570. The insatiable shameles covetousnesse, corruption, Simony of him and the Court of Rome, exposing all things to sale, repuring Usury a small sinne, but Simony none at all, 571. His two Agents intollerable exactions in England, by Procurations and new devised extortions, 572. Writs to all Bishops to inquire of the number, value of the Benefices granted by him and his Legates by provision to aliens, 572, 573. The King by writs exempts all his own Clerks and Freeschappels from his Legates procurations, taxes, exactions, provisions, 573, 574. A Prohibition against his Legates compelling any person by Ecclesiastical censures to contribute any thing to him, and against his provision of a Prebendary in Paris belonging to the Kings presentation, 574, 575. The Kings appeal, Proctors to him against the Bishop of Winces election. His Nuncios and their Treasure seized by the Emperor, 605, 606. His death, Sees vacancy and schisms after it, 605, 647, 648, 650, 651. His Bull for relief of the Holy Land transcribed verbatim by Pope Innocent the 4th. 660. His Statutes, Letters whereby Archbishop Boniface would visit the Monks of Canterbury, resisted and revoked by his Successors, 793, 794. The Kings Letters of Complaint against his Provisions. His death concealed by his agents, till they could collect, transport their rapines, 608. Gregory the 10. His Complemental Letter to King Edward the 1. for a safe Conduct to his Agent to collect Peter-pence, and desiring the payment of 7. years arrears of the annual rent then due for England and Ireland by King Johns Charter, 311, 312. According to his predecessors practice he rejected the Monks election of Childeben to the Archbishoprick of Canterbury, opposed by the King, made Robert Archbishop by his Papal provision; which the Monks not daring to oppose elected him pro forma, to preserve their right of election, 1061, 1062, 1063.

King John's appeal to his Legate in Ireland, against the Suffragan Bishops of Ardmache, endeavouring to elect, consecrate an Archbishop without his precedent license or confirmation, 240, 241. His Letter to King John to bestow the Bishoprick of Carlisle on the Archbishop of Regusa, who at his request conferred it on him, and a living granted him by the Archbp of York 241. He nulls the clandestine election of the Monks of Canterbury of their Subprior without the Kings precedent license, His exhortatory Epistle to them for unity; nulls their second election by the Kings license, though approved by him; enforced the Monks at Rome to elect Stephen Langton a Cardinal, without the Kings license, against his consent, or their fellow Monks in England, there presently consecrated him Archbishop, writ Letters, sent rings and precious stones to the King, to persuade him to receive and admit him Archbishop, 244, to 249. The King for this high affront, by armed force expelled the Prior, Monks of Canterbury, putting others in their places; sent a menacing Letter to this Pope for his unjust refusal of the Archbishop duly elected, approved, confirmed by him, and consecrating Langton his enemy, publicly conversing with his enemies of France, without his royal assent, or the Monks due election; to the derogation of the rights of his Crowne and dignity, which he admired at, he not considering how England had been, and was more beneficial to the See of Rome than all the kingdoms on this side the Alps:

That he would stand for the rights of his Crown, and defend his Clerks due election to the Archbishoprick, to death; threatening he would suffer none to passe out or through his Territories to Rome, nor any of his Bishops or Prelates to go thither for justice, unless he granted his requests. The Popes insolent Letter in answer thereunto; his Letters to 3. English Bishops earnestly to persuade, admonish him to receive Langton for Archbishop, else to interdict the whole Realm till his submission to it; their proceedings therein, and interdicting the whole Realm, 250, to 255. He deprives the white Monks of the Liberty granted to others for officiating during the interdict, at the Kings command, 255, 256. He excommunicated King John, for contemning his Interdict, banishing the Bishops and their kindred who interdicted the Realm, with Langton and his Parents, seizing their goods, temporaries, and of all who obeyed the Interdict, commanding it to be published in all Cathedral and Conventual Churches through England: the Clergy in England refuse to publish it; King John and his Nobles slight it, Alexander Comenarius disputes, writes against it and the Popes power to inflict it, all his Nobles, others, publicly communicate with him, he hath admirable successes in his wars, affairs, notwithstanding it, 248, to 262. His Legates, Agents insolent words, messages, deportment towards the King, notwithstanding his promise to receive the exiled Bishops and Archbishop without restitution of the profits of their Bishopricks during their exile, 252, 261, to 265. He absolves King John's subjects from their Fealty, Oaths, obedience to him; prohibiting them under pain of excommunication strictly to avoid his company, both in Table, Council, Conference, 264, 265. After which at the Archbishop and Bishops solicitation he deprived King John and his heirs of the Crown of England, gives it to King Philip of France and his heirs; writes to him, and all Nobles, Souldiers in sundry Countries to take arms, to deject him and conquer it for his contumacy, rebellion; to cross themselves for that purpose, granting them the same Indulgences as those who went to the Holy Land against the Saracens. Sends Pandolphus his Legat to see it executed, yet with secret instructions to him to agree with King John upon terms he was to propound to him, 267, 288. When the French King and John had both raised great forces by Land and Sea against each other, Pandolph by fraudulent persuasions, menaces, terrors induced King John and his Nobles to receive the exiled Bishops, give them damages, & swear to make good the terms the Pope propounded for himself and exiles, to resign his Crown, kingdoms of England and Ireland to this Pope by a special Charter, enjoying them under him and his successors, paying 1000. Marks annual rent, & swearing fealty to him as his vassal; The manner thereof being effected, he prohibited the French King to invade him after vast expences. to his great discontent, because under his Papal protection by this submission, 267, to 293. The Interdicts, Excommunications, Frauds, force by which this Charter was extorted, with the protests, Declarations against, and real Nullities of it, 271, 273, 274, 280, 281, 289, to 330, 414, 1058. King John's Oath to him, 274, 279, 290. The Emperor by his Embassadors stirred up the English, others to contradict, withstand this Charter, Tribute, and other illegal oppressions, 414, 415. 613. His Bull to his Legat to confer all vacant dignities, benefices in England by postulation or Canonical election, to correct all rebellious persons opposing his proceedings therein by Ecclesiastical censures, without any appeal; his tyranny, inhumanity, proceedings therein, especially against those who had been loyal to the King during the Interdict, 258, 259, 329, 330, 334, 335. The Original of his provisions in England, 237, 329, 330, 778. His Bull to his Legat for releasing the long Antichristian Interdict of England after 7. years 3. months, & 14. days space, during which divine Offices, Sacraments, and

and Christian burials ceased, 331, 332, 33. His Bull for confirmation of the Great Charter of King John, to his Prelates, Barons, and Freedom of Elections to the Church, Clergy, upon the Kings request, 337, 338. K. John complaint to him against his Great Charter as extorted from him by armed force, fear, circumvention, rebellion; and of designs to expell him the Realm now under the Crosse, and Popes protection: his Oath by St. Peter to avenge this injury; His Bull perpetually nulling the great Charter notwithstanding its former confirmations, prohibiting any to observe it under pain of excommunication, reciting the Barons rebellion, obstinacy, perjury against their Oath, 341, 342, 343, 345, 346, 347. He first excited the English Barons by his Bulls to take arms against King John, as an obstinate enemy to the Church, to enforce him to surrender his Crown to him, and after his unworthy effeminate surrender of it to him as his Tributary, endeavoured without fear of God or shame of the world to trample them under feet, dishonour, put them to death, and swallow up their estates; He promoted none to livings, but unworthy outlandish Clerks, 414, 415. His Letter to the Barons, charging them with rebellion, disobedience to his commands and the King, threatening to excommunicate them if they persisted therein, 341. His Letters for the Barons Excommunication sent to the Archbishop and his Suffragans, 344, 345, 348, 351. The Archbishop delays, denies to publish it, siding with them, for which he is cited to the Council at Rome, suspended his Archbishoprick, and all prohibited to obey him as Archbishop, 343, to 348. His Bull reprehending the Chapter of York for electing Simon Langton their Archbishop, against the Kings and his prohibition, and Simons promise: his menaces of him and them; His election nullified, he swears he would provide an Archbishop himself for them unless they presently proceeded to a new election: whereupon they elected Walter Gray, whom the King at first propounded, who paid ten thousand pound Sterling for his Pall, for which he stood bound in the Court of Rome to this Simons Magus and his Usurers, 350, 351. The Kings Letters to him not to null the union of the Abbey of Glaston to the Bishoprick of Bath and Wells, formerly confirmed, being prejudicial to the Crown, He appoints delegates to hear and determine the cause, 356, 357. His Care to preserve King John and his heirs rights in Normandy, 357, 358. His Bull exempting all his Freechappels from Episcopal Jurisdiction and excommunications, though a royal prerogative before, 358, 720, 721, 727, 728, 759. His Bull to the Abbot of Abbeys and others, to excommunicate certain Barons, Londoners, and others by name for opposing, rebelling against King John, with their high contempt thereof, and reviling speeches against him and his Papal power, as Constantines, not Peters successor, either in merits or works, making a prey of the Church and Kingdom he had invaded, 359, 360, 361, 362, 414. He absolves the Archbishop upon caution, but prohibits his return into England till the King and Barons were accorded, 361. He sends Wals to the French King Philip, to prohibit him or his sonne to invade King John being his Vassal; or the Realm of England, the Churches patrimony, whereof he was supreme Lord, by the Kings Charter, Homage to him: The French Kings reply thereto, declaring the Charter void, denying England to be St. Peters Patrimony. Lewis his Proctors opposition, objections before him against King John, and plea for Lewis his Title to the Realm of England; This Popes replies thereto on King *John*s behalf; his Dilemma in this controversie between them. The Barons reject King John, elect, receive, crown Lewis, notwithstanding his Legates prohibitions, excommunications of Lewis and them, which they condemn, 358, to 367. His Usurpations upon King *John*s Crown, kingdom, Church, Subjects of England and Ireland, 370. His Unchristian Excommunication and Interdict of all the Kings Officers and others who by his command offered violence to the Monks of Canterbury, and shed their blood in the Church of Faversham, to which the King and Monks laid Title, the Kings Prohibitions; Writs, sent to his Delegates not to execute it, as being derogatory to his Crown; the Popes contrary Letters to proceed therein; with the issue of it, Appendix 8, to 16. Sends Otto into England and other Nuncios into all parts of the world to exact undue exactions from them, 398.

Innocent the 4. His election after a long vacancy, 605, 651. Being confirmed, he ratified the Excommunication denounced against the Emp. Frederic, stirred up the Citizens of Viterbium against him, caused sundry to revolt from him in Germany soon after his election, 651, 652. He refused all offers of peace, cautions tendered by the Emperor for performance thereof; raised new discords, wars against him to the great danger of Christendome and Christianity, then invaded by the Turks, Saracens, Tartars: whereupon the Emperor stopped all passages to Rome, 652, 755, 758. His unsatiable thirst after money, 652. He flies from Rome with his Cardinals to Lyon secretly in a disguise. The King and Nobles consult whether they should receive him, as conceiving him prejudicial to the King and kingdom; they refuse to admit him into France, or Rome, whose Archbishoprick was then void, 653, 654. Their Letter to him denying his entrance into lower France, 654. He desires K. Henry that he might come into England, wherein he had a special right, to honour it with his presence, but is denied: he spoiling, defiling it by his Exortions, Simons, Usurers, though not personally present: the stink of his Papal Court and infamy ascended to the clouds, 654. He endeavoured to deprive the Emperor, 653, 753. The Kings appeal to him against the Bishop of Winton, being neither duly elected, nor presented to him for his confirmation, to the prejudice of his Royal right and dignity. The Bishop gives the Pope 8000 Marks to procure his peace, and free him from a contempt against the King, 589, 590, 591, 592. His Decree between the Monks of Canterbury and Bishop of Lisles, during the vacancy, 599. He desires the prayers of the Cistercians in their General Chapter, for the state of the wavering Church, 604. His Legates rapines, provisions, Exortions in England, 605. The Kings Letters of Complaint against them, 606. Endeavours to subject Wales to himself under an annual Tribute; absolves the Prince of Wales from his subjection and allegiance to K. H. 3. against his Charter, Oath, encouraging him in his rebellion against him, 609. His Letters to all the Prelates of England in general, and each of them in particular purchased with the effusion of much money, to grant a competent ayde to the King, highly applauded in them, 609, 610. The Prelates unanimously opposed them, being conjoyned, and complain of the Popes rapine, provisions, by his agents, 610, 611, 612. His Letters to the English Prelates for a supply of his own and the Church of *Rome*s necessities; which they and the Emperors agents in England contradict, 612, 613, 614, 615. His Nuncios rapines, exortions, Ibid. 619. His daily Bulls sent into England to extort monies; prohibited to be imported, searched after in Dover and other Ports by public order, and their importers imprisoned, 617. A prohibition to tax, collect or pay any Tax to this Pope or his agents in England or Ireland, 618. His Nuncio chased out of England, at which this Pope extraordinarily raged, 619, 620: resolved to make peace with the Emperor, whom he styled the Dragon, that so he might trample the petty Kings and Serpents of England and other Countries under foot; which incensed the hearts of many against him, 620. The King of Scots Charter of League with K. H. 3. sent to him to confirm; he and his Nobles subjecting themselves and their heirs thereby to his Jurisdiction and Ecclesiastical censures in case they violated it, 620, 621. He absolved David

Prince of Wales from his Oath, Homage, Charters made to King H. 3. exciting him to rebel against him, by putting himself and all his Land under the Popes protection, to be held of him under an annual rent of 500 marks. His Bull for that purpose: notwithstanding which K. H. 3. wasted Wales with fire and sword, reducing it to extreme misery, desolation, 621, 622, 623, 624. William the elder Bishop of Coventry voluntarily resigned his Bishoprick into his hands, being opposed by the King, 624, 625. The Bishops of England made, advanced by him, more addicted to him, then to the kingdom or King, 626, 627. He granted Archbishop Basiface for money an unheard of privilege of the first years fruits of all vacant benefices in his Province for seven years, till he levied ten thousand Marks thereby, under pretext to defray the debts of his Church: Which his Suffragan Bishops opposed, but were enforced to submit to, by Excommunications and Ecclesiastical censures published in all Churches against those who should speak against, detract from it, or fraudulently substract any of the firstfruits, 626, 627, 628, 629, 718, 719. He consecrated Basiface Archbishop, and Richard de Winton Bishop of Cicaster, Roger de Winton Bishop of Coventry, elected against the Kings will, and appealed against, at Lions, to his great affront, and the kingdoms prejudice, for which he confiscated their goods, seized, detained their temporalties, and kept them out of their Cities for a long time, 625, 626, 627. He granted Philip Ball, a Souldier employed as his General in the wars, for a great summe of money, to hold by Commenda all his rents in England, the profits of the Bishoprick of Valentia, Archbishoprick of Lions, and other Churches in Flanders, England, France, who took no care at all of the peoples souls, nor to exercise his Episcopal office, 626, 627, 642. Summoned, celebrated a General Council at Lions, 623, &c. 753. He granted the Bishop of Lincoln, after an infinite expence of money and great gifts, a privilege against the Canons, to visit the Dean and Chapter of Lincoln to correct their manners, without taking an Oath of Canonical obedience, or manual subscription: His Bull and definitive sentence therein, 629, 630. A prohibition and appeal by the King against his drawing any of his Subjects in suit before him out of the Realm, 628. What arrears of the annual Tribute were paid him by King H. 3. and upon what occasion, 311. His Dispensation for some of the Kings Clerks to hold pluralities, 632. Fiecers Predicants and Minors the executors of his Papal extortions, advanced, enriched by his means, 633. The King prohibited the Abbots, Priors, and Ecclesiastical persons, to grant this Pope any aide, or to meet about it, without his royal assent, 634. His summons of a General Council at Lions by Bulls and Nuncios sent into England and elsewhere, 636, 637. The King complains of his nulling Canonical elections to Bishopricks duly made and approved by him, out of malice, or upon feigned or frivolous pretences, for advancing Bishops without his royal assent, contrary to his ancient approved right in all former ages, praying redress thereof by a special Proctor, 637. His Epistle to the King, excusing the appearance of some Bishops and Abbots at the Council, by reason they were Guardians of the Realm in his absence, others undone by wars, others aged, or sick, 638, 643. He shamefully abused and cast out of his Palace the Abbot of Baugh for opposing his provision to a Church, which he gave to one of his kinsmen, so as he died of shame & grief, 618. The King sent solen Embassadors to this Council in his own and the kingdoms name, to complain against his insatiable covetousness, execrable rapines, extortions, provisions of Churches, and other corruptions of the Court of Rome, against King Jubas Charter, Tribute, the Letrons, protestations of the whole kingdom against them, the proceedings therein, to which the Pope deferred his answer, 299, 300, 638, 636, 644, 645, 646, 647. The Kings Patents commanding all his Bishops, Abbots in that Council upon their allegiance to use all diligence to acquire, conceive and defend all the rights of his Crowne, kingdom, invaded by the Pope, and not to attempt, procure, or assent to any thing therein to his or the kingdoms prejudice, or of the rights his predecessors and he had used by ancient approved custome; that none of his Bishops should be translated by the Pope and Council, but by consent of his Ambassadors and Proctor St. Martin, for the benefit of the Realm, 640. He set his study on fire before the Council, wherein King Jubas detestable Charter was burnt, on purpose to extort monies from the Bishops repairing to the Council, 300, 641. Sundry Abbots, Bishops present him with vast sums of money, and rich presents, to the prejudice of their Churches, whom he advanced to Archbishopricks by his Papal power, 641, 642. The Canons of Lions strenuously opposed his provisions, swearing they would drown his provisors in the Rhene if they durst appear there, whereupon they desisted, 642. The hand of his Porter cut off by a Citizen of Lions, of which he complained, desiring reparations, which was done superficially in some sort to save his Papal honour, 642. The Greek Church not only refuse to obey, but opposed him & the Church of Rome, for their Simony, claiming Primacy from St. Peters first residence at Antioch, to which he could give no answer, 643, 352. He deferred the Canonization of Edmund Archbishop of Canterbury, canonized at last by him, 643, 644, 689. He scornfully rejects the proffers of the Emperor by his Advocates, to satisfy the Church and Prelates injured, and defend the Christians against the Tartars, Turks, Saracens, incensed the whole Council against him, except the King of Englands Ambassadors and Proctors, 644, 651, 652. His sentence of Excommunication and deposition denounced against the Emperor in the Council, sent into England and other places to be published to his infamy, wherein he challenged a Sovereigne superintendency over all Christians, as Christs Vicar, and Peters successor, the Top of Apostolical dignity; power to advance, censure, punish, depresse, anathematize whom he pleased; excommunicating him for breach of his Oathes, invading the rights and possessions of the Church, imprisoning sundry Cardinals, Bishops, (when summoned to a Council to depose him) imposing taxes upon the Clergy, convening them before secular Judges for criminal and civil causes which did not touch their fees; imprisoning and executing some of them, to the confusion and disgrace of their Clerical Orders; (though for treason and rebellion against him) condemning Pope Gregories former sentence of Excommunication against him, marrying his daughter to Baltazar an enemy to the Roman Church; making a Peace with the Soldan of Babylon, invading the Realm of Sicily, the Special Patrimony of St. Peter, and absolving the Inhabitants thereof and other places from their allegiance to the Church of Rome; Chargeth him therein with heresie, apostasy, inclination to Mahometism, & other forged crimes; absolving all his subjects from their former Oathes of allegiance to him, and excommunicating all who should obey, favour, counsel, or converse with him from thenceforth as Emperor or King: which Excommunication was contrary to his own Canons made in that Council, 652. to 660, 757. Moved for a Croisade to raise monies, forces against the Emperor, which was publicly opposed to his face by the English, because of his former manifold cheats, abuses therein, 660, 666, 753. The Emperours Notable speech, Epistles against Popes insolencies, usurpations, and his abuse of his Papal power in deposing him; charging him and Prelates with pride, ingratitude, avarice, ambition, contempt to Emperours, Kings, their advancers, and the danger of such a president to all Christian Kings, kingdoms; sets his Crown on his head with his own hands, professeth himself absolved from all obligations to him, and

and free to oppose him for his tyranny, 660, 661, 662. 713. Popes intollerable insolencies, though of base birth, ignominiously to insult over, depose, trample under feet all Emperors, Kings, Princes, Prelates, though innocent, after Frederick's final deprivation, as not so potent to resist them, 662. His Papal Mandate to the General Chapter of the Cistercians, justifying his excommunication and deposing of the Emperor, for and in which he was prepared to stand, fight unto death, exhorting all of them, and other his brethren, immutably to stand, fight for this cause of God and his Church together with him even to death, 662, 663. His privileges promised to the English in the Council of Lyons; To grant provisions and dispensations for pluralities of Livings to well deserving Englishmen of Noble families; That the Clergy and Lay-patrons should freely present fit persons to their Ecclesiastical benefices as they fell void without contradiction; That one Italian should not succeed another; That all Crossed for the Holy Land, should not be exempt from the usual customs of the Realm, though from other things; That all English Prelates newly advanced should for some few years hold all their former promotions by commendation. After which he & other Popes null'd, violated them all by Non-obstantes, oppressed the English more then ever, 666. He refusing to give competent satisfaction to the English Ambassadors demands in the Council, they departed thence in discontent; swearing they would never hereafter pay, or suffer to be paid the detestable Tribute granted by King John to the Roman avarice, which the King likewise swore: nor permit any rents of English Churches (especially such whereof Noblemen were Patrons) to be exorted from them, which he, with patience and silence passed by, till a fitter time to revenge it, 663. The English Bishops at his command most cowardly set their hands, seals to the transcript of King John's Charter, then newly burnt, to make it valid; and subscribed, published his excommunication against the Emperor, 309, 663. Upon which he expressing his former concealed causeless rancor against the King, kingdom, Nobles, for daring to demand their rights and liberties; most insolently threatened, that if he could tame Frederick, he would then trample under feet the insolent pride of the petty King of England, his Vassal, and the disobedient English, whom he would not permit so much as to lament or mutter against the oppressions or Tribute they complained against in the Council; exciting, perswading the French King in a conference with him at Cluny, to revenge this great injury, by rising up and warring against the petty King of England even to his disinheriting, or so as to enforce him volens to submit himself to the will of the Court of Rome in all things, promising that the Church and he with all his Papal power would assist him therein; which the King of France refused to do, because of the consanguinity, truce then between them, and prevalency of the Pagans against the Christians in the Holy Land, who expected his ayde, 309, 663, 664. He oppressed, pillaged the English more then ever before by sophistical Legates and Freers, having the power but not name of Legates, to evade the ancient Privilege of the King, that no Legat should come into his Realm, unless he first desired him; seized upon the goods of all dying intestate, against Law and former custom; injuriously usurped the Lands of David Prince of Wales, the Kings Nephew, Vassal, who was to hold it under him for 500 marks a year Tribute; cited the King to satisfy David for certain pretended injuries done him, to the hissing and derision of many. To oppose, redress these insupportable grievances which the King, kingdom could no longer tolerate, without infamy and imminent ruine: the King summoned a Parliament, wherein he, the Nobles and Prelates drew up 7. several Articles against his exactions, grievances, oppressions, provisions, Non-obstantes, imploding the Subjects out of the Realm, Taxes without the Kings assent, and against his appeals: & provisions to Italians, who neither preached nor resided on their benefices, succeeded each other by frauds, suffered their houses, Churches to fall to ruine; sent them by their Messengers to the Pope with 4. notable Epistles; the 1. from the Archbishop of Canterbury and his Suffragans; the 2. from all the Abbots, Priors, Convents of England; the 3. from all the Nobility and Commonalty; The 4. from the King, with another to the Cardinals, relating the Nobles, peoples weeping clamors against them, urging him speedily to redress these grievances, which else the Nobles threatened to do themselves, with such perill, damage of the Church of Rome, as could not easily be repaired, 664, to 671. Who instead of redressing those grievances, in contempt of them and their Letters, sent several Letters to divers Prelates to send or finde several men with horse and arms for half a year or more for his service, which they were to do secretly, and reveal to none under pain of excommunication: to the prejudice of the kingdom & King; Knights service being only due to the King & Nobles, nor formerly exacted by Popes in any age. He exacted golden Jewels and other ornaments made in England, published an unheard of Statute, that all Clergymens goods dying intestate should be converted to the Popes use, which the Freers Minors were to execute; Exacted by a New Bull a Subsidy of 60000 Marks from the Bishops, Clergy of England, to be divided between them, and paid in with all speed, notwithstanding any appeal, privilege, constitution or Decree of a General Council: Against which Taxes the King by provision made in Parliament, issued several Prohibitions to Bishops, not to collect or pay it, because against his royal dignity, which he neither would nor could by any means suffer, 664, 671, 672, 673, 674, 681, 682. Shewed no moderation towards the King or his Ambassadors, neither in words nor gestures, concerning their grievances, complaints against him; but said, the King Frederick, he hath his Council and I have mine, which I will pursue, would scarce look on any English man, but repelled, reviled all of them as Schismatics, slighting all the Kings and Nobles Epistles sent to his Court, whereat they were very angry. The King prohibits by Writ, that no Prelate or Clerk in any County should consent to or send any money to ayde him, or obey his commands therein; whereat he being much incensed, sent a second Letter to all English Prelates to pay the ayde demanded under pain of Excommunication, threatening to interdict the Realm if refused; whereupon the King by perswasions of Earl Richard, some ambitious Clergymen, and Papal Bishops, whereof Worcester was chief, terrified with his Papal threats so that he trembled at them, desisted from his former mainly resolutions, sent Messengers to pacifie, and tell him, he would comply with his desires, whereof he was very joyfull, 675, 676. He filled England, an unexhausted pit, where many things abounding, he might thence extort much, 671. The English like Belshazzars Ass beaten with his spurs and clubs, were necessitated lamentably to cry out, 670, 671, 672, 676. He observing the Cowardise, division of the English Clergy, oppressed them daily more and more, imperiously demanded the moiety of all Non-residents, and 3d part of all Residents Livings under hard conditions, by detestable Non-obstantes, which the King specially prohibiting, the English Clergy denied to grant, as impossible, for sundry reasons they drew up against it, 676, 677, 678. England ground as by two Millstones between the King and this Pope. The Archdeacons and other Clergy in a Parliament summoned, lamentably complain of their intollerable exactions, to the desolation of the Church, Realm; whereupon they resolved to present their Grievances in order by Messengers and Letters to this Pope and his Cardinals in the name of all the Clergy, people of the Realm; at which

Letters the Pope and Court of Rome murmured, because their avarice was so reproved, restrained, and to prevent the danger of a revolt from them, reduced the 60000 to 11000 Marks, which the Bishops to avoid the Popes displeasure assented to, against the Kings, Nobles Letters, and inferior Clergies wills, 678, 679, 680. His grants of Commendates for money, to engage the Bishops to whom they were granted to side with him, 680. His politick Innovation when Wars were between two Princes, to excommunicate at the request of one of them, who fled to him for assistance, the opposite party, to suppress him, and absolve, assist the other, to oblige him perpetually to him, 680. He employed the Friars Minors and Predicants to collect monies to War against the Emperor, while the Turks and Saracens over-run the Christians, to whom he would send no aid to resist them, 643, 649, 650, 651, 664, 680. He stirs up Wars in Germany against the Emperor Frederick, causing them to elect the Landgrave Emperor, who refused it, 651, 680, 681, 753. The Emperor lays wait to seize all monies coming from England to the Pope or his corrivals, 680, 681. His hypocritical Statutes concerning the pretended relief of the Holy Land, and Letters to the Friars Minors to collect it; to enquire of the goods of all persons dying intestate; of all Usurers and others goods ill gotten, of goods left upon Testament undivided, or to be distributed to pious uses, according to the Executors discretion, and levy them by Ecclesiastical censures for his use; to compound for monies with Excommunicated persons, and those who had taken up the Cross, 681, 682. He granted a privilege for a vast sum of money to Lambert de Muletun, not to be excommunicated for any offence by any person, but by the Popes special command, 682. His sophistical delusory privilege to King Henry, that he would grant no provision of Ecclesiastical Benefices in England, to any Italian, Cardinal or Kinsman, unless he or his Cardinals should increase the King with importunity to assent to the Provision, 682, 683. The Kings Writ that all bringers of this Popes Bulls of Provisions to Benefices, or for collections of monies, to the impoverishing of the Realm, should be seized on, imprisoned, and the Ports kept that none should be brought in, 684. His privilege granted to the new Abbot of Westminster, at the Kings request, to celebrate Masse Pontifically, and give the benediction solemnly to the people when Agnes Dei was sung, 686. His Bull to the Abbot of Cluny, who brought his house in debt by the great gifts bestowed on him, to collect one years Disme from all of his Order on this side the Alps, notwithstanding the contradiction of any Ordinary, whereof he was to receive 3000 Marks to his own use, and the Abbot the residue; King Henry by Writ seized all the money thus collected in England, 686, 687. A Prohibition to his Delegates not to molest the Kings Clerk, 688, 689. His Provisions odious in England, yet the King approved of one at the instance of two of his Clerks, 690. His intollerable depredations in France and England, Ibid. He sends Friars Minors into England, armed with terrible Bulls, to extort monies from the English Prelates and Clergy under severe penalties, which they concealed from the King, who demanded no less than 6000 Marks out of the Bishoprick of Lincoln, and 40 Marks from the Abby of St. Albans, for the Popes use; which the Abbot refusing, was enforced to pay and expend upon Appeals above 100 Marks, besides other daily extortions; which the King summoned a Parliament to prevent, from which the Bishops cowardly absented themselves, 690, 691, 693, 694. He sent likewise Friars Minors severally to all the Bishops of France, to beg and borrow monies of them, which the King prohibited them to grant, under pain of forfeiting all their goods; whereupon his sophistical Legates departed thence with hissing and derision, 691. He dispersed several Le-gates into Scotland and Ireland to collect monies, 692. His Cardinals compelled him to revoke his Decree of Intestates goods, by reason of its general scandal, and the damage it did to many against Law, 692. An unsatiable Corydon, 694. He authorized his Friars by Bulls, and their Delegates to interdict, excommunicate Archbishops, Bishops without any appeal, notwithstanding any privilege, if they opposed their exacti- ons, or refused to contribute to him according to their faculties, 694, 695. He attempted by all means to ordain the Archbishop of Ardmash, which the King endeavoured to prevent, by authorizing his Chief Justice to give his Royal assent to the election for that time, 690. He sent Martin his Chaplain into England, with the power, not title, ensigns of a Legate, to elude the Kings privilege, and fish for mens goods, possessions, nor souls, 691, 692. He taught Princes, Laymen the way to mutilate and revoke the possessions they had given to the Church, by Non-obstantes, 693. Excommunicated those Prelates, Abbots and others, who refused to provide liberally for his Nuncios, whom he impowered to enquire of vexations of Provisors, all alienations of Lands, Churches, and Symoniacal Contracts made by Prelates, Clergymen, or Religious persons; to revoke them without judgement or noyse, and notify them to him, that he might proceed against them according to the quality of their offences to get money; and to excommunicate, suspend, interdict all opposers, notwithstanding any privilege or appeal, 695, 696. The King summons another Parliament to advise how to redress these manifold and frequent extortions, exhausting the Kingdoms Treasure, bringing no good, but much detriment to the Church, and very displeasing to God; summoning the Bishops specially to it, frequently impoverished by them, who all most basely condescended to a Contribution of 11000 Marks to the Pope, which some of them before resolved to oppose, being so frequently worried, tyred with the Popes Agents vexations when they opposed them, which act rendered all the Clergy suspected to the Kingdom, 696. He sent a Cardinal Legate to crown and anoint Haco King of Norway, Denmark and Sweden, in whose entertainment the Bishop of Norwich spent 4000 Marks, besides other presents: For this Coronation the Pope received 15000 Marks sterling, besides rich presents to the Legate, and 500 Marks extorted by him from the Churches of that Kingdom, 697. He sold Bishopricks, and Canonizations of Saints for money, 698. Granted Croyadoes, Dismes to Richard Earl of Cornwall, and William Longespee, whereby vast sums of money were collected by rapine, injustice, by his Nuncios, wherein he shared; He suspended Patrons from presenting to their Benefices, never heard of before, to preferre Romans to them, or satisfy his avarice; filled Germany with Wars, preyed upon France and England, whereby he and the Court of Rome became infamous, 698, 716, 710, to 736, 753, 755. The French Peers, King conspire and enter into a confederacy against him and the Prelates Exactions, Excommunications, Encroachments on their Rights and Liberties, 699, to 704. His Citation of the Abbot of Abbeidan to Rome, for his contempt in denying to present a Roman his Provisor to a Benefice of the Abby, and presenting another by the Kings command; for which though old and infirm, he was forced to go to Rome, and after much vexation, expence, to give the Roman a pension of 50 Marks a year, to the great prejudice of his Church, 716, 717. He vacated the Monks election of the Abbot of St. Edmunds, without just cause, to insnare him in the net of his unmercifull mercy; and then to content the grieved Monks, out of his meer grace confirmed him their Abbot, so as he entred into bond to pay 800 Marks to his designed Merchant; which he forced to do, dyed of grief in his return thence, thence; which oppressions made the Court of Rome infamous, and drew the Plague and Gods wrath upon it, 717. He commanded the Bishop of Clas, elected without the Kings license, to be consecrated, without his assent, contrary to his Royal Prerogative, 719. His Bull to exempt the Kings Free Chappels from Episcopal Jurisdiction and Excommunications, 720, 721, 727. Thrusts his Clerk by a Provision into the Church of Evesford, belonging to the Kings presentation by vacancy of the Archbishoprick of Cantebury, to which the King presenting his Clerk, he took the examination of the cause into his own hands, giving judgement against the Kings Clerk, not considering the Kings right, commanding his Delegates to eject him; and put in his Provisor; which tending to the hurt of the Crown, and the Kings great enormous disinhering, he sent his Proctor to him to plead his right, and prohibited his Delegates upon their allegiance, not to attempt any thing to his or his Clerks prejudice, under pain of seizing their Barrenies, 725, 726. His detestable infamous avarice, simony, usuries, abuse of Croysadoes, and promoting them by Fees, which scandals rendered him and his Papalins odious, and made the devotion of many to wax cold, 728, 729. His infamous Priviledge to the Bishop of Norwich to extort monies; and mouse-traps to catch such who took up the Crosse, 729. His grant of a Croysado to the French King, upon condition to give him power afterwards to extort as much thence against the Emperor Frederick; the horrid crying extortions used therein; Gods curse upon those rapines, by the total overthrow of the French Army, and taking their King Captive by the Saracens; which caused many Christians to apostatize, utter blasphemies, and almost ruined France, 733, 734. The Kings Prohibition to put a Dean into St. Carantac by his Provision, belonging to his presentation by the vacancy of the Bishoprick of Exon, 736. The Templars and others appeals to him against Bishop Grosbead, who by money given to the Pope, purchased his favour and exemption from the Bishop to his shame; who cried out thereupon, O money, money, how potent art thou in the Court of Rome! the Popes indignation thereupon, 737, 740. His Letters to Grosbead upon the Kings complaint, to absolve the Kings Sheriff and Officers from an Excommunication against them, for executing the Kings Writs, 738. He favoured Archbishop Boniface in his rapines and oppressions, 740, 741. His new Decretal concerning Archbishops and Bishops Visitations, Procurations, against exactions, Visitation Oaths and coactions, by which Archbishop Boniface intended to visit his Province, 743, 744. His Letters for nulling and reversing the Archbishops sentence of Excommunication against the Chapter of Pauls and Bishop of London, upon an appeal against it, 745, 746. His detestable Provision to a Bastard and illiterate Foreigner, against right and piety, to the Church of Wistels, decreeing all acts attempted against it voyd, to put his Proctor into, and keep him in possession of it, removing all others, excommunicating all opposers without any appeal, 746. His request to King H. 3. to remove to Burdeaux, and from thence to pass into England, to seece, corrupt it in person worse then his Usurers or Nuncios: He for money hindered those who had taken the Crosse to ayd the French King, absolved them from their peregrination, sold them to Earl Richard and other Nobles, as the Jews used to sell Oxen and Doves in the Temple; whereat the English were highly offended with him, 746, 747. Archbishop Boniface goes to his Court in person, to fortifie himself against his Suffragans and their Appeals by his Papal authority: he and the Court of Rome being shaken like a reed with winds hither and thither, by money intervening, 747, 748. His provision to, and vexation of the Abbot of St. Albans, 842, 843, 844, 846, 847. He courttenanted the Bishop of Winton against the King, for which he obliged his Bishoprick to him in unestimable debts, 748. He confirms Elbeher though unfit in the Bishoprick of Winton, for money, gifts; licensing him and other Bishops for money to retain all their former benefices, rents, promotions together with their Bishopricks, 749, 750, 751, 752. He preferred by Provisions any unfit, scandalous, illiterate persons, covetous Romans, and others contempters of souls to Bishopricks, benefices, for money, for which he was by Gods justice deservedly expelled from Rome, forced like Cain to wander from place to place; he trampled England more vilely under his feet, where Religion most flourished, oppressed, spoiled it more then any other Nation, when no English men had any preferment in Italy or other Realms; whence they prayed the God of vengeance to whet his sword against him and his Nuncios provisions, and make it drunk in their blood, 750. He oppressed the Church of God more then all his predecessors, not considering the scourge of God upon him, 753. His unchristian practices and Innovations, in setting up and openly protecting Usurers in England, against the Old and New Testament, condemning usury, suffering them to dwell amongst Christians; in conferring Benefices by Provisions for money on barbarous Romans, who never came into England, nor took care of the peoples souls; in erecting many Orders of Friars, and employing them to promote, collect his rapines, taxes, Croysadoes, armed with many Papal powers; and licensing them to purchase great possessions against their Vows, Orders; yea disturbing all Christendome with Wars, out of malice and hatred against the Emperor, to the danger of the Universal Church and Christianity, 753, 754. He induced Peter de Vine by great bribes, promises, to poison, destroy the Emperor Frederick, who most confided in, and employed him; his exclamation against the Pope for his treachery and persecutions at his death, 754, 755. By Pope Innocent 3. Gregory 9. and his Excommunications, Wars, persecutions, depositions of the Emperors Otho, and Frederick, the Imperial Sovereignty withered away, 753. His implacable malice to the Emperor, 755. His exemption of the Kings Household Clerks from payment of First-fruits, granted by him to Archbishop Boniface, 758. His Non-obstantes made presidents for King Henry to avoyd his Charters, 760. The more potent he was, the more grievous to oppress, 761. His Papal Bulls, Provisions frequently contradicted by Bishop Grosbead, who said he should Satanize if he obeyed them, 762. He summoned the Dean and Chapter of Pauls to appear before him, at Archbishop Boniface his suits, from whose sentence he had absolved them, 762. The Abbot of W. Minster, his Chaplain, attends long in his Court, bound in great debts for him to quell the Monks, who were backed by the King, whose foundation it was, 763. 764. Prelates and Religious persons reduced to extreme servitude by him, all their former priviledges subverted by his detestable Non-obstantes, 765. His strange Provision of Foreigners to St. Albans; he became a step-father, and the Church of Rome a step-mother to England, alienating their hearts from them by intolerable contempts, injuries, oppressions, persecutions, 765. He granted King H. 3. a Disme for three years towards his voyage to the Holy Land, only to spoyle well-affected Christians of their monies by this pretext, which the Prelates oppose, 766, 767, 768, 770, 771, 772, 773, 774. His Indulgences granted to those who took up the Crosse, 768. The Pope and King assist each other in their rapines, oppressions, tyranny, exactions, which exasperated most mens hearts, stirred them up generally against the Church of Rome, extinguished the fire of devotion towards, and caused a defection of their hearts from her, 772, 773. Many Schoolmasters for great sums of money got licenses from him not to reside upon their benefices, or take Orders, under pretext of teaching School, which Großbrad oppugned, 574. His Bull for augmentation of small Vicarages out of Religious houses, impropriations, 774, 775. He sent Albert his Nuncio to prohibit King H. to invade France, and also to engage his Brother Richard to spend his Treasure to gain Sicily and Apulia for the benefit of the Church of Rome, who refused the Popes proffer of it to him; whereupon he conferred it on King Henry and his sonne Edmund, who indiscreetly embraced it, investing him therein with a ring, cheats them of infinite sums of money, 776, 777, 808, 809, 820. Letters, procurations concerning it, 914, to 916, 948, 849, 985. The rents of Alien Clerks benefices, provisions in England under him, amounted to more then 700000 marks a year, the Kings annual revenue not arising to the third part thereof, 777. His Letters giving some relaxation of Provisions in shew, with power to tear his and his Agents Letters to the contrary, 779, 780, 781. He approved Bishops elections in Ireland, 784. King Henry payes him the arrears of the annual tribute, and constitutes a Proctor in his Court, 783. The Archbishops Suffragans agent gave this Pope 6000 Marks to moderate his intollerable Visitation of them, 789. His decree concerning Visitations and procurations, 790, 791. His Letters to St. Augustines Canterbury, that the Archbishop should not disturb the Abbot or Convent by visiting, suspending, or excommunicating them, which the Archbishop with indignation burned, before he had scarce read them over, 791. His several Bulls of Priviledge granted to this Monastery, concerning Procurations, Provisions, the rules of their order, the consecration of their Abbot, purchased with great summes of money, 792, 793, 794. The Kings Letters to him on the behalf of the Bishop of Cicester and his Chaplains employed in collecting the Dimes, to provide competent livings for them, 797. To excite all other Christian Kings to joyn with him in assisting the Holy Land, 798. His injunction to Bishops, to visit all Abbots and Convents in their Diocesse, and to observe certain impertinent orders of St. Benedict: The Monks to redeem themselves from this Tyranny, gave the Pope 4000 l. of sterling money, others appealed to him, and so prevented the Visitation: His intollerable Rapines, Hypocrisie, Tyranny, Avarice, Provisions, Simony, Oppressions, Bulls, Non-obstantes, 798, 799. Bishop Großbrads notable Epistle to, invectives against him, and his Court of Romes detestable corruptions; as being worthy of eternal death, Antichrists, Judasess, yea worse then the Murderers of Christ; for which he suspended him his Bishoprick, resolved to excommunicate, d'g up, burn his bones, and proclaim him an heretick, infidel, Rebell to all the world, 799, to 805. His dreadful dream; Großbrads Ghosts apparition, speech to him, summoning him before Christs Tribunal, smiting him with his pastoral Staff on the side, and pricking him to the heart, whereof he dyed, 804, 805: (See Großbrad, Index 3.) His hatred, war, interdict, excommunication, slanders against Conrade, as an heretick, infidel, persecuter of the Church; with his poisoning, lamentation, and speeches against this Step-father of the Church at his death, 809, to 911. His great rejoycing at the deaths of Conrade and Großbrad, 810. His own terrible Vision, death soon after, 804, 805, 812, 813. His Bull for dispensations with pluralities of Benefices, against Councils and Canons, made only for Popes to gain money by dispensing with them, 1063, 1064.

His death before their execution, successors pursuit of the premises, 1020, 1021.

INDEX II. Of the Popes Cardinals, matters concerning them, Letters to, from, and Negotiations with them, by our Kings, Nobles, and Others.

Cardinals the nobler Members, Pillars of the Roman Church, 307. They claim the Papal power as devolved to, residing in them during the vacancy of the See of Rome: grant, recall provisions, p. 650, 651. See Mat. Westmister, An. 1243. p. 173. They elect the Pope, 605, 647, 648, 649, 650, 651, 759. Their delays, schisms, discords, supplanting, poisoning each other in electing Popes, 647, to 651, 759. They Present to vacant Churches against right, 516, 521, 522. Some of them disliked, opposed the proceedings of Popes, and corruptions of the Roman Church, 489, 490, 548, 549, 517, 591, 800, 801. Imprisoned, plundered by the Emperor Frederick, for their Treasons, Rebellions, Schisms, obstinacy, in resorting to a Council by Sea, to depose him, against his advice and prohibition, 515, 519, 551, 648, 649, 650, 655, 656, 657, 753. Counsell, advise, order causes, sit in judgement, joyn in censures, Bulls, subscriptions with the Pope, who styles them his Brethren, 234, 340, 342, 419, 433, 452, 453, 515, 519, 526, 538, 548, 652, 653, 656, 677, 658, 919, 920, 925, 948, 953, Appendix 24. Enforced Pope Innocent 4. to reverse his Decree for intestates goods, as belonging to him, for its scandal, injustice, 691. Pensions granted, presents sent to several of them and their Nephews by our Kings to promote their affairs in the Court of Rome, 314, 315, 442, 549, 570, 736, 756, 866, 977, 1031, 1039, 1048. Letters of the Emperor, King Henry 3. our Nobles, others, to all the Cardinals in general, concerning publick affairs, grievances, oppressions, or for particular persons, 307, 308, 491, 517, 519, 531, 581, 582, 670, 671, 679, 680, 689, 870, 915, 916, 941, 943, 944, 948, 961, 962, 963, 964, 986, 987, 988, 1018, 1030. great scandal to Christian people, complaining of these Roman Mouse-traps to insnare the simple, and wrest gold and silver from them, 545, 546. His exacting the 5th. part of the goods of Aliens beneficed in England, and of the Prelates, Abbots, Clergies goods, to repulse the pretended injuries of the Emperor Frederick done to the Church; the Prelates refuse to pay it, as an unsupportable burden; the desolation of the Church, State of England, made a prey like a Vineyard without an Hedge by every Roman passenger, 546. The Emperors Letter to the King of England against his rapines; who answered, he durst not contradict the Popes will, 547, 548. He summons the Clergy to London by the Popes authority, who deserted by the King, becoming like Sheep delivered up to the bloody jaws of Wolves, yielded to his intolerable exactions, though resolved to appeal against and withstand them, 549. He exhausted most of the Treasure of England, engaged the King and English Prelates against the Emperor, to conquer and depose him, 551, 553. His exacting the Benefices of the Popes Clerks & Agents from Dimes paid by others, 1048. The Kings Prohibition to him against holding Plea of a Pichury, belonging to his Temporal Court, Crown, Dignity, 558. Put to blush and silence by one convicted before him, denying Gregory to be Pope, or Head of the Church, or to have the power of St. Peter, being a Symoniack, Usurer, Heretick, and involved in sundry other crimes, 560. The Kings Prohibition to him to exact the 5th. or any other part of the Benefices of his Clerks attending on his service, which he could by no means endure, 561, 562. The Monks of Canterbury claim their privilege before him at Pauls, in the presence of the Archbishop, Bishops, and many Nobles, 565. Simon a Norman, the chief cause of this Legates stay in England, deprived of his Archdeaconry by the Pope, 566. He is present at the consecration of Pauls Church, and confirms the Indulgence of 14. years granted by the Bishop of London to all devoutly resorting to it to pray, 566. Joynes with Peter Rubus in exacting a great Tax from the Prelates, Abbots, to shed Christian blood and conquer the Emperor: The Bishops and Canons answers to, and exceptions against his intolerable demands; He endeavours to raise a schisme and division amongst the Clergy, to obtain his exactions, 567, 568, 569. He demands Procurations from the Cistercians, who manfully denied them, as contrary to their Privileges, which the Pope dispensed with by his Non-obstante, 569, 570. The King upon his departure out of England by the Popes summons, feasted, placed him in his own Royal Throne at dinner, to the admiration of many, Knighted his Nephew, and bestowed an annuity of 30 l. a year on him, which he presently sold; accompanied by the King and Nobles in great state to the Sea side; their solemn Valediction; how much the Kingdom rejoiced at his departure; he leaving not so much money in England when he left it, as he had drained out of it; he conferred above 300 rich Prebendaries and Benefices at his own and the Popes pleasure, on their creatures; spoiled the Church of Salernum and many other Cathedrals, leaving them destitute of consolation; did nothing at all for the Churches benefit, demonstrated he was not sent to protect the sheep which furnished, but to fleece, and gather up all the money he found amongst them, for which he was deservedly scourged by God, being taken prisoner and spoiled of all his prey by the Emperor, 570, 571, 572, 573, 577. He is summoned by the Pope to the Council against the Emperor; animates the Prelates with Papal promises to resort to the Council, against the Emperors Prohibitions and advice, whom they contemned, as unable to resist the Pope, being so often excommunicated and delivered to Satan by him: He and two other Legates, with above 100 Prelates, taken prisoners at Sea, imprisoned, spoiled by the Emperor, 553, 554, 555, 556, 557, 570, 571. Released out of prison to elect a Pope, he gives his Oath and Sureties to render himself to prison after the election, which he did accordingly to release his Sureties, 647, 648. Othobon, Othobon, Cardinal Deacon of St. Adrian, Pope Clement the 4th. and Urban the 4th. their Legate into England; 7000 Marks due for seven years for the rent of England and Ireland, ordered to be paid to him out of the Dismes of Ireland, for Pope Clements use, 310, 311. Sent for and desired by the King to assist him against, and excommunicate the Prelates, Barons, for opposing and taking up Armes against him: The Kings safe conduct granted to him and his for their persons, goods, and exemption from all Customes, Taxes, wherever they should arrive or passe throughout the Realm, 1104, 1015. He comes in red garments into England, summoned a Council at Westminster, then at Northampton, excommunicated, suspended all the Bishops, Clerks who had ayded or favoured Earl Simon against the King, and the Bishops of Winton, Worcester, London, Chichester by name, citing them personally to appear before the Pope, and all others then in Rebellion against the King, 1018, 1019, 1022, 1023. The Articles of Peace and Statutes of Kenilworth between the King and Barons, made at his request, 1029, 1021, 1022. The Kings protection and safe conduct to Bishops and others in Armes against him, to repair to the Legate to make their Compositions, and for other necessary affairs, 1020. The Bishops and Barons appeal against his Excommunications of them as unjust, to a General Council, Church Triumphant, and condemn them, 1021, 1022. The disinherited persons in Armes and others answers to his Propositions, as unjustly disinherited, excommunicated, exhorting him to revoke his unjust sentence, against which they appealed to the Pope, a General Council, and the Chief Judge; checking him for banishing the Bishops faithfull to the King-dm, and usurping the profits of their Bishopricks for himself, which they advised him to reform, at which he was highly offended, 1022, 1023. The King feasted, placed him in his own Royal Throne at dinner; summons a Parliament, requires ayd to subdue the Barons and others, persisting in armes by force; accused for banishing the Kings natural born Subjects, that this Legate and aliens might more freely acquire their Lands, 1024, 1025. He possessed himself of the Tower of London, published a Croisado at Pauls Crosse, admonished the Earl of Gloucester to return to his allegiance to the King, who refusing his advice, besieged him in the Tower to which he fled, prohibiting any to bring or sell victuals to him, 1025. He excommunicated all disturbers of the publick peace, interdicted all Churches in and near London, permitting Religious Houses to say Masses privately with a low voyce, without ringing Bells, 1025. The Kings Writ to deliver his Jewels in the Tower to him, and pawn them for money, 1026. His publication of Pope Clement the 4th. his Bull for a Disme granted to the King to supply his necessities, to be levied with severe penalties; relating the injuries, rebellions of the Barons against him, and the necessity, conveniency of the Clergies supplying him, 1026, 1030. He assigned persons for collecting, and auditors for accounts of the Disme, ordered, disposed of by the King only as he directed, 1033, to 1036, 1047, 1050, 1051, 1053, 1055. He summons a Council at St. Pauls London, of the Bishops of England, Scotland, and Ireland, to reform and enlarge the former Canons of Otto: The Canons made therein against sale of Ecclesiastical Sacraments and Holy things; for Archbishops and Bishops personal residence on their Bishopricks, and discharging their Pastoral duties; against Clergymens exercising secular Offices or Jurisdiction; against Pluralities, Commendades, Clergymens Coverture, Non-residence, and making any Pluralist a Bishop, 1040, to 1046.

Paulinus, Pope Innocent the 3d. his Subdeacon, Familiar, Legate to King John, persecuted Alexander Crenmarium for pleading, writing for King John, against the Pope, 159. Sent into England to make peace between the King, Priesthood, and exiled Bishops; who Interdicted the Realm by command of Archbishop Langton and the Pope: His high most insolent speeches, deportment towards King John in the face of his Nobles and Parliament: He absolves all his Subjects from their allegiance, homages, tenures to him; enjoined particular Bishops in England, Wales, Scotland, and other parts beyond the Seas, to excommunicate him publicly, and all who communicated with him; excites all to fight against him, as an enemy to Holy Church; tells him, that neither he nor his Heirs should from that day be ever crowned; would not fear to tell the King all his message from the Pope to his face, though he should dye for it; called for a Book and Candle to excommunicate the King, for commanding some prisoners and a Clerk to be executed before him; The Kings indignation against him for his insolency, 162, to 165. Sent with the Bishops into France to publish King John's deposition from his Crown and Kingdoms, its donation to the French King, and excite him to seize it by force of armes; his private conference with, and instructions from the Pope, to make an accord with King John if he consented to certain Articles proposed by him, 167. He comes into England, decoyed King John, inducing him by threats and other indirect practices to restore the exiled Bishops and their adherents, with the profits of their Bishopricks, and damages sustained by their exile; to receive Langton as Archbishop, to surrender his Crown, Kingdoms to the Pope, become his Vassal, Homager, Tributary for England and Ireland, 169, to 193. He kept the Kings Crown in his hands five dayes after its resignation, which the King took from his own head and put on this Legate, 173. The Kings detestable Charter of Resignation, Homage, Oath of Fealty to the Pope, made and delivered to him; he named therein, 173, 174, 189. He insolently tramples under his feet the money which the King gave him as a pledge of subjection to the Pope, 174. He departs with the Kings Charter and 8000 l. sterling into France; prohibits the French King to invade England, being now St. Peters Patrimony, or King John's, now his Vassal, Tributary; at which he was greatly incensed, yet then forbore to invade England, nor upon Paulinus prohibition, but because the Earl of Flanders refused to assist him in such an unjust invasion, 175, 176. The King by Writ at his request delivered imprisoned Clerks to him, 183. He carried King John's Charter to Rome, applauds his extraordinary humility to the Pope, having never seen so humble a King, accused Archbishop Langton, and much disparaged him, notwithstanding his brother Simons opposition, 330. Pope Innocents Letter to him and others, to publish his Excommunication every Lords-day and Holy-day against the Barons in armes against King John, as worse then Saracens, 344, 345, 346. His execution thereof against the Barons, Ibid. The transmutation of the union of the Abby of Glasse to the Bishoprick of Bath and Wells, and differences between the Bishop and Abbot, referred to him and others by the Pope, 357, 358. Enjoined with others as Pope Innocents Delegates, to excommunicate several Barons; Citizens of London by name, and Interdict them; who decided, disobeyed, declared against their Excommunications, Interdicts, and the Pope, for abusing and exceeding his authority, 359, 360, 361. Bishop of Norwich elect, he excommunicates the Earl of Albemarle, for invading, detaining the Kings Castles, 378, 379. His publick acknowledge before several Bishops of the Kings Council, concerning the Church of Acleya, and Writ thereupon, 381. He confirmed the election of the Bishop of London, approved by the King, 384. His and Gual's Ordinance concerning the Church of New Castle upon Tyne, and Bishop of Carlisle's right to it, 421.

Peter Rabens, Rabry, Pope Gregory the 9th. his exactor of a new exaction of monies formerly unheard of, execrable in all ages; exacts an infinite sum of money from the miserable Eng'ish, giving an Oath of secrecy to Bishops, Abbots, Clerks, not to discover his exactions to any other, treating with every of them in private, like Thieves who extort Oaths from those they rob, not to discover them, 568, 567. The Bishops generally complain of his extortions out of their Baronies held of the King, desiring his protection against them, from incessant Papal tortures, by new-minted extortions, 567, 572. Their and the Clerges exceptions against his unjust demands, which they unanimously opposed, 567, to 570. He diligently and greedily exacted Procurations and great sums of money, by Letters sent to particular Bishops, Abbots, Monasteries under the title of the Popes Familiar and Kinsman, both in England, Ireland, and Scotland, having power to Interdict, Excommunicate all opposers; concealed the death of the Pope, lest the King should retain the great sums of money collected, 572. The Kings Prohibitions to him to exact no Contributions for the Pope, from the Clerks employed in his service, 573, 574. The Emperors Agent Walter de Oerd discovered, seized all the monies he and his Companion had extorted out of England, Scotland, Ireland, in the Merchants hands who were to return it, confiscating it to the Emperors use, 572, 604, 605.

Peter Saracenus, the Popes Agent in England, taken, imprisoned, put to a great ransom by the Emperor, 508, 592.

Peter de Supino, sent by Peter Ruicenus into Ireland to extort monies thence, with the Kings permission and Writ of assistance, who extorted the 20th part of all the Clergies estates, bringing thence 1500 Marks, besides rich presents, which he speedily transported, but the Emperors Agent met with it at last, 572, 604, 605.

Philip, Martins Agent left behind him when he fled out of England, to extort monies, leaving his filthy foot-steps for him to follow, 616.

Predestinatus, a Cardinal Bishop, Pope Gregory the 9th. his Nuncio sent against the Albigenses, hindered by the Emperor, 515, 516. Imprisoned for stirring up Lombardy to rebell against the Emperor, 523.

R.

R. Cardinal Deacon of St. Angelo, Legate in France, 423. Pope Honorius his Bull, to him to induce the French King not to stay K.H.3. his Nuncios passage to Rome, 396.

Robert de Circus, a Cardinal Legate in France under Pope Innocent 3. held a Council at Burdeaux, made sundry Canons, his care to preserve the Rights of King John and his Heirs therein, 357, 358.

Mr. Romanus, Pope Honorius 3. his Legate into France, his Council; his demands of each Bishop and Prelate in particular under an Oath of secrecy; excommunicated all those who discovered the Popes secrets; he exacted two Prebendaries from every Cathedral, and the allowance of one or two Monks from every Monastery, to prevent the infamy of the Church and Court of Rome for bribes, symony, and other extortions, occasioned by her poverty; the Bishops, Archdeacons, Clergies answer and strenuous opposition against it, 299, 400, 401. His preaching a Croisado against the Earl of Thouars and Albigenses in France, to get money, which many held unchristian, being to shed the blood of such Christians who offered to submit themselves to an inquiry of their Faith in every City;

City, that he might reduce them by his exhortations, if erroneous; He refused all peace with the Earl of Thoufse, unless he would renounce his Earldom; The King of France crosseth himself against the Albigenses, and procures an Inhibition from the Pope to King H. 3. not to invade him while employed in this War, 401, 404.

Rustand, a Gascon Lawyer, Pope Alexander the 4th. his Nuncio to King H. 3. to collect a Disme in England, Ireland, and Scotland, to the Kings and Popes use indifferently, notwithstanding any former Privileges or Indulgences, 821, 822. Received with great honour by the King, to the prejudice of the Realm, 822. Had power to absolve all from their vows for money, who vowed to go to the Holy Land, 821, 822. He joyues with the Bishop of Hereford in binding most English Bishops, Abbots to the Popes Usurers, in bonds of 3, 6, 700 Mar. or more, without their pivity or consent, for the Popes use, 820, 821. He enjoyed the Monks of St. Albans to pay 600 Marks to him at an impossible day, to enforce them to borrow money of his Usurers, besides use, expenses, the chiefest part of them being absent, under pain of Interdict and Excommunication, 822, 823. The Bishops generally oppose, appeal against his Obligations, to the Pope, but without red esse; he being a learned man, potent to do harm, and promoting the Popes oppressions, 823, 824. The Bishop of London Proclamation, that none should be impleaded upon his Letters or Bonds; his complaint thereof to the King and Pope; their menaces, and his resolute answer to them, Ibid. He puts the Popes seal to blank schedules, write in them what he pleased by the Popes own consent, as the issue evidenced, though not credited at first, 824. He excommunicated, suspended all contradiators to pay the Obligations in their names, justly or unjustly; the King and Rustand, like the Shepherd and Wolf, confederating together to undo and destroy them, the Prelates and Clergy being divided, who if united might have appealed & preserved themselves, 824. Prelates and peoples devotion to the Church and Pope of Rome expired, by his extortions, causing their hearts to bleed through bitterness of spirit; many innocent persons turning as it were Apostates, and renouncing the truth, through their loss of temporal goods, 824. The indulgences, privileges of Holy men nullified by the Pope and him, as of no value; three years Dismes suddenly changed into five, as if promised; Dismes for relief of the Holy Land, are turned to the ayde of Apulia against the Christians; men were compelled to lye and forswear themselves many wayes, prohibited from heaven in both Testaments; divers enforced to pay money at impossible dayes, to necessitate them to borrow it of the Popes Usurers; Prelates were sold like Sheep and Asses, by such sellers as were to be cast out of the Temple, the cry of whose violence ascended to the ears of the God of Vengeance, 824, 825. He averred all Churches were the Popes, not only to protect, but appropriate and dispose of; required every Clerk particularly to give his own answer to his demands, not jointly with the rest, which made them all silent, or ignorant what to answer: He refused to alter one syllable he had written in their bonds, as borrowed of the Italian Merchants for the publick benefit of their Churches, though apparently false, 841. Many affirmed that they should be Martyrs, like Thomas Becket, if they suffered in this cause; whereupon the Clergy appealed to the Pope, and sent a general Proctor to Rome against these forged Obligations, which the Barons animated the Prelates to resist, 841. Pope Alexander the 4. his Bull to Rustand concerning the payment of these forged Obligations, and sums in them, to his Merchants; which few had courage to resist, or to joyn with, or compassionate the suffering of those who withstood them, 844, 845. He summoned all Abbots of the Cistercian Order to appear before him, demands a vast sum of money from them, to the annual value of their wool, or more, for the use of the King or Pope; which they refusing, he caused the King to oppress them, who would have aydes and money as well as prayers from them, 846, 847. The King grants him 300 Marks a year in Prebends and Benefices in his gift which should first fall voyd, 855. The chief Collector of the Dismes and Crosse-money; Writs issued to him concerning H. 862, to 867, 921. His industry in collecting them, 871. The Kings Writ to provide a speedy passage for him at Dover, upon his return to Rome, 868. The Popes grant and Privilege of Sicily, with other Writs and Procurations, delivered to him, to be carried and delivered by him to the Kings Embassadors and Proctors to the Pope concerning that affair, and moderation of the hard conditions imposed by the Pope on the King, 914, 916, 920, 943. His account of the Dismes collected, and their disbursements, 917, 918, 958, 959, 960. Accused to the Pope for overmuch intending his own profit, and over-vigilantly heaping up possessions, rents, monies in England, so that he was as wealthy as most Nobles, and swayed the King and Bishops; for which he incurred the indignation of the Pope and many others, upon his return to Rome: Pretended himself the Kings natural born Subject, and principal promoter of his affairs in the Court of Rome; grievously reprehended by the Pope, and deprived of his former dignity, power with disgrace, 927, 928, 930. Employed, sent by King Henry to the Court of Rome about his affairs, as his Proctor, when he left England, 943, 944, 946, 947, 948, 957, 1035.

The Bishop of Sabie, a Cardinal of Rome, sent Legate by Pope Innocent 4. to Harso King of Denmark, Norway and Sweden, King H. 3. refused to grant him a license to enter England, till he had first sworn upon his Soul, that he came into England for no detriment of the King, Kingdom, or Church, but only that he would passe quietly through it from the port of Dover to the port of Leam, presently upon the next opportunity and prosperous winde, to depart thence to those further Realms, because Popes Legates of what sort soever, and all Papal Nuncios are always accustomed to improve, or by some means to disturb the Realm into which they enter: After his license obtained, visit of, and free gifts from the King, he stayed here near three months, could not refrain his innate Roman covetousnesse, but sent private Messengers to Bishops, Abbots and Priors, to send him large Procurations and precious gifts; preaching often to the people, that he might palliate all things under the shew of Holinesse; He furnished his Ship (built like Noahs Ark, with many rich Cabines for his entertainment) most plentifully, with much Corn, very many Tuns of choycest Wines, and other victuals, at the English Clergies prodigality, on whom he bestowed his benediction, being enriched by them; celebrates Masse in the Ship by a Facer Predicant, to the admiration of many, 697. See Guido before.

Simon, Pope Urban 4. and Clement 4. their Nuncio, Proctor in England, to receive the arrears of the annual rent due from King H. 3. 310, 311. and concerning the business of Sicily, 932.

Simon Præfatus, a Cardinal Bishop, his Clerk collects Procurations in Ireland by the Kings license, as a Legate there, 559.

Stephen, Pope Gregory the 9th. his Chaplain, Nuncio to King H. 3. to collect the Dismes promised him by the Kings Nuncios at Rome, to maintain his Wars against the Emperor Frederick; summons all the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors to Westminster, read the Popes Bull to them exacting a Disme from England, Wales, and Ireland, who like natural Children ought to relieve their Mother the Church of Rome in her necessities; which the

the King condescended to as obliged by promise; but all the Lay-Barons peremptorily denied to grant out of their Lay-possessions, yet the Clergy submitted to it in a qualified manner, for fear of Excommunication, 424, 425, 426. He extorted the collection of Dimes not according to the 10th. part formerly paid to the King, but at the improved value of all profits, possessions, without fraud or collusion, to be paid in a short time under pain of Excommunication, and sent to the Pope before autumn or harvest was over, for the corn then growing; to enforce them to borrow monies from the Foreign Usurers he brought with him, on hard terms, to the undoing of many, 426, 427.

Slindens, invaded by the French King, when prohibited to invade England, 275.

France, Popes pretended Title to it, 9, 291. An Ayde granted, collected therein by the Kings assent, upon the Popes Bull and Legate sent thither, for relief of the Holy Land, 292, 299, 300. Kings of France ought not to alienate their Crown Lands or Territories to others, their alienation of them voyd, 319, to 324. The Realm of England never was in subjection to France; its descent to King Edward 3. his Law concerning it, 325. No Pope presumed to confer any Prebendary, Benefice by Provision therein, till Pope Innocent 3. 320, 777, 778. The French invade England, excommunicated by the Popes Legate, 361, 362. See Lower. The French Peers, Courts proceedings and condemnation of King John to death, for murdering his Nephew Arthur; the Popes exceptions against it as voyd, 363, 364. Pope Innocent and Pope Gregorys Bulls to the French King, for the English to pass and reside freely to Rome through France, without impediment, 396, 408. The Popes Legate calls a Council therein against the Earl of Thoulouse, exacts two Prebendaries, and two Monks portions in every Cathedral, Monastery there, to avoyd the old infamy of avarice, synony, lechery, and delay of justice in the Court of Rome, with the French Bishops, Clergies answers, oppositions against it, 402, 403, 403. A Croisado published in it against the Earl of Thoulouse and Albigeais; the French King crosseth himself against them; the Pope prohibits the King of England to invade France, during his employment in this War against these good Christians, 403, 404. Wars between England and France, 406, 408. A Truce propounded between them, 446. King H. 3. his invasion of it, the Earl of Britains revolt from him to the King of France, against his Oath and Obligations, 455, 456. A Croisado published in it, to defraud the people and pick their purses, 470, 512. The Kings and Popes Agents rigour in extorting it; his and his Armies great defeat, slaughter, the King taken prisoner by the Saracens soon after, to his Kingdoms great desolation, reputed a just judgement, 717, 733, 734, 753, 754, 776. The French Kings, Peers confederate, and memorable protestation against the Popes, Bishops, Ecclesiastical Officers encroachments upon their Rights, Liberties, by new Constitutions, holding Pleas of Temporal causes, abuse of Excommunications, Oaths, &c. 699, to 760. France reduced to poverty by Pope Innocent 4. conspired against the Pope and Cardinals, 696, 698. Many Frenchmen slain in aiding Baldwin in his expedition against the Grecians, 492. The French crossed for the Holy Wars, prohibited to go by the Pope, when prepared; their speeches, mutiny thereupon, 512, 513. The French Kings, and his Nobles, Counsils detestation of, speeches against Pope Gregorys depriving the Emperor Frederick; Robert the Kings brothers refusal of the Empire, tendered to him by the Pope; the dignity of its Kings by lineal descent, 540, 541. The French always envy the English, traduce the Kings of England for banishing Becket, and Edmund of Canterbury his leaving England in discontent, 491. The long feud, controversy between France and England, which destroyed innumerable people, prayed by King H. 3. to be composed by the Popes mediation, 944, 945, 956, 957. A Peace at last concluded, 961. King Henries advice to Prince Edward, by reason of his sickness, to hasten his return with the French King from the Holy Wars, 1058.

King Francis 1. of France; declares his Articles under hand and seal, ratified by his Oath, to consign the Duchy of Burgundy to the Emperor for his ransom, to be voyd, because against his Coronation Oath, and Laws of France, not to alienate the Crown Lands, 319, 320. King Francis 2. of France; his complaint of the alienation and mortgaging the Crown Lands thereof, 325.

Frederick the 1. whiles King of Sicily persecuted by Otto the Emperor, for seizing some Castles of the Empire during the vacancy, 260. Made Emperor by Pope Innocent 3. out of meer malice to Otto 4. (interdicted, excommunicated, deposed by him, only for seizing and restoring to the Empire, according to his Coronation Oath, the ancient Possessions thereof, which Popes had injuriously usurped) on purpose to persecute Otto to death by force of Armes, 539. He (by a just retaliation) is soon after excommunicated by Bulls published in all places, interdicted, deposed by Pope Gregory the 9th. for not going to Jerusalem against the Saracens according to his Oath, though hindered by sickness, necessary emergent affairs of the Empire, and Civil Wars raised against him in Sicily, by this Popes instigation; and for contemning the Popes and St. Peters Keyes: All prohibited to celebrate divine service to him, till he submitted himself to the Church; to be proceeded against as an Heretick, if he presumed to be present at divine service; all his Subjects absolved from their allegiance; deprived of his Empire, for endeavoring to recover the ancient rights, possessions of it from the Popes, Churches usurpations, 409, to 414. His notable Letters to the King of England, and all Christian Princes, setting forth Popes designs by Excommunications, Interdicts, to wrest their Kingdoms, Lands out of their hands, make them their Vassals, Tributaries, trample them under feet like King John and the Earl of Thoulouse; pick all their Subjects purses, swallow up their wealth by unsatiable blood-suckers, Legates, Wolves in Sheeps cloathing; their synonies, rapines, extortions, unheard of in former ages, 414, 415. King H. 3. his Letter to him, not to revolt from his obedience to the Church of Rome, but humbly to obey and submit to the Pope, 415, 416. He goes to the Holy Land, to avoyd the scandals raised of him, and his Excommunication for not going, which the Pope continued; at his arrival at Acon none of the people or Clergy would kiss, eat with him, but advised him to satisfy the Pope, and be reconciled to the Church; his complaints to them against the Popes unjust censures, 416. The Pope pronounced him contumacious for going to the Holy Land according to his vow, before his absolution; endeavours to dethrone him by the Material Sword, when unable to do it by the Spiritual, against the Laws of Christ and Christianity; hired, raised great forces under John de Bressens, to invade his Territories with fire and sword; authorized thieves, robbers, incendiaries to dethrone him, whiles engaged against Christs enemies, to the admiration of all Christians, 416, 417. His Imperial Seal, Mottoes affixed to his Letters, 417. He recovers Jerusalem; yet the Patriarch and his Suffragans would not say Mass there whiles he was in it, 417. His Victories against the Saracens envied by Pope Gregory, who suborned the Templars to betray him to the Soldan, who detests, reveals their Treachery; He dispersed scandalous Letters against him in England and elsewhere; caused men, monies to be raised in all places more industriously then before to dethrone him; vacated the due election of the Archbishop elect of Canterbury, for money and a Disme promised him in England and Ireland to disinherit and depose the Emperor, which he desired above all things, 418, 419. The Pope and his enemies blast his fame in several Letters to England and elsewhere, as guilty of most execrable heresie, blasphemy, killing Moses and Christs Impostors, as well as Mahomet; and uttering most nefarious opinions; speeches of the Sacrament of the Eucharist, which no discreet Christian could believe he ever used, only to engage all against him; He stirred up the Millains to rebell against him, 512, 513. He seized the Islands in the Mediterranean Sea, the City of Pisa, and greatest part of Sardinia, which Popes usurped as part of St. Peters Patrimony, anciently belonging to the Empire; whose dissipated possessions he (as bound by by Oath) strenuously endeavoured to restore: For which the Pope growing very angry, in the presence of his Cardinals on Palme Sunday solemnly excommunicated, delivered him to Satan to be destroyed, and deposed him; in such a dreadfull thundering fury, as made all auditors greatly to tremble: The form of his Excommunication, absolving his Subjects from their allegiance, and deposing, upon pretext of his raising sedition in Rome against the Church, to thrust him and his Cardinals from their seat, trample the privileges, dignities, honours, liberties of the Apostolick See, Church under feet; hindring presentations to vacant Churches; apprehending, imprisoning, banishing, slaying some rebellious Clergymen, (sent abroad to raise monies, forces against him) spoyleing some Templars, Hospitals, Churches of their goods; laying Taxes upon Churches, Monasteries, compelling Bishops, Abbots, Cistercians to contribute towards the building of Castles; thinking ill of the Catholick Faith, and other particulars, 514, 515, 516. His high indignation against Pope Gregory for publishing these scandalous Excommunications, Letters against him by his Legates in all Kingdoms, Churches: He surpriseth Mount Cassini, where the Monks published his Excommunication; writes severe reprehensive Letters to the Romans, for suffering him the chief Prince of Princes, their Emperor, natural Lord to be excommunicated in his own chief City; and to the Cardinals, for suffering the Pope so rashly, unjustly to draw his Spiritual Sword against him the Roman Emperor, and advocate of the Church; for fomenting and not restraining his unbridled authority according to their duties, which necessitated him for his own defence against this persecutor, more grievously to offend those who resisted his just power, 517, 518, 519. Prophecies concerning his or the Popes ceasing to be Head of the whole World, 519, 520. His answer to all the Popes scandalls comprised in his Bulls of Excommunication, 520, to 525. The Popes Legate published his Excommunication at Pauls and St. Albans, commanded him to be excommunicated with Bells and Candles, in all Churches, every Lords-day and Holy-day, 525, 526, 527. His Letters to Richard Earl of Cornwall, against his injurious Excommunication and Popes slanders, to vindicate his innocency; wherein he largely describes the unparallel'd injustice, malice, treachery, slanders, calumnies of Pope Gregory the 9th. against him, divulged by Letters, Nuncios in all places; his raising rebellions, seditions in Italy, Germany, Lombardy, Millain, against him the supreme of Christian Princes: That he reputed him not to be a Judge competent to excommunicate or depose him; who declared himself his capital enemy both in words and deeds, by fostering his enemies, instigating his Subjects to rebell, yea causing hereticks in Millain to rise up against him and the Empire: That he deemed him unworthy to be reputed Christs Vicar, Peters Successor, and Steward of Christian souls, for selling dispensations privately in his Chamber, like a Merchant, without advice of his Cardinals, (with whom he was bound to deliberate) against Oaths solemnly made, divorces judicially pronounced, to marry within degrees prohibited, for dilapidating not only the monies, but lands and possessions of the Church of Rome, wherof he was the supreme Patron, to raise Soldiers to fight against him: Therefore the Universal Church and people of God might not wonder, that he dreaded not the sentence of such a Judge; not in contempt of the Papal Office, or Apostolical Dignity, but in respect of the prevarication of the person, who demonstrated himself unworthy the chair of so great a dignity; that all Christian Princes might acknowledge his holy intention, purpose, zeal, that he the Roman Prince had for most just cause opposed the Roman Prelate, out of fear lest the Lords flock should be lead into by-ways under such a Pastor, 527, to 532. Pope Gregorys reply thereto, fraught with new defamations, for asserting,

That he as Christs Vicar had no authority to excommunicate him; That Christ had given to St. Peter and his Successors, no power in the Church of such binding and loosing: concluding him from thence to be an heretick, having no good opinion of the Articles of Christian Faith, whiles he endeavoured to take away this privilege and power from the Church, on which the Catholick Faith is built; recharging him with the promised blasphemies against Moses, Christ, and the Eucharist, which he denied: By which Epistles the whole world had been unanimously exasperated, and risen up against him as an apparent Enemy of Christ and the Church, had not the Popes detestable avarice, and execrable dishonesty of the Roman Church, rendered his Bulls so contemptible, that none or very few believed them: They being perswaded, that the Church of Rome was more obliged to the Emperor, who according to his Oath manfully intended to regain, restore the rights of the Empire, then he was to the Church, 532, to 540. The Popes Nuncios, Letters to the French King, published before all his Barons, declaring he had judicially deposed him from the Empire for his wickedness, elected the French Kings brother Earl Robert Emperor in his place, whom the Church of Rome and Universal Church would generously assist. Upon which the French King and his Council demanded; By what spirit or rash attempt the Pope had disinherited and precipitated from the Imperial dignity so great a Prince, then whom there was not a greater, yea not an equal, nor being convicted of, nor confessing the crimes objected? That if he deserved to be deposed, he was not to be adjudged, cashiered but by a General Council; That no credit was to be given to the crimes objected against him by professed enemies, wherof the Pope was known to be the principal; That he was yet guiltlesse as to them, and a good neighbour, who never discerned any infidelity in him in secular matters, or in the Catholick Faith; That they knew he faithfully warred for our Lord Jesus Christ against the Saracens, jeopardizing himself both by Land and Sea for his cause; That they found not so much Religion in the Pope, who instead of assisting, promoting, proceling him warring in Gods cause, as he ought to do, wickedly endeavoured to confound and supplant him whiles absent; That they could not precipitate themselves into so great dangers to impugn Frederick himself, being so potent, whom so many Kingdoms would assist against them, and whose just cause would afford him assistance; That the Pope cared not for the prodigal effusion of their blood, so as they might satisfy his wrath: That if he should conquer him by them or others, he would tread down all other Princes of the world under his feet; assuming honours of boasting and pride, because he had broken in pieces the great Emperor Frederick himself; That they would send messengers to him, to enquire diligently, and certify them of the Orthodoxy of his Faith; That if they found nothing in him but what was found, why should they impugn him? If otherwise, they would persecute both him, yea and the Pope himself if he shall think evil of God, or any other mortal even unto death: whereupon the Nuncios departed confounded. His satisfactory pious answer to the French Messengers, concerning the Orthodoxy of his Faith, the treacheries of the Pope, and prayer to God to avenge them, 540, 541. He maketh a Truce with the Soldan, recovers the Cities taken from him by the Popes forces, marched towards Rome against the Pope, who endeavoured not only to depose, but murder him; writes Letters to the King of England, relating the Popes impious proceedings, Rebellions, Wars raised against, and ingratitude towards him; exhorts him to adhere to, and assist him in this cause, which concerned the Jurisdiction, honour, security of all other Kings, Princes, whose rights he patronized; which Letters much discredited the Popes authority, and prejudiced the Clergies honour, 542, to 545. His ex-postulatory Letters to King H. 3, for permitting the Popes Agents continually to export vast sums of money out of his

Realm,

Realm, to maintain Wars against him; and suffering his scandalous Bulls to be published in all places to his infamy, against the Law of Nature, Nations, bonds of affinity between them, being his Son-in-law, Brother, Friend, against whom he had declared no War; his cause concerning the Interest, Prerogative of other Kings Crowns, and his own; the Pope to his infamy claiming a Lordly Dominion over him as his Vassal: To which he unworthily answered, That he durst not contradict the Popes will, 546, 547, 548. The Pope to divert his march to Rome, stirs up the Earl of Flanders to invade his Territories, 548. He makes peace with Milain and Bononia, reduceth the Cities near Rome to obedience by his forces and Letters, causeth the Romans and most of the Cardinals to desert the Pope, who desired a General Council to settle a peace between them, which he assented to: The Pope despairing of his cause, consents to a Truce till the Council: His Legate in France persuades him to break it, and bid open defiance to the Emperor, having raised monies enough to maintain one years War against him; He summons all the Emperors enemies to the Council, to depole him; who thereupon by his Letters to the King of England and others, prohibits the Bishops to repair to it, stops all their passages by Land; who upon the Popes Letters repairing thither with a strong Convoy sent from Jenna by Sea, three Popes Nuncios, above one hundred Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, and Proxies of Prelates, besides Embassadors from Cities in Rebellion against the Emperor, and above 4000 Mariners of Jenna were taken prisoners by the Emperors Gallies, and some Bishops slain, drowned in the fight, wherein God signally owned his cause against the Pope; his Letters concerning it, 549, to 558. He surpriseth the Popes new Castle built with the Croyado money, whereupon he dyed of grief and discontent, 647. The Cardinals desire his release of the imprisoned Cardinals, and license to elect a New Pope, to which he condescends: Their division, double election; he assents to one, but dislikes the other, being a Roman, and his professed enemy, 647, 648. Cardinal Colonna taken prisoner, his Castles demolished for seeming favourable to him, 648. The English Bishops Embassy to him, to remit his indignation against the Church of Rome, though justly provoked; to permit, command the Cardinals to elect a New Pope, after Celestine the 4. his death, Ibid. His answer, That the pertinacious pride, and insupportable covetousness of the Church of Rome, not he, hindered the proceedings to a New Popes election; That if he hindered the successes of the Roman and English Church, none might admire, since the one endeavored by all means to depole him from his Imperial dignity, and the other desired not to excommunicate, not a little to defame him, and pour forth their money to his detriment, 648, 649. He commanded the disagreeing Cardinals to elect a Pope, to take off the infamy, that he hindered the election; releaseth all the imprisoned Cardinals and Prelates at their request, for the Churches peace; who thereupon became more obstinate, schismatical, and hating each other then before: He thus deluded, besieged Rome and the Romans, as the authors of this schisme, to the detriment of the Church and Empire, from which suspicion the Roman Citizens freeing themselves by their Agents, and laying all the blame on the schismatical Cardinals, he by public Proclamation in his Camp commanded all the Cities and possessions of the Church and Cardinals to be depopulated by his Souldiers; which they vigorously pursuing, the Cardinals petitioned him to forbear his indignation and plunder of them, promising faithfully speedily to elect a Pope profitable both to the Church and Empire; they elect Innocent the 4. Pope, 649, 650, 651. This Pope being confirmed, trayterously ratified his former sentence of Excommunication, raised forces against him, rous his Army, publicly defamed him, That he never heard divine service nor prayers, (occasioned by his Excommunications, and Prelates refusal to communicate with him) that he did not worthily reverence Ecclesiastical persons; that he did neither rightly speak nor think of the Catholick Faith; that he lay with Saracen women; that he called Saracens and other Infidels into the Empire, wherein they built fortified Cities: Which calumnies caused many Noble, grave persons to depart from him, and his dejected enemies to lift up their heads: After which he caused the Germans to elect another Emperor, the Landgrave, who upon conference sided with him against the Pope; who refused all termes of peace, unless he would swear absolutely to stand to his Ecclesiastical censure, which he refused to do, unless he knew before hand the causes and all conditions of it; without restoring the places he had gained, belonging to the Empire of ancient right, 651. The Pope refuseth all sorts of cautions he tendered to him to settle peace, to the great rejoicing of Saracens, Turks, and other Pagans, who invaded, spoyled the Christians in all places during their dissensions: Upon which he stops all passages to Rome by Sea and Land, employing his Son Cosrode therein, forced the Pope and Cardinals to fly out of Rome and Italy disguised into France; his jeer against the Pope for this his dishonourable flight, 651, 652, 653. By assistance of the French King, the Pope summoned a General Council, excommunicated, deposed the Emperor afresh, absolves all his Subjects from their allegiance, prohibits any to own or converse with him under pain of Excommunication, in a most insolent manner, notwithstanding all his Embassadors, Advocates allegations and proffers of satisfaction, 643, to 654, 664, 753. The Bulls, causes of his Excommunication and dethroning, 644, to 660. His notable stout speech after his dethroning by the Pope and Council: He sets his Crown on his head, bids defiance against the Pope; sends notable Letters to the King of England and other Princes, against the pride, insolency, ingratitude of the Pope and Prelates, occasioned by their great endowments, riches, by the bounty of Christian Emperors, Kings, to the impoverishing of their Realms; asserts, it would be an act of charity very acceptable to God, to resume their possessions, riches, which made them cast God behind their backs, choaked their Religion, caused them ungratefully to conspire and set themselves against their advancers Heirs; exhorting them to reduce them to their primitive humility, condition, to substract their great noxious revenues from them, which made them mad, riotous, rebellious, and unlike the Primitive Bishops in the Apostles times, who subdued Emperors, Kings by their piety, holiness, not by Armes, 660, 661, 662. The great dangers many Princes, Prelates apprehended would ensue by this Emperors deposing, by encouraging Popes (though of mean birth) to trample all Emperors, Kings, Princes, Prelates under feet at their pleasures, and grow intollerably proud, insolent; to boast, we have trampled the very greatest Lord and Emperor Frederick under feet, and who art thou, who rashly believest thou art able to resist us? 662. The Pope exhorts the Cistercians to live and dye in his and the Churches quarrel against him, who thereupon inclined to his party, 662, 663. All Christendome troubled with Wars by the hatred, discord between the Pope and him, and the Universal Church every where endangered, 753, 754. The French Nobles adhere to him, detest the pride of the Pope, the Servant of Servants, who rejected all the honest conditions of peace which he offered him, 755. He the greatest of all Christian Princes, who had not his equal; an enemy to Pope Innocent the 4. generally hated in most Kingdoms, 676. Two new Emperors successively set up against him, their forces defeated, one of them slain in battle, the other dyes, 753. Appendix 27. He is poisoned by his intimate Counsellor and Advocate Peter de Vinea, corrupted by

The Emperors notable Epistle to him for suffering the Popes scandalous Excommunication of him, and abolition of his Subjects from their allegiance, to be published openly in England, to subject him and the Empire to the See of Rome, and make them his Vassals, Tributaries, as he did King Fohn his father and England; and timely to look to the Popes avarice, iniquity, ambition, since his dangerous precedent concerned him and all other Christian Kings, 414, 415. His particular Letter thereupon to the Pope; that the only peace of Kings and kingdoms consisted in his and the Churches safety; that he exhorted the Emperor by no means to advise to recede from the devotion due to him and the Church, but humbly to obey and submit to him; that he would and was obliged to him as to his Father and Lord, whom he would assist in the fulness of all fidelity and obedience; advising him to a reconciliation with the Emperor upon due submission, for the relief of the holy Land, hindered by their quarrels, 415, 416

The contest between him and the Monks of Canterbury about the Archbishops election, his disallowing their choice; and his Proctors promise of a Disine to the Pope in England and Ireland to subdue the Emperor, upon condition to null their election, and make Richard Archbishop, whom he recommended to him; which he did accordingly: Making an Archbishop hereupon by provision, without any election, (though at the Kings and Suffragans request) which introduced all subsequent provisions by Popes to other Bishopsricks in England and Ireland, 418, 419, 420, 778, 779. His grant of the Custody of all Archbishopricks & Bishopsricks in Ireland to satisfy debts. His Patent to all Abbots, Priors, Nobles and other Lay Subjects in Ireland to pay Tithes of Ponds and Fishings to the parishes wherein they were, without expecting any Writ or Mandate, because he would not have those Tithes detained to the peril of his soul, 424. His Cowardise to oppose, and forwardnesse to promote a Disine for the Pope, through England, Wales, Ireland, (which most of the Nobles, Clergy denied) to wage war against the Emperor to depose him, according to his promise upon nulling the Archbishops election: the Popes agents insolvency, Tyranny thereupon, 425, 426, 427. He exacts an ayde from the Clergy to recover his rights beyond Sea, 428. Complaints to the Pope against the endeavors of the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland, to deprive him of his ancient Right of the Custody of Bishopsricks there during their vacancie, and suits in his Courts by his Bulls, which he requests him not to grant to the hurt of his rights and authority, 428. He denied to grant a pension to one of the Popes creatures at his request, by reason of his penury and want of money, 428, 429. The Archbishop and some other Prelates refuse to grant him an ayde of escuage in Parliament, which all else assented to, 429. His offence against the Pope for nulling the due election of his Chancellor to Canterbury by all the Monks, after his restitution of the Temporalities, without any cause, and ordering a new election by his Bull; his prohibition and appeal against it, as contrary to his prerogative, 431, 432. The Monks refuse to elect any Archbishop without the Kings special license: whereupon the Pope sent a Pall to Edmund, & made him Archbishop without their previous consent, or the Kings license, vacating 3. elections one after another approved by the King, 433, 434. The insurrection against the Ramsey by Popes provisions, and looting of their Barns, goods, throughout England; with the Kings and Prelates severe proceedings against them, and those who countenanced them, upon the Popes Letters, 434, to 439. His severe proceedings against Hubert de Burgo Earl of Kent, his Chief Justice, and faithfull Counsellor, for conniving at the plunderers of the Ramsey and other pretences, taking him perforce out of Sanctuaries, to which he was constrained to restore him by the Bishops excommunications; interdicts against the actors and assisters therein, 438, 439. He commanded the Bishop of Carlisle and his goods to be stayed by his Officers at Dover, departing the realm against his license, for which they were excommunicated by his insolent Bishops in the midst of his Army at Hereford; though he murmured against and prohibited the excommunication, 439. curations and Disnies there; 559, 560. His Prohibition to build a Church and houses for Canons at Windsor, 562. To the Legat not to exact the 5th part, or other Taxes from his Clergy, 563, 564. To the Prior of Rupe, not to collect a Disnie from the Monks of Cluny in England, granted by the Pope without his assent, against the sight of his Crown, nor any other Tax; till he advised with his Prelates and Nobles in Parliament, 564. His sharp answer to the Abbots who complained against Peter Rabens the Popes Agent his intolerable Tax upon them for their Baronies held of him, instead of assisting them, to their great discouragement, 567, 573, 574. The Clergy of Yorkshire oppose it; amongst other reasons, that they ought not to contribute against the Emperor as an heretic; being neither condemned nor convicted by the Judgment of the Church, though excommunicated, 568. He fastid, placed the Popes Legate in his Royal Throne at dinner. Knighted and gave his Nephew a pension at his departure from England, after 3. years irreparable damage to the Church by his stay here; not leaving so much money in England as he extorted, 570. His Writs to in-quire of the number, values of all Benefices and provisions to foreigners in England, by what Popes, Legates, and to whom granted; what monies had been collected for the Pope, what was arrear in every Diocese; 572, 573. His Writs to apprehend Apostate Monks, and remove dead corps from one Monastery to another, according to the parties will; 575. His Patents for Archbishops & Bishops executors to execute their wills and administer their goods on the Temporalties, 576, 576. His Writs reciting that God had constituted him, by reason of his Government as King, Defender of the Church, which he by Gods grace would and ought to defend; to remove all violence; injuries in Churches by whatsoever persons or occasions they were committed, and reasonably to punish them with Justice; That therefore it was fit his Bishops, who by reason of their Baronies are bound by Oath to conserve the Kings temporal honors and dignities; should by a gratefull requital preserve the rights and liberties of the Regal Dignity, 576, 671, 688, 689, 1016. His Writs for making publique prayers for the prosperity of himself, his Queen, and Military expedition, 577. His prohibition of any Novelties, or new Ecclesiastical encroachments, to disturbance of the Clergy and Realm, 578, 579, 600. He employes the profits and provisions of the Archbishopric of Canterbury during the vacancy, to supply his forces in France, 579. His endeavours to procure Boniface, his Queens Uncle, a Forraigner and unfit person, Archbishop of Canterbury, which he effected, the Pope and he favouring, putting one another designs: His Letters to the Pope and Cardinals on Boniface his behalf, 579, 580, 581. His Writ to the Mayor of Winton not to permit the Bishop whose election he opposed, or any of his Officers to come within the City, to the Sheriff of the County and others not to receive, lodge, or give him or his Officers victuals within the County: the Bishops Excommunication of them thereupon, he forced to quit the Realm; 584, 585, to 591. Pope Innocent 4. his sharp Letter reprehending him for writing to him; that no postulation of a Bishop from the Pope or other ought to be admitted in the Realm of England against his will; That he had the same power in temporal as the Pope had in Spiritual things; That no Bishop ought to receive possession of his Temporalties without his assent; That he held the Popes translation of a Bishop of Norwich to Winton invalid, as done by the vice of surreption; which sounded not to the honor of God, nor of the Church; nor of his own sublimity; especially, since the pious credulity of all Christians held; That the Apostolical See by the providence of God, had a free power in all Churches, neither was it bound to stand to the achievement of Princes that their assent should be required in the business of elections or postulations of Bishops; Admonishing him to restore the Temporalties to the Bishop he had confirmed against the Kings will; else since he desired not the Liberties of the Church to be diminished in his dayes, but to be increased, though Gods favour, he could by no means endure, that himself should suffer so prejudicial an injury in this Bishop, who gave this Pope 8000 Marks, without abating one penny for this Bishoorick; 592, 593. The Bishop of Winton proposals to him for the preservation of his antient prerogative concerning the election, postulation, and confirming of Bishops, to continue in full vigour, to release the interdict against the City of Winton, and absolve the Citizens of Winton, with all others he had excommunicated in the quarrel between them; their accord and reconciliation, 593, 594, 595. The Contest between him and Grosbroad Bishop of Lincoln, about a provision and the Church of Thame, 595, 596. He claims an interest in the Church of Lincoln, and in the Controversie between the Bishop, Dean and Chapter, by their Charters produced, 597. His Writ not to permit the Monks of Badeney to be taken and imprisoned upon an excommunication unduly awarded against them, and to take their impropriations as well as other Lay-tees into Custody during the vacancy, 599, 600. His summons to the Bishop of Aquis, to answer his imprisoning of 3. and killing one of the Citizens in a hostile manner, to his enormous disgrace as King, and prejudice of his dignity; his order therein, no more to infect them, 600, 601. His License to the Abbot of the Cisterciens to send one or two Monks of his order to visit the Cisterciens in England. His Writs to provide livings for his Clerks of the Chancery, 601. His Writs not to suffer female heirs in capite, especially such as hold Castles, to marry without his royal assent, and to require pledges of them for that purpose: And against Archdeacons demanding annual procurations, 611. He extorts Escuage: Demands the price of one years wool from the Cisterciens, who opposing it, are thereupon prohibited to meet at their Chapter, or to transport their wool that year, and abused by the Kings Officers, especially on the Sea; 603, 604. The Nobles assemble and petition to him against Winton the Popes agents intolerable grievances and provisions of benefices to Italians, and other Forraigners, which they should rather dye then any longer tolerate, 605, 607. His notable Letters to Pope Gregory 9 and Innocent 4. against their provisions to Churches, to the great grievance, oppression of him and his kingdom, and of the rights, Liberties of the Crown, and to redresse this Innovation; which yet neither of them refrained, following their own unbridled wills; whence men believed, that the Lord and his Apostle Peter (whose footsteps they did not follow) were unworthily provoked against the Church of Rome, who beat the box, and prepared against it, 607, 608. The Pope excommunicates David Prince of Northwales from his allegiance and Oath to him for 500 Marks a year out of it and its appurtenances; who fled to the Pones wings for shelter, protection in his rebellion against the King of England, whose Vassal he was, 608, 609. His Nobles in Parliament refuse to grant him an Ayde against the Scots: Pope Innocent 4. his Letter to the Prelates and Clergy to grant him an Ayde; wherein he extolls him for a Catholic Prince, and devout sonne of the Church of Rome, alwayes so studying to reverence his mother with filial subjection and obedience; that he would by no means decline from his good pleasures, but perform with all ready diligence what things he knew gratefull and pleasing to her: wherefore it was both condecant and condigne for him and them if they more easily granted his requests, and gave him an ayde for his present great arduous affairs; Which yet the Bishops, Abbots jointly and severally denied, postponing the Pones as well as Kings petition, 609, 610. The Popes New Bull and Martin Demand of an Ayde for the Pone; which the Bishops, Nobles jointly opposed; and the Emperors Embassadors; who advised the King justly and potently to free the Realm of England from the Tribute wherewith Pope Innocent the 4. had unjustly obliged it, and all other Papal grievances wherewith it was daily oppressed: which if he refused to do; the Emperor would grievously punish every of his he could find within his Dominions, 611, 612, 613. His breach of the Great Charter, notwithstanding his Oath to observe it, and publick Excommunication by St. Edmund Archbishop of Canterbury against all intruders of it. The Nobles proposited to prevent it, by having the power to elect his Counsellors, Chancellor, Chief Justice, and other Officers, to publish a New excommunication against all intruders of it, and enter into a New Oath to observe it, upon concession whereof they would grant him an Ayde, 610, 611. He condescends that the Bishops in every Diocese should publish a sentence of excommunication against him, and all who went against the great Charter of Liberties in any Article: They grant him an Ayde to marry his daughter, 20 s. out of every Knights fee held in Capite, and repeating what aydes they had granted him, and how much moneyes he had extorted from them from time to time, 613, 614. His prohibition to all Bishops, Abbots, others who held Baronies of him in Capite, to oblige their Lay-fee to the Church of Rome, whereby he might be deprived of his due service, 614. His Prohibition to Martin the Popes Legate, declaring, that no Popes Legate ought to come into the Realm, unless specially requested by him from the See Apostolick; That the Legats so requested did never pervert the Popes Mandate, nor endeavour to subvert the rights of the King and his Great Nobles, of which nature Bishops and Abbots were justly reputed, who held Baronies of him like other Nobles, whom he needed to protect as well as Laymen, if he would preserve his Realm; who were ready to mutinie against him by reason of his provisions to their livings, which neither he nor they could or would any longer patiently endure, to the subversion of the Realm; threatening to put a bridle to this his insolence, injury, and to complain thereof to the Pope and Cardinals, if he carried not himself more modestly, without intrenching upon his or his Nobles rights, who proceeded notwithstanding, 615, 616. His Writs to inquire in all Counties the annual sum of the Romans, Italians rents, wherewith the Court of Rome had fraudulently, violently enriched them in England; found to amount to 60000 marks in rents, besides other profits; to the 3. part of which all the Kings standing revenue amounted not, 616, 617, 620. His Writs to all Ports to intercept all Popes Letters, Bulls to levy moneyes, brought by Clergy-men, Monks, or other of what degree soever, whethere aliens or denizens, and imprison the importers, 617. To prohibit all Taxes to the Pope in England or Ireland, 618. His Speech and malediction to Martin, desiring of his shelter against the Nobles fury, who threatened to hew him in pieces; and safe conduct to him in his timorous flight out of England, 619, 620. The Pope grinds his teeth at him, for that he would not accept of his coming into England, when the Kings of Aragon and France forbade him entrance into their Realms, and so reproachfully cast out his Nuncio and Clerk out of England with an execration, wishing the Devil to carry him to hell, saying in a great rage with a murmuring voyce, rolling his eyes, and shriveling his nose; It is expedient for us to compound with the Emperor, that we may break in pieces these rebellious Petty Kings; for the Dragon being qualified or pacified, the Little Serpents will quickly be trodden under foot: which Speech divulged, ingendred grand offence and indignation in the hearts of many, 620. Alexander King of Scots his Charter of Peace and Fealty to him, ratified by his and his Nobles Oathes and subjection of him and his heirs to the Popes Jurisdiction, censures in case he violated it, to compel him to satisfaction, 620, 621. He commands the Bishop of Worcester to excommunicate David Prince of Northwales his

Vassal, & interdict it, for breach of his Charter, Homage, Fealty, Oath by his rebellions, according to his submission by his Charter: who by bribes procured an absolution from them all of Pope Innocent the 4. who is injuriously usurped his Land, to hold it under the yearly Tribute of 500 marks. He is summoned to appear before the Pope concerning the Contents of Prince Davids Charter, and answer certain injuries done by him, as he said, to David. His and his Nobles indignation, detestation of this avarice of the Pope: They persuade him not to regard these injurious Papal mandates, and invade Wales, to repress this new insolence of ingratefull David; He wastes Wales with fire and sword, which the Pope winks at, and passeth over in silence, 621, 622, 623, 624. His opposition, contests against the elections of the Bishops of London, Durham, Coventry, together with a Writ to the Mayor of Chester, not to permit the Bishop elect or any of his to enter the City gates: his seising, detaining the temporalties of Bps. elected against his will, 623, to 628, 637. His Writs, care to preserve his royal Jurisdiction & rights of his Crown against the Usurpations of the Bishops in Ireland, 628. His Writs to inquire what lands, tenements, rents Archbishops, Bishops, Priors, aliens, or any Normans had in England, 630, 631. The Councils and Parliaments held under him: See Councils, Parliaments: He dispenseth with the Bishop of Dunham attendance in Parliament by reason of danger from the Scots, 632. His Liberties granted to the Abby of Westminster, 632. His Patent that no Freer Minor should be a Bishop in Ireland, 632, 633. His Writs prohibiting any ayde to the Archbishop or Pope without his assent, 634. His License for a Popes Legate to go into Ireland only to absolve such who laid violent hands on Clerks, and collect Dismes, without exercising any other Jurisdiction, till his further order, 634. His Writ to his Chief Justice in Ireland to proceed to give judgement in an Assise, notwithstanding any menaced excommunication, and attach, imprison Bishops and others for holding plea of Layfee in the Ecclesiastical Court, to the prejudice of his Crown and dignity, 635. His Licenses to Bishops to make wills, and their executors to execute them, without him or his heirs interruption, 636. He sends Proctors to the Pope to complain of, redresse the injuries done to him, for creating divers Bishops without his assent; for nulling due elections confirmed by him, upon false, forged, frivolous malicious pretences, against his ancient and approved right used in former ages; to the great detriment of the Church and Realm, 637. His Letters to the Pope to excuse some of his Bishops and Abbots summoned to the Council of Lins from appearing in it, by reason of age, sickness, poverty, their employments in the Custody of the Realm, and other publike services; with his answer, assent thereto, except only to one of them, 638. He sends solemne Embassadors to the Council of Lins to complain of the daily grievances done to the Realm of England by the Court of Rome, and against the Tribute, Charter extorted from K. John in time of War, to which the Nobles never assented, nor would assent, and which the Archbishop protested against; and to present the Nobles Letters against Papal grievances and extortions: their proceedings therein, 299, 638, 639, 644, 645, 646, 647, 663. His Writs to all his Bishops, Abbots of England and Ireland resorting to this Council, according to their Oathes to defend the rights and royal dignity of the King in all things, to use all fidelity and diligence therein to preserve, defend the rights of his Crown, kingdoms and not to assent or assent to any thing contrary or prejudiciall thereunto, 640, 641. He denies Pope Innocent the 4. his request to come into England, wherein he had a special right, by reason of the prejudice that would arise to it, and infamy of the Popes Court, whose stink ascended to heaven, 654. The Emperors notable Letter to him against gainst the ingratitude, pride, insolency, treachery of Popes, Prelates, Clerks; against Emperors, Kings, others, from whom they received their endowments; oppressing the Sons of their Donors, by whose almes they were fattened, enriched; forgetting their native condition, being the Sons of their poor Subjects, yet neither reverencing, fearing Emperor or King, when made Popes or Prelates: The injustice, tyranny of Pope Innocent 4. in denouncing a sentence of Excommunication and deprivation against him, without any citation, hearing, conviction of any fraud or pravity, to the enormous prejudice of all Kings, who might justly expect the like proceedings, if he a Christian Emperor, lawfully, unanimously elected, approved by the Church, whiles the Clergy flourished in Faith and Religion, owned Emperor by God, and magnificently governing other Kingdoms, was thus dethroned, who had nought to do with him in temporal matters, if peccant in them: That he was not the first, neither should he be the last who was thus infected by the abuse of Papal authority; since their ambition sought to swallow down Jordan and all earthly powers, though the turpitude of the Court of Rome was such, as all might execrate, and honestly, shame prohibited to recite: That their plentiful rents, revenues wherewith they were enriched, to the impoverishing of most Realms, made them mad: That the more they received, the more they coveted; insatiable, dethroning their Patrons, advancing: That he intended to reduce all Clerics, especially the greatest, to their primitive humility, state, condition in the Apostles age, when they were famous for piety, miracles, conquering Kings, Princes by their Apostolical lives, humility, sanctity, not aimes: That those now being addicted to the world, drunken with delights, cast God behind their backs, all their Religion being suffocated by the affluence of riches and wealth: That it was a work of charity for him and all Christian Kings to substract their hurtfull riches, wherewith they were damnablely burdened; and that they should serve God in doing it, exhorting him to joyne therein, 661, 662. His extraordinary anger against the English Bishops, for setting their hands and seals out of off-manner fear, to the transcript of King John detestable Charter burnt at Lyons, at the Popes command, after his and the Nobles protestation against it therein, and resolution never to pay, or suffer the Tribute therein mentioned to be paid: His Oath after the Nobles protestation: That although the Bishops were dishonestly incouraged, yet he would firm stand for the liberty of the Realm, neither would he wiles be lived pay the Church of Rome the annual rent under the name of Tribute, 300, 663. The Popes sacred rancour, and great anger against him and the Realm, for daring to bewaile or mutter against his manifold injuries; his vaunting speeches, *That if he could tame Frederick, he would easily tread under feet the insolent pride of the English, who complained of the oppressions of the Roman Court, especially of the Tribute, in the Council: instigating the King of France in a secret conference at Clugny, to wage war upon the King of England for so great an injury, till he had dishonoured, or so earnestly hurt him, that he should wholly submit to the will of the Roman Court, valent against; which he refused, because he was King Henries Kinsman, and their Queens Sisters; because he had no manifest right to the Crown of England; because there was a Truce between him and the King of England, which he would rather prolong, that so he might relieve the Holy Land; because much Christian blood would be shed, before the Realm of England would yield to France; because the Christians in the Holy Land were now oppressed, besieged by the Pagans, who expected his relief; and because he had a stronger and more hurtfull enemy to the Church of Rome to be first conquered, to wit Frederick, 663, 664. His priviledge, that no Legate should come into his Realm* unless requested; fraudulently abused by the Popes sending certain sophistical Legates, having greater power to extort rents, money, and were more insolent then Legates in all things, although they had not the ensignes of Legates, being Clerks, or Freers Minors, or Preachers, who made them his Beadles and Tax-masters, to the scandal and detriment of their Order, 664, 690, 691, 692. He summons a Parliament at London, by reason of the Popes indignation against him and all his Nobles, oppressing them with many daily intollerable grievances, and divers new devices to extort monies more then before; their complaints against his grievances, which they could no longer tolerate without the brand of flagitiousness and imminent ruine, being done in contempt and spite; his Papal indignation so swelling against the miserable English, for that they durst complain against their daily injuries and oppressions in the Council; which he so multiplied without intermission, that the English were more vile in his eyes, Court then any other even of the remotest Nations: Insolently saying; It is expedient for us to compound with the Emperor Frederick, that we may trample the little King of England, our Vassal, under feet, who now kicks with the heel against us, 664, 665. The King, Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, and Nobles, draw up 7. Articles in Parliament against the Popes grievances and oppressions: 1. In extorting, collecting several sums of money by general Taxes and Assesses, without the Kings assent or consent, against the ancient Customs, Liberties, and Rights of the Realm, and against the Appeal and contradiction of the Proctors of the King and Kingdom, made in a General Council. 2. In hindring Patrons to present their Clerks to vacant Livings, and bestowing them by Provisoes on other Roman Clerks, utterly ignorant of the English tongue, to the peril of the peoples souls, and impoverishing of the Realm beyond measure, by transporting money out of it. 3. In granting pensions out of Livings by Provision, and more Provisions of Benefices then he promised after his Bull against them. 4. That one Italian succeeded another. 5. That Subjects causes were drawn out of the Realm by the Popes authority, against the Custome of the Realm, against the written Laws, that men ought not to be condemned amongst their enemies; and against Indulgences granted by his predecessors to the Kings and Realm of England. 6. The frequent mention of that infamous word Non-obstante in his Bulls, by which the Religion of an Oath, ancient customes, vigor of writings, the established authority of Charters, Laws, Priviledges were debilitated, vanished away; and his not carrying himself courteously towards the Realm, in revoking the plenitude of his power as he promised. 7. That in the Benefices of Italians, neither their rights, nor sustentation of the poor, nor hospitality, nor preaching of Gods word, nor the full ornaments of the Churches, nor cure of souls, nor divine services in the Churches, were performed as they ought to be, and according to the custome of the Country; That their houses, walls fell down together with their roofs, and were dilapidated. To which other complaints to the King and Parliament against the Court of Rome were superadded, which they sent to the Pope by their respective Messengers, with five several Letters; two from the King to the Pope and his Cardinals; a third from all the Archbishops, Bishops; a 4th. from all the Abbots, Priors; the 5th. from all the Earls and Temporal Lords, speedily to reform all these their grievances, to prevent unavoidable mischiefs to the King, Pope and Church of Rome, and their revolt from subjection to them, 666, to 672. They complained, the Pope demanded Knights-service, due only to the King, Lords from their Tenants, from Prelates, Clergymen, to find him so many Horse or Foot for half a year, or pay a great rancome in lieu of it, under pain of Excommunication, which they must reveal to no man: That he granted one years fruits of all Benefices that fell voyd within the Province of Canterbury to Archbishop Boniface: That he by sealed Bulls required the Abbots of the Cistercian Order in England, to send him golden Jewels to adorn his Planets and Copes, as if they might be got for nothing: That he published this new unheard of Statute in England, not without the brand of covetousnesse, That if any Clerk should from thenceforth dye intestate, his goods should be converted to the use of the Pope; which he commanded the Friers Preachers and Minors diligently to execute, seising on the money, plate, and goods of three rich Archdeacons; which the King hearing of, prohibited, detesting the multiplied and manifold cunning avarice of the Court of Rome; and by the common advice of his Prelates and Nobles in Parliament, issued several successive Prohibitions to the Abbot of St. Albans and others, not to pay any Tallage to the Pope or his Agents, before the return of their Messengers sent to Rome against these grievances, under pain of seising his Barony; and to the Bishops not to exact or levy any such Tax for any Clerk, Religious person, or Layman, to the prejudice of his Royal dignity, against his and his Nobles Provisions in Parliament, which he neither would nor could endure, 671, 672, 673, 674. The Pope placing his confidence in gold and silver, contemned the zealous Letters and memorable complaints of the King and whole Kingdom against his exactions, requiring the Bishop of Norwich and others to levy a subsidie for him, at which all were amazed, they receiving such a new grievance instead of the relief expected; the Kings wrath and indignation thereat, and new memorable Prohibitions against it; the English Church thereby ground as it were between two Millstones, and placed between Sylla and Corydon; the King by the general advice and assistance of his Nobles endeavouring the salvation and instauration of the Realm on the one side, and the Pope endeavouring its impoverishing on the other: Many Prelates fearing the instability and effeminacy of the King, and his Counsils resolutions, fomented the Papal part, though they never had seen that the Church received any happy increase, but rather incurred unhappy detriment by such effusions of their money, 673, 674. He summons a new Parliament at Winton, concerning the manifold dissolutions of the whole Realm, and especially of the Church; wherein the Messengers sent to the Court of Rome reported, That they could discern no humility nor moderation in the Popes gestures or words, concerning the oppressions wherein the Realm, Church of England were grieved and complained: That when they expected a pleasing answer, the Pope told them, The King of England who now kicks the heel and Frederizeth, hath his Counsil, and I have mine, which I will pursue: That from that time scarce any Englishman could dispatch any business in Court; yea they were all repul'd, and reviled as Schismatics; so as so many and such Epistles of the King, and Universality both of the Nobles and Prelates of the Realm, had no efficiency at all. At which report the King and Nobles being much grieved, exasperated at the repulse of their just petitions by the Court of Rome, to which they had so often freely contributed, the King by their advice commanded proclamations to be made through all Counties, Cities, Boroughs, and Villages of the Realm, That no Prelate, Clerk, or other person throughout the Realm, should consent to any Contribution to the Pope, or transmit any money toward his aid, or in any wise obey his Papal command in contributing aydes; which was accordingly done. The Pope hearing thereof, fell into a vehement anger, writ to the English Prelates more sharply then before, under pain of Excommunication and suspension, to pay in the ayd he demanded to his Nuncio in the New Temple before the Feast of Assumption: which the King resolving manfully to resist as he had begun, for the freeing of the Realm and

Church from Papal extortions, by the threats of Earl Richard his brother, (to whom the Pope granted a Croysado) and the whisperings of certain ambitious Clergymen and Papal Bishops his Counsellors, (whereof the Bishop of Worcester was principal, to whom he granted a power of interdicting the Realm) was so inclined by their counsils more then was just, that his constancy was enervated with the same levity it was conceived, being so terrified with the Popes menaces, that he trembled for fear where no fear was, yea womanishly relinquished what he had manfully undertaken, submitting to him as conquered, affrighted: whereupon the whole endeavour as well of the Nobles as Bishops, and the hope of freeing the English Church and Realm, miserably withered and came to nought, not without the bleeding grief of many hearts, all this resistance vanishing like a cloud before the shining Sun, the Clergy satisfying the gapings of the Roman avarice with this Contribution without resistance; the richest Prelates & Clergymen who had greatest revenues, which they over-heartily loved, fearing to lose them by the Popes indignation, complying with his designs; and those who resolved to resist through the Noblemens encouragement, (the Kings eyes being averted, and his ears closed against them by the Court Prelates) being forced to comply and pay 6000 Marks to the Pope, to the great impoverishing of the Realm; which was transported by the Popes Nuncios and Merchants to ayd the Landgrave against the Emperor Frederick; part whereof he intercepting, grievously reprehended the effeminacy of the English and Earl Richard, complaining much of it before his fellow Soldiers, who seemed to have consented to the Popes party, to the destruction of the Realm of England, and detriment of the Empire; because he gathered much treasure together out of the assistance of the Crucesignati, by the Popes permission, whereby the audacious rapines of the Romans were infinitely increased, by how much they found no contradiction in them; flying from those who chased them, and pursuing such who fled from them; so as all the hope and consolation of relieving the English expired, whose enemies were their Judges, 674, 675, 676. Pope Innocent 4. informed by his Nuncios of the Kings and English fear, intended to interdict the Realm had they not paid his 6000 Marks Tax, and the King by his Nuncios signified his compliance to it, notwithstanding Cardinal John an Englishmans sharp reprehension of his indiscreet anger and violence, by which the Holy Land was endangered, the Greek Church departed from them, the Emperor the greatest, powerfulllest of all Princes, an adversary to them, he and his Cardinals (the top of the Roman Church) expelled Italy, Hungary and its confines exterminated by the Tatars, Germany shaken with Civil Wars, Spain raging mad against them, to the cutting out of Bishops tongues, France reduced to poverty, conspiring against them, and England so frequently hurt by their injuries, like Balaams Ass, beaten with spurs and clubs, at last enforced to speak and revile them, complaining she was over-intollerably wearied and irreparably damaged; so that like Israel they were now odious to all, and provoked all to anger: Yet the Pope took so much boldnesse from what was past, more imperiously then before to trample upon the miserable English, most of them being trodden down, dissipated, effeminated; he demanding, that all resident beneficed persons in England should pay the third part, and all Non-residents the moiety of their Benefices to him: The Prelates opposed this Tax as impossible, and the Kings Proctors strictly prohibited all the Clergy of England, not to assent to so execrable a demand of the Pope, or consent to this Contribution to the Kingdoms desolation; which they obeyed, appealing against it as intollerable, impossible; which they had more effectually contradicted, if they had had any confidence in the Kings wavering words and promises: The Clergies

Clergies answer thereunto, and appeal to Jesus Christ and the next general Council against it: Their complaint against it to the King and Parliament, with their Nuncios and Epistles to the Pope and his Cardinals, in behalf of the whole Clergy of England, against his unsupportable exaction, 676, 677, 678, 679, 680. The Court of Romes indignation against their Letters, as well reprehending as restraining their avarice, who thereupon reduced their demands to 11000 Marks subsidie, excluding all the exempt Abbots of England out of this sum, to be more perilously exposed to the Romes rapacity, 679, 680. The Popes delusory grant to him, that whereas he before indifferently granted provisos of Ecclesiastical Benefices in England to Italians, to its intollerable grievance, he would from thenceforth by Gods grace, when he granted any such provisions to any of his or his Cardinals Nephews, importunately treat the King, that he would be pleased to condescend to such a provision, whereby they more strictly ensnared him; this being but a baited hook to enrich the Popes Secretaries, by such rhetorical Epistles from the Pope to the King on their behalf, 682, 683. His indignation, exclamation, prohibition against the Popes grant of the first years fruits of all vacant Benefices with in the province of Canterbury for 7. years to Archbishop Boniface, till he should raise the sum of 10000 Marks, to be levied by this Apostolical authority without any appeal: His effeminacy in condescending to it afterwards, and not standing for the defence of the Realm, and honour of the Archbishops of Canterbury, against the debts of that Church as he ought, the Suffragan Bishops being compelled by the Popes authority, excommunicating all who durst speak against it, to submit thereto, not daring nor being able to oppose or contradict it, 682, 683. He commanded the keepers of the Ports by his Writs to prohibit the importation of any Bulls, for provisions or exacting monies from the Church of England by the Popes authority, to impoverish the Realm, or suffer any to wander with them by land to the Prelates; and if any such were found, to apprehend and imprison the bearers of them, 684. He prescribes a special Masse to be said upon the Canonization of St. Edmund, 685. He augments the dignity of the Abbot of Westminster, that celebrating Masse in his Pontificalibus, he should give the benediction solemnly to the people when Agnus Dei was sung, 686. He seileth the Temporalities of the Archbishop of Rome, for not coming personally into England to swear his Fealty for them, 686. He prohibits the collection of one years Disme in England from the Monks of the Order of Cister, granted to the Abbot by the Popes authority, (who was to have part thereof) without his Royal assent, and seileth all the monies collected thereby, 686, 687. He restores the Temporalities of the Bishoprick of Conversy, long detained in his hands, out of his meer grace, to Roger de W. seham made Bishop thereof by the Pope, to the prejudice of his Prerogative, 687. His high resentment of Bishops excommunicating his Officers for executing his Writs, in removing a force out of a Church to the prejudice of his Royal dignity and authority, and making a fraudulent appropriation to his and the Churches prejudice, 688, 689. His license for the Pope to grant a provision, though odious, at two of his Clerks requests, so as this his license were not drawn into consequence, 690. His care to prevent the Popes provision to the Archbishoprick of Ardmab, 690. He summoned a Parliament at London, to oppose an importable Contribution to the Pope, to which the Bishops had unhappily obliged the Clergy in a General Council, who thereupon absented themselves, lest they should seem to oppose their own facts far off, wherewith they knew the hearts of all men were not undeservedly wounded, even to the bitterness of soul, 690. Another Parliament of all the Nobles convened by him at Oxford, to which the Bishops were strictly summoned, to prevent the manifold exorbitant exactions of the Pope and his sophistical Legates, to the apparent danger of the Realm, impoverishing of the Prelates, by Papal extortions and frequent exportations of the Treasure of the Realm, without any benefit to the Church, yea to its great disadvantage, and Gods displeasure; where all the Prelates consented to a grant of 11000 Marks to the Pope, which some of them before resolved to oppose; besides the exempted Abbots, exposed to the Popes arbitrary demands, which rendered the Bishops and Clergy suspected to the whole Realm, 696. The Pope and King suspected to comply together to force exactions from the Church and State by turns; the Pope writing to the Nobles to grant the King an Ayde, and the King conniving at, or assenting to his Papal exactions from the Clergy, ground between the Pope and King as between two Mill-stones, 696, 716, 717. He refused to license the Bishop of Sabine a Cardinal Legate, to enter England in his passage to Haco King of Denmark, Norway and Sweden, till he had first taken an Oath upon his soul, That he came into England for no detriment of the King, or Kingdom, or Church, but only to passe peaceably through it from the Port of Dover to Lenn, and to passe from thence to those Northern Realms with the next opportunity and wind; because all sorts of Legates and Popes Nuncios, were accustomed to impoverish, or by some means to pervert the Realms into which they entered: his free gifts to this Legate coming to visit him, 697. His notable Prohibitions upon the complaint of Nobles and others, to the Bishop of Lincoln, his Officials, rural Deans, and others, against summoning and enforcing Lay-persons by Ecclesiastical censures, to appear before them in their Courts and Visitations, to make Inquisitions and give in Informations or testimony upon Oath against their wills, in cases of Incontinency and other scandals, never formerly used, against his Crown, Dignity, the Laws, Customs of the Realm, to the scandal, vexation of his Subjects, and danger of their reputations, souls, 699, 704, 705, 706, 718. His carrying of the Viol of Christs blood brought from Jerusalem, from St. Pauls to St. Peters at Westminster with his own hands, in a solemn procession, bestowing it on that Church, to be there reserved, adored as a most precious (though forged) Relique, 711, 712. His new Fair granted to Westminster, and suppression of all other Fairs and sale of goods in London for several dayes, to draw company thither to adore this Relique, 715. His notable Letter to the Bishop of Durham, charging him with contempt against his Crown, Dignity, and ingratitude in distreining the Cattle of the Prior of Tinmouth, 716. His pusillanimity in not recalling the Popes suspension of the Prelates to collate to Benefices, till the Romes covetousnesse was satisfied; and not protecting the Abbot of Abendunne, against the Popes citation to, and vexations at Rome, for conferring the Church of St. Helin on Abelmar his half brother, at his request, who had given it to a Roman, to whom the Pope enforced the Abbot to pay an annuity out of his Chamber, to his Churches great detriment, 716, 717. His and his Officers spoyles, rapines, during the vacancy, of the Abby of St. Edmund, and Bishoprick of Bath and W. Ill, 717, 721. His Prohibitions against citing his Clerks out of the Realm, and levying First fruits granted by the Pope to Archbishop Boniface, out of Lay-mens Benefices, 718, 719. His confirmation of the ancient liberties of the Dean and Chapter of Tork, saving the ancient Rights and Liberties of the Crown, of which he was in actual possession, 719, 720. He summons a general Parliament at London, wherein he demands an Ayde, for which he was sharply reprehended, being contrary to his late Charter to the Nobles; and for his indiscreet prodigality to aliens, whom he called in, marrying his Nobles to ignoble aliens, against their wills, assents, and disrespecting his native Subjects;

for keeping vacant Bishopricks, Abbies long in his hands, whereof he was to be the guardian, defender, protector, who spoiled, impoverished them to their destruction, against the first and chief branch of his Coronation Oath, 721, 730. That he had no Chief Justice, Chancellor or Treasurer, made by the Common Council of the Realm, as was fit and expedient, he alwayes making such as followed his own will for his gain, and promoted not the publick, but their own singular profit, by scraping wealth, and gaining wards and rents for themselves: At which he blushing, as conscious, promised he would most freely, certainly and thankfully reform all these things, thinking by this feigned humility to win all their hearts to condescend to his demands; who often deceived by such promises, delayed to grant an Ayde for a time, till they saw an actual reformation; whereupon the Parliament was adjourned, 721, 722. At the second meeting, he taxed the Nobles for dealing uncivilly with him their King, Lord, in denying him that liberty which every of them used, to chuse what Council, Officers, Servants he pleased, and preferre, depreff; remove them at his pleasure: Adding, That Servants ought not to judge or fetter their Lord with their own conditions, much lesse Vassals their Prince; that all inferiors ought rather to be directed, ordered by the will of their Lord, The Servant not being above his Lord, nor the Disciple above his Master: That he should not be reputed their King, but their Servant, if they might thus incline him at their pleasure; wherefore he would neither remove his Justice, Chancellor or Treasurer, as they propounded, nor substitute others; yet demanded an Ayde of money from them to acquire his rights in foreign parts, which concerned them likewise: Upon which subtle answer by those who feared to be displaced had he followed the Barons general advice; they all unanimously answered, they would by no means unprofitably impoverish themselves, to make foreigners proud with their goods, and strengthen the enemies as well of the King as Kingdom, as of late happened in Poitou and Gascogne: The Parliament thus dissolving in discontent, he fell out with his Counsellors for losing the hearts of his Nobles; who to raise monies, caused him to sell his place, jewels; oppress and extort money from the Londoners; to take up provisions for his Household by force, without paying for them; to beg money from particular Nobles, Prelates, Abbots when severed, who denied him any ayde whilst conjoynd, by Letters, Messengers to them one after another, which took small effect with any, 722, to 725. His Messengers to the Pope, and prohibition to some Bishops his Delegates, charging them upon their Oaths of Fealty, not to prejudice the rights of his Crown, in putting the Popes provisor into a Benefice, to which he presented a Clerk by his Royal Prerogative, under pain of seising their Baronic, 725. The Dean, Chapters, Bishops of St. Asaphs two Charters to him under hand and seal, That they ought not to elect a Bishop without humbly petitioning him and his Heirs for a license to elect; and that he ought to confirm their election before any consecration, 726, 727. His Writs, and Pope Innocent's Bull concerning the Priviledges and Exemptions of his Free-Chapples from Episcopal Jurisdiction or Taxes, 727, 728, 734, 735. See Free-Chapples. He sendeth forth, and craves pardon from the Londoners for injuries done them; crosseth himself for the Holy Land, to extort monies from his Nobles under that pretext, who formerly denied him an Ayde, 729, 730. He for money procures a Bull from the Pope to his Nobles, when they had sold, mortgaged their Lands, and prepared all things for their journey to the Holy Land, not to repair thither under pain of Excommunication, till he might go with them as their Captain; commanding the Cohillables of Powys and other Ports, to suffer no Nobleman who was crossed to passe beyond the Seas: He exacts vast sums of money from the Jews and Christians under that pretext, 730. His Letters to the Bishops of Ireland, to preach the Crosse and raise monies for his pretended voyage, 732, 733. His Patent to the Master of the Jews Law in London, to excommunicate all such Jews who promised any monies towards their Church-yard in London, and payd them not, so as he might receive the amends for it, 736. His indignation against Grosbeard Bishop of Lincoln, for excommunicating the Sheriff of Noteland for not apprehending a Clerk excommunicated by him, after 40. dayes; and Popes Letter he procured concerning it, 738. His Prerogative to have all Royal Fishes wherever they arrive, and Writ concerning it, 738, 739. His notable Writ to Bishop Grosbeard, to appear and answer his contempt before him, for endeavouring to deprive him of his ancient Prerogative to attach Clerks in his Diocesse; for contempts, in proceeding against his Writs of Prohibition in the Ecclesiastical Court, which exorbitant injury and contempt he neither would nor ought patiently to endure; with his special Mandate to his Justices of the Kings Bench, to keep him in possession of this liberty, not permitting any thing of this his right to be diminished, 739, 740. He refuseth to hear or redresse the complaints of the Prior of St. Bartholomews, and Canons of Pauis, against Archbishop Baniface, for beating, wounding him and his Canons, and tearing his Miter when he came to visit them; he excusing and justifying himself before him: His Proclamation throughout London, that none under pain of losse of life or member, should presume to intermeddle in that quarrel to prevent a sedition; the Londoners resolving to ring their common bell, and hew the Archbishop in peices if they found him, for this fray and riot; who backed by the King and Queen, excommunicated the Canons afresh in his Chapple at Lambeth, 742. Pope Innocent 4. desires his license to repair to Burdoux in Gascogne; the King of France his brothers charging the Pope, that his covetousnesse in prohibiting the voyage of the Crucifigiani, and dispensing with their vows for money, was the cause of the French Kings overthrow; soliciting King Henry to joyn with the Emperor, and hasten his voyage to the Holy Land according to his vow, as he tendered the honour of Christ; which put the King to a great Dilemma, either to displease the Pope, or the Emperor and French King, 746, 747. He used all diligence to procure the Monks of Winton to elect his brother Athelmar Bishop of Winton, though a foreigner, youth, unlearned; His Letters, speech to them, to induce them to chuse him Bishop; and menace, to confound all the Monks if he found them rebellious to his personations; who despairing of any assistance from the Pope by appeal, where any thing might be obtained by gifts, they unanimously elected him out of fear, against their consciences: The Kings Letters, Messengers to the Pope for his confirmation, which he obtained by great gifts, and by a provision of 500 Marks a year rent, which the Pope exacted for the Duke of Burgundies young son, 748, 749. He commands the Woods of the Bishoprick of Winton to be cut down, sold, and the money brought into his Treasury, but distracted not the goods thereof, because his brother Athelmar was to enjoy them, 751. He enricheth his brethren and Queens kinsed with Ecclesiastical Livings; writes on their and Baniface his behalf to the Pope, against his Suffragans, 752. Prescribes an anniversary obsequy for his Mother Qu. Isabel, and prayers to be made for himself, his Queen and Children, 755, 756. He refused to assent to a Disme granted by the Popes Letters to his brother Goeffry in the province of Burdoux, because he should suffer damage thereby; yet consents to his grant of a Disme in the province of Dublin to Stephen Langeffre, 757. His Letters to the Pope to appoint auditors named by him, to take the account of the Bishop of Worcester, of the Disme he granted him for the Holy

Holy Land, and not to hearken to his complaint for seizing his Barony for excommunicating the Sheriff of Roseland against his prohibition, to the prejudice of his royal dignity, 738. His license to transport stones from Bristol Castle to Ireland, to build a Church in Dublin, 758. He seizes the Liberties, and attacheth the Bayliffs and 12. Burgesses of Rochester, for thrusting a condemned person into the Church to prevent execution, 759. The Massing furniture he provided for his Chapel in Windsor Castle, 759. His Patents, Temporal Courts defiled with Non-obstantes like the Popes, by whose Non-obstantes he justified his, 760. He sides with the Convent of Westminster against the Abbot, grants them the Custody of the temporalities of the Abby, and goods thereof, during the vacancies: His prohibition to foreign Merchants, Usurers to lend any monies to the Abbot or Convent thereof, without his Royal and both their joint assents thereto, 763, 764. He Feasts with his brother the new Bishop of Winton upon his return from Rome, 764. His injuries, grievances to the Church of St. Albans, spoiling Prelates and religious persons by the Popes command, reducing them to extreme servitude, 765. His hydropical thirst after gold, silver, jewels, which he extorted from Jews and Christians, 768. The Pope animates him to go to the Holy Land to ayde the King of France; he takes on him the Croffe, and summons all the Londoners to Westminster to crosse themselves for the Holy Land, only to gain money, 766, 767, 771, 772. His Writs to the Archbishops, Bishops of England and Ireland, to promote the preaching of the Croffe to raise monies, by Freers Predicants and others, and to publish the Popes indulgences to such who crossed themselves, 766, 767, 768. Several Writs concerning it, and his voyage to the Holy Land. His Letters to the Queen of France for restoring the lands taken from him in France, which would be a great encouragement for him and his Nobles to relieve the distressed Christians and King Lewis, 769, 770. He summons a Parliament, reads the Popes Bull to the Prelates to grant him an ayde, which the Bishops opposed, lest it should be drawn into custome by a double act; They promise him an ayde, conditionally, to confirm the Great Charter of their Liberties so often agreed to, promised; to swear anew, inviolably to observe it for the future; and so as the money might be faithfully collected, reserved in safe hands for his use, till he actually went to the Holy Land, and not prodigally spent, to the prejudice of the Realm and his faithfull subjects, and advantage of his enemies, like former aydes; whereupon he swore horribly in a great rage, that he would never whiles he lived, intrall himself to such a servitude; Their further debates concerning it, his discourse with the Bishop of Ely, with his stout answer, refusal to ayde him to the impoverishment and servitude of the Church; in imitation of The Becket, and Edmund of Canterbury, who were martyred: His indignation against his brother, Bishop of Winchester, for his ingratitude in opposing his ayde, he committing him to the living Devil, at his departure: The Parliaments dissolution in great discontent without ayding him, they telling him he was born only to extort money and empty their purses, 770, to 775. He and the Pope favoured, furthered each other in their tyranny, exactions, which provoked the anger and internal hatred of all against them, yea a manifest departure (although not of bodies, yet of hearts) from the Church of Rome, and a general exasperation against her, extinguishing as it were the fire of mens devotion to her, 773. He resolved to send for a Legat, which should compell the Bishops by the Popes authority to pay the contribution demanded, although an heavy Tribute, and new intollerable servitude to the Church, 774. He extorts gold from the Londoners against their Charters, as if slaves of the basest condition, 773. He oppressed, exacted great sums of monies from several religious houses, the world being then so addicted to spoyle and rapines, that whoever could extort any thing from religious houses, thought he rather merited then demerited, 775. He gave away his escheats, vacant rents, Churches to unworthy illiterate scurrilous Foreigners, in contempt and revenge to the English, committing and causing to be committed many thousands of souls to such aliens as were altogether unlearned, unworthy, obscene, and knew not the English tongue, to provoke the anger, hatred of those English who were worthy and learned against him, 775. His Speech, Oath against the pride, insolency of the Prelates, Religious persons, Templars, Hospitalers, occasioned by their Liberties, Charters, and great superfluous possessions, which made them mad, and ought to be prudently, advisedly resumed, as they were imprudently and unadvisedly dispersed by Kings: That as the Pope sometimes, yea very often revoked, null'd his former Bulls, Acts by Non-Obstantes, so he might likewise revoke all Charters he and his ancestors had unadvisedly granted them. Whereto the Master of the Hospital of Jerusalem answering: what is this you say, my Lord the King? God forbid such a displeasing and absurd word should fall from your mouth; So long as you observe Justice, you may be a King; and so soon as you shall infringe it, you cease to be a King: To which he replied too uncircumspectly; O you Englishmen, what means this? will you precipitate me from the kingdom as you did my father, and kill me being deposed? 776. The Pope by Albertus his Nuncio prohibits him to invade the King of France his Lands, whiles employed in the holy war, proffers the Realm of Sicily to his brother Richard, who refused it: The Kings Letter of thanks to the Pope for this proffer of Sicily to his Brother, and all other favours received from the Church of Rome; requiring that a competent ayde might be given his brother by the Clergy to gain it, yet with a saving the ayde he had granted himself for the Holy Land, 776, 777. Pope Innocent by his connivance granted more provisions, and more oppressed the Church of England during his Papacy, then all his predecessors; the rents of the Romans, besides other revenues, amounting annually to above 70000 marks, his own regal rents not to the 3d. part thereof, 777. England trodden under foot by aliens, subiect to many Lords, deprived of his sincere love, languished without consolation to despair, enthralled in extreme conditions, whereby (which was most grievous) the venomous hatred between the Church and people daily encreased, 778. His Writs against Bishops for contempts to admit his Clerks upon preferments, 781. He prohibits Bakers by proclamation to imprint the signe of the cross, Agnus Dei, or name of Jesus on any bread put to sale, 781. His Writs to sundry Noble men, not to foment the difference between Archbishop Boniface and the Bishop of Winton, nor take part with, or bear arms, or make tumults for either of them, 788. He summons a new Parliament at London; demands an ayde of money: The Archbishop and two Bishops sent to him, to perswade him according to his Oath to permit the Church to enjoy her Liberties, especially in elections, not to intrude persons into them by regal power, to the destruction of the Prelates, Subjects, and great damage of the Church; to correct these and other his Errors, according to his Oath, and the Great Charter: which done they would yield to his request: His sharp, satyricall reply to all 3. Bishops promoted by his meer grace, though unworthy, wishing them first to repent, resign their Bishopricks, as unfit for them, to give him good example; who would thereupon elect fit-ter for the future: They grant him an ayde upon condition to confirm the Great Charter, though frequently violated by him and his Father K. John against their Oathes, for which they got infinite sums of money. He confirms the Great Charter. A solemn excommunication denounced against all infringers of it and the Churches Liberties, by the Archbishop and Bishops in Westminster hall, in presence of the King and Nobles: His Promise, Oath to observe all Articles of the Charter as he was a man, a Christian, a Knight, a Crowned and anointed King, 795, 796, 797. When he had a lighted Taper put into his hand while the excommunication was read, he delivered it to a Bishop to hold, saying he was no Priest, holding his hand upon his breast, with a serene and chearfull countenance, ibid. His Letters to the Pope on behalf of the Bishop of Chichester and his Chaplains for provisions for them, 797. to excite all Christian Princes to joyne with him in ayding the Holy Land, 798. He gives one Cup to put the Eucharist in of 4. marks price to every Archbishop, and of 3. Marks to every Bishops Cathedral in Ireland; the sum of 100 marks to be distributed to the Hospital of St. Johns, Freers Minorites and others in Ireland as his Chief Justice should deem meet, 798. Pope Innocent 4. in a great passion against Bishop Grosbeard, said of K. H. 3. with a proud minde: Is not the King of England our Vassil, and that-I may say more, our Bondslave? who com at our beck imprison and enbrail him to ignominy? 800. His Writs to Earl Richard, & Guardians of the Realm in his absence, to bestow livings on particular Clerks which next fell void in his gift of such and such values by the year, 806. His Writs to promote the Croyfado, and certify the number of those who crossed themselves in Ireland, 807, 808. His protection from suites to the Archbishop of Ardmach during his journey to Rome, 808. His Writ to celebrate the Masse of St. Edward every day in his Chappel during his absence in foreign parts, 808. The Pope offers him and his Sonne Edmund the kingdom of Sicily and Apulia, which his brother Earl Richard refused; he indiscreetly accepts thereof: binds himself by Oath and Covenant to perform the hard conditions contained in the Popes Priviledge whereby he granted it; obligeth himself by Letters, Writs under his seal in vast sums of money, debts to the Pope and his Merchants under pain of interdict, disinheretance, spends a world of Treasure about it, yet never got possession thereof, being cheated of all his money and it at last: The Writs, Procurations, transactions between him, the Pope, Cardinals and Parliament concerning it, 807, 821, 834, 859, 860, 865, 866, 871, 914, 915, 916. See Apulia, Sicily, Index 13. His Nobles, Parliaments opposition against it, 910, 931, 932. His great joy and elevation for this shadow and vain grant of the Pope, and investing his Sonne in possession of Sicily by a ring: He stiled him King of Sicily, recommends him by that Title to his Parliament, ibid. 809. He opposeth Sewalds election, confirmation to the Archbishoprick of York, which the Pope notwithstanding confirms, 811. See Index 3. Sewald. Dismisses granted him by the Pope for the Holy Land; Writs concerning the collecting, disposing compositions for, accounts concerning them, 814, to 817, 814, 835, 843, 846, 860, to 868, 870. See Aydes. The Prelates much opposed them, 918, 919. He prohibits the Archbishop to exact aydes for making the Kings sonne a Knight, or marrying his daughter; from the Bishop of Rochester, and him to pay them, till determined by his Counsil whether he ought to have them by Law, 819. He seized the Lands of the Dean and Canons of York, for invading the Citizens temporal Liberties, 820, 825. He assigned 3000 l. a year out of his Exchequer for repair of Westminster Church, which was to be new consecrated, 820. His Inquisitions of all the particular Mannors, Lands, rents, services of religious persons, and their values, 820. His vain expedition to, vast expenses in Gascogne, more then it was worth to be sold, 820. His vain liberality to the French and French Churches, in passing through France, 821. Pope Alexander absolved him from his Vow, Voyage to the Holy Land against the Saracens, so as he went with an Army into Apulia to conquer Manfred, the strong enemy of the Roman Church, 821, 822, 825. He reviled the Bishop of London for opposing Russlands demands on behalf of the Pope and him, saying, That neither be nor any of his loved him; with his bold reply, 824. See Index 3. The Pope and King, like the Shepheard and Wolf, confederated together to devour the flock, 826, 845. He seized on the persons, goods of all Clergymen, whether justly or unjustly suspended, excommunicated by Russland after 40. dayes, seeking whom he might devour. The Pope, Church of Rome never so tyrannously, cruelly oppressed Christians, wounded the souls of all Christs servants, as Annus 38 & 39 H. 3. by his connivance, so as almost all the devotion of the Prelates, Clergy, people towards their mother the Church of Rome, and their Father the Pope expired; who nulled all their former Priviledges, used his Papal power for their edification to their destruction, converted 3. years Dismisses into 5. and the Croyfado against the Saracens, against Apulia and Christians; forcing Christians falsly to break their Oathes, Vowes, yea to turn Idolaters, Apostates, in renouncing the Truth: Selling Prelates, like Sheep or Asses, for money, 824, 825, 848. His Writs for solemnizing St. Edwards Feast at Westminster, make oblations for him; to feast the Poor; for the Mayors, Londoners solemn processions thither, 826. For all the Croyfignats to learn to draw their bowes, and publish the indulgence granted them, ibid. His Writ to punish the riot done to the Bishop of Durham and his servants, in abusing, beating, imprisoning them, 826, 827. To Prince Edward to reform the grievances of his Judges, Sheriffs, Bayliffs, temporal Officers in Ireland, done to the Bishops Clergy, Tenants, upon their complaints, by advice of his Counsil, Nobles there, that he might have the honour thereof, 827, 828. To make an exchange for Bishops Lands to build a Castle in Ireland, 828. For allowing the Dean and Chapter of St. Martins their Tenants amerciaments; To pay his Chaplains wages twice a year; and to the Cistercians to make prayers for his, his Queens, Childrens, and affairs prosperity, 828, 829. His Notable Prohibitions against prosecuting the Mayor of London, and Sheriff of Warcester in Spiritual Courts, and excommunicating them, with his Officers, Citizens of York and others, for executing his Writs, in contempt of his Crown, Dignity, Law, Custom of his Realm: Mandates to absolve them, 829, 830, 831, 860. He prohibits the sequestration of the Priory of Winton, and any to lend monies to the Monks or Church thereof, who had brought their Church in debt by prodigal expenses, suits, 832, 833. He founds the Priory of Ravenstone, and constitutes a Prior therein, 833. He claims the Cup, Pallory of every Bishop and Abbot of the Realm that dyes, by his Prerogative, 834. He sends many Jewish Converts by his Writs to several Monasteries, Priors in England, to be maintained by Corodies in them, by several successive Writs; whom they generally refused to receive, 835, to 841. He reconfirms the Great Charter, renewing the solemn excommunication against the intriguers thereof in another Parliament, with King Johns Charter for Freedom of Elections, which were sent to the Pope to confirm, 841. His tyranny toward vacant Churches; The Pope and Roman Court durst not offend him therein for their own interest, but connived thereat, 841, 842. He seileth on the Archdeaconsry, goods of John Roman Archdeacon of Richmond, one of the richest and most covetous of the Clergy, who promoted the Romans most of any to prey upon the English Church, Clergy, 842. He could not move Archbishop Basilface to do Justice to the Bishop of Rochester, after manifold complaints, 842. His Letters to the Pope and a Cardinal, on behalf of the Church of St. Albans about a Provision, and against drawing suits out of the Realm, 842, 843. The strange form, conditions, penalities, usury reserved in his Proctors Obligations made in his Name for monies monies borrowed from the Popes Usurers, 845, 846. The Popes Letters to him on behalf of the Cistercians, whom he oppressed notwithstanding for denying him an ayde, 844, 845, 846. The Popes consolatory Letters to him and his Queen, touching the overthrow, taking, imprisonment of the Duke of Savoy by his Citizens, against whom he warred with the spoiles of Canterbury, 849. He prohibits any Prelate, Souldier or Clerk to go beyond Seas, or Popes Bulls to be imported: yet specially licenseth Ruffand and the Bishop elect of Sarum to passe over privately about his own secret affairs, 850. His royal authority and the kingdoms dignity daily declined by the Popes consecrating Bishops, whose elections he opposed, and obtaining Palls, consecrations at Rome from the Pope for money, whether he would or not. The English Bishops, Clergies discords encreased the Popes and his Courts revenues, 852, 853, 854. His ratification of an accord between the Bishop and Prior of Winton, 852, 853, 854. His Writ commanding the Dean and Chapter of Tork to install John Mansell his Clerk in a Prebendary at Tork by Proctor in his necessary absence, notwithstanding any Oath or custom to the contrary, 854. His Writ of quod dampnum, concerning the enlarging of the Cathedral Church at Lincoln upon the Dean and Canons petition, 855. His Writ for providing 300. marks a year for Ruffand the Popes Nuncio, out of Livings and Prebendaries in his gift, which should first fall void, 855. His proceedings against the Jewes of Lincoln for crucifying a Christian child in contempt of Christ, 855, 856, 857. Sends the Bishop of Elv Ambassador to Spain; and satisfied the Debts wherein he was engaged for him to the Popes Merchants; and the Debts of the Bishop of Hertford, bound only to decoy the other Bishops, 859, 860, 861. His Writs to the Wardens of the Cinque-ports, to permit no Clerk to passe beyond Seas, unless he would first swear if he went to the Court of Rome, he would impetrate nothing against the King concerning Sicily, or the ordinance made thereon by the Pope, nor other things against the Crown and dignity of the King of England, 865. His Writ to Ruffand to collect and deposite the money of the Disute in a safe place, and to dispose of none of it, untill he knew the Popes pleasure concerning it, 865. Obligated not to go in person, or send a Caprain to Sicily, till he had first paid the Pope and his Merchants 133540 marks by a short day; which involving him in great difficulties, he craved longer time for payment by Letters to the Pope and Cardinals, 868, 869, 870, 871. How much he had then actually paid for it, 871, 872. Judge Bractons passages concerning his Royal Jurisdiction, Prohibitions to Ecclesiastical Courts and Popes Delegates, 872, to 880. He summons the Abbots of the Cistercian Order by his Writs to London, demanded a great ayde of money from them; which they unanimously denied to pay, for which he and his officers molested them: but the Bishops gave him an ayde of 4000 marks, to the irreparable losse and damage of the Church, to conquer Sicily and Apulia, 889, 890, 891. The chief end they gave it was, to induce him to grant 50. Articles they had drawn up, (much like those for which the glorious Marty Becket contended to death) for which they resolved to fight if denied. Archbishop Boniface summoned a Council to confirm these Articles; the King by his Writs prohibited him and the Bishops to meet therein, which yet they did in contempt of his Royal authority. The Articles, Canons they drew up and confirmed in it, to the subversion of the Kings, Civil Officers, Judges Ecclesiastical and Civil Prerogatives, his Nobles, Commons Liberties, Properties, his Laws and Courts of Justice, subjecting them all to their Ecclesiastical Censures, Jurisdications, Interdicts, Excommunications for acting ought against them, and wholly exempting the Clergy from the Kings Temporal Jurisdiction, 890, to 913. The Kings and Nobles Appeals, Proctors sent to Rome to complain against, repeal these their Antimonarchical Constitutions, as grievances highly prejudicial to the Crown, Liberties, Laws, Customs of the Kingdom, 983, 986, 990, 991. The Archbishop forced to fly the Realm thereupon, not permitted by the King and Nobles to return, but upon condition to reverse all his Excommunications denounced against any man by these Constitutions, and by reason of the late troubles; to act nothing for the future in matters concerning the affairs of the Church or Realm, but by the major and discreeter part of his Suffragans, and other discreet men of the Realm; And that he or the Clerks coming with him, should bring with them nothing in Letters, Messages, Mandates, nor do or procure any thing else whiles they continued in the Realm, whereby any damage, peril or prejudice might come to the King or any of the Kingdom, 997, 998. See Index 3. Archbishop Boniface. His Writs concerning the sequestration of, and monies raised by the profits of vacant Bishopricks, to be reserved under lock and key in his Treasury of the New Temple London, 912, 913. He refuseth the Bishop elect of Elv, made against his Letters for another, and in indignation fells the Woods, impoverished the Tenants, dammified the Monks by John Valeran, to whom he committed the custody of it, and exposed that Church to extreme servitude, depredations, condemning the fear of God, and reverence of Saints, 913. His prohibition to the Archbishop not to consecrate him, and Letters to the Pope, Cardinals not to confirm him, his election tending to disinherit him of his ancient Prerogative, in ordaining Bishops in Cathedrals; yet they at last confirmed him, to his great dishonour, 922, 923, 924. His Procurations granted to renounce his and his Sons interest in the Realm of Sicily, if expedient for the good of the Church of Rome, 914, 915, 916, 917, 918, 919, 920. His Letter to Pope Alexander concerning Sicily and Apulia, so to dispose of that affair, that he, his Heirs, and whole Realm of England might alwayes obey the Church of Rome with accustomed devotion; and that by occasion of that affair, from whence he received no fruit, he might incurre no further damage: That he would consider, if he had obliged himself to the prosecution of that affair under divers penalties; to wit, that if he did not pay the Pope the monies promised, or not send or go in person to Sicily, it should be in the Popes power alone to null and make voyd his grant thereof; yet notwithstanding he, as King, should be excommunicated, the Realm of England interdicted, forfeited: He desired these penalties might be remitted, other propositions he proposed therein accepted of; submitting the whole businesse to the meer mercy, will of the Pope and his Cardinals, to order and dispose thereof as they should think meet for the honour of God, of the Church of Rome, of himself and his Son Edmund, whom they called King of Sicily: protesting he undertook this affair not for any temporal respect, but out of that sincere affection and devotion he alwayes had to the Church of Rome, and See Apostolick, in whom he had singular confidence, having alwayes stood by him in his adversities, and by whom when infested as well by his own Subjects as Foreigners, not supported by the help of any other, he evaded the subtilties of his enemies, and triumphed laudably over them, 918, 919, 920. He seals 20. blank white papers and schedules with his own great seal, 8. with the seal of Prince Edward; and 10. blanks more with the golden seal of Edmund his Son, to be sent to Rome concerning Apulia and Sicily, 920. He brought his Son Edmund into the Parliament with an Apulian habit, commends him, prays their counsil, or an effectual ayde for his assistance, a turning that by the counsil and loving favour of the Pope and Church of England, to acquire the Realm of Sicily, he had obliged himself under pain of losing his Realm, Realm, to pay one hundred and forty thousand Marks to the Pope, besides use money which daily encreased: That he had obtained the Tenth of all the Clergy for 5. years, according to the new Taxations, without any expences deducted; & the first years fruits of all vacant Benefices from the Pope, which made all mens ears to tingle and hearts to bleed: That his debts and expences after he became a dilapidator of the Realm, amounted to nine hundred thousand and fifty thousand Marks, which was horrible to think of, 921. Pope Alexander earnest Letter to him, to right the Bishop of Rochester against the oppressions of Archbishop Basile, which he had neglected to do after frequent complaints, to his defamation and dishonour in foreign parts, being obliged by the Great Charter he had ratified, against the infringers whereof the Bishops had by his assent denounced a general Excommunication, and by his Coronation Oath, to defend the Liberties, Rights of the Church, and of this and all other Bishops; requiring him by a day to restore him and all other Archbishops, Bishops, Prelates, and Ecclesiastical persons to their rights, out of reverence to Jesus Christ, who had made him his anointed one with holy oyl; for the honour of the Cross, whose badge he had taken upon him, and for the salvation of his own soul; considering that sins were never remitted, unless rapines were restored; else himself according to his duty would proceed to hear their complaints against the Archbishop: Yet the King after this: and many other complaints, encouraged the Archbishop, who was thereupon cited to Rome to answer, satisfie the unrepaired injuries before the Pope, 928, 929, 930. The Pope and he so ipoyled, impoverished England, that for want of monies Lands lay untilld, and multitudes of people dyed through penury: Yet he then called in Arlet to flea off their skins; whereupon the Nobles seeing the Kingdom desolated on all hands, by the extortions, tallages as well of the King as Court of Rome, and by the presumption, advancements of Foreigners, who swayed all things, confederate and provide for their own security, raise forces under pretext of going against the Welsh, met together with Horse and Armes at a Parliament at Oxford; their proceedings, Provisions made therein to redresse these grievances, expell all Foreigners by force, confirm, maintain the Great Charter and these Provisions, which all were sworn to observe, committed to 24. to execute: The Kings half brothers refuse to swear to these new Provisions; swore by the death and wounds of Christ, they would never resign the Castles committed to their custody; the high contests, words between them and the Barons about it; th y depart from Oxford to Winster, whither they are pursued with Horse and Armes by the Barons; who refusing to stand to the judgement of a Parliament there held, fled the Realm, 930, 931, 936, 937. Their monies seized at Dover, London, elsewhere by the Kings Writs, 937, 938, 939. The Parliaments and Nobles oppositions against, and reprehension of his folly in accepting Sicily, Apulia; refusal to ayde him therein, being undertaken without their advice; complaints of the manifold frequent rapines of the Pope and his Legates, to the undoing of the Church, Realm, to promote that design, 931, 932. He employed Simon Passeve to carry Letters to several Abbots to borrow monies; his subtilty, falshood in that affair discovered, defeated, 932, 933, 934. The Parliament adjourned; the altercations between him and the Nobles at their re-assembling, concerning his violations of the Great Charter so oft redeemed, purchased, against his Oath, Promises, Excommunications denounced; promoting, enriching aliens, impoverishing his natural Subjects and himself, so that he could not recover the rights of his Realm, nor repulse the injuries of the Welsh, the despicablest of men: His conviction, confession of these his crimes, that he had oft been bewitched with ill counsil; his Oath upon the high Altar, and St. Edwards Coffin, to reform his pristine errors, and be advised, ruled by his native Subjects; yet not believed, because so frequently violated, 935. His and his fathers frequent breach of Oaths, and the Great Charter; He and Prince Edward enforced to swear to the Provisions made at Oxford, 935, 936. Manusius, after Arlets revocation; by his procurement sent by the Pope into England to fleece it; his prodigal expences on this and other Popes Nuncios, 932, 932. He had power to absolve the King and all others from their Oaths, to supply his present necessities, to furnish the Pope with monies for Apulia and Sicily, 934. His safe conduct to William de Valencia to depart the Realm, 937. His Writs for the banishment and transportation of the Archdeacon of Winster, a Paislovian, 938. He induced the Abbot of Wesminster by fallacious promises, to set his and his Convents seal as a surety for him to a bond of 2500 Marks, to give a pernicious example to other Abbots, to extort monies from them who opposed it, 932, 933, 934, 935. The Abbots chuse rather to incur the indignation, in not being bound for him in great sums of money, then the Popes; who had expressly prohibited them to enter into any bonds, under pain of Interdict and Excommunication, 933, 934. A Proteus, whom his Nobles knew not how to binde by his Oaths, Charters, promises, or otherwise, to observe the Great Charter and their Liberties, 935, 936. His Writs concerning the Archbishopricks, Archbishops of Tuam and Dublin; and Patent concerning his right of Patronage and Presentation to Churches as Patron, or in right of his Prerogative, in the Mannors of Archbishops and Abbots, 939, 940, 941. His Patent to defray the expences of his Nuncio to the Court of Rome, 940, 941. His Letters to the Pope and Cardinals, for prorogation of the business of Sicily till a further time then formerly appointed, 942, 943. Concerning a peace with France, to end the old and new controversies between the two Crowns, 944, 945. His Letters to the Pope, that he had earnestly demanded an Ayde from his Nobles for Apulia, who promised to grant one, if he would reform the grievances of the Realm by their advice, and the Pope mitigate his conditions in his Instrument, which they deemed overhard, and prayed to have them moderated, 945, 946. His procurations to oblige him, his Realm, and Son Edmund in any conditions, and to swear on his soul to observe them, 946. His Patent to a Proctor to demand a Legate from the Pope, 947. He assigned the Disme the Pope granted him for 3. years, to satisfie 30000 Marks due by him to the Pope and Church of Rome, 947. His Letters to the Pope to ratifie the Barons Provisions made at Oxford, for the good of him and his Realm, 947. He repents of his Oath to these Provisions, and to avoyd the brand of perjury, sent secretly to the Pope to absolve him and his Son from their Oaths inviolably to observe them; which he easily obtained by his Letters and Nuncios from Pope Alexander 4. and Urban 4. his successor; Pope Urban Bull published for dissolving all these Confederacies, Statutes, Provisions, absolving all from their Oaths to observe them, and excommunicating all who should maintain them, 948, 986, 988, 989, 1015, 1016, 1018, 1021, 1022. Pope Alexander the 4. his Letter to him for continuing an annual pension to Arlets Nephew, who came into England upon his own calling, 952, 953. He would permit none to be elected Bishop of Winchester by the Monks, but such as were most dear to him, 954. His license by advice of his Counsil to the Bishop of London elect, (Wingham his Chancellor) to hold all his former Ecclesiastical dignities, benefices of his patronage in England and Ireland with it, so long as the Pope would indulge him; his protection peaceably to enjoy those livings; his grant to him of 5000 sheep, 200 cows, and

and 10. bulls of the flock of the Bishoprick of Winchester, to stock his Bishoprick of London, which he warranted to him against any Bishop elect of Winton, unless Adomar his brother were restored to it, 954, 955, 984. His Writ to the Guardian of the Temporalities of Winton, to put his Clerk into possession of a parcel of Tithes, in default of the Archbishop's Official, who delayed to do it, 955, 956. His Letters to the Roman Cardinals, 958. His Writ to the Bishop of Hereford, concerning the particulars of the vast sums wherein he obliged him, and the Bishops, Abbots of the Realm, to the Court of Rome, for the business of Sicily, 958, 959. His exemptions of some of his Clerks from the Dimes granted, 961, 962, 996, 1007. His Letters to the Pope and Cardinals, in defence of his ancient right in conferring Prebendaries and Benefices by his Prerogative, during the vacancies of Bishopricks; and his grant of the Prebend of Fenton to John Masfell his Clerk, against the Popes provision thereof to a Cardinals Nephew; and to the Nobles of his Council to assist him in defence of this his right, 962, 963, 964. His Writs to Sheriffs, not to permit any of his Clerks to be ejected out of their possessions of Benefices to which he presented them, by provisors or others, 964, 974, 975. His Letters to the Pope not to restore his brother Adomar to the Bishoprick of Winton, to prevent sedition, discord, and danger in the Realm, the Nobles, people being extremely incensed against him; and his Queen with himself for withdrawing the Prince his Son from obedience to him, 966. His Proctors and appeal against his and others grievances to him and his Realm, 967. His Writ to the Barons and Bayliffs of Dover and other Ports, to apprehend all Italian or other Clerks, of what order soever, or Laymen arriving with Papal Bulls prejudicial to him or his Realm, and to arrest them with their Bulls, Letters, till further order, 968. His Writ to remove a Lay-force disturbing a sequestration of a Benefice, being both willing and obliged to defend the Rights and Liberties of the Church, to which he could not be wanting, 968. His notable Writs to the Bishop of Durham and his Officials, against vexing, impoverishing the Inhabitants of Newcastle by Citations, and compelling them by Ecclesiastical censures to take an Oath, and answer Articles in their Courts and Visitations, 969, 970. He intended not by his Writs to disservice any man of his rights, 970. His Writ to promote his Queens Chaplain to a Benefice, when it should fall voyd, 971. His Letter to the Pope on behalf of the Bishop elect of Bordeaux, whom he had approved as fit and faithfull to him, 971. His Writ to the Bishop of Lincoln, to correct the extravagant proceedings of his Archdeacon, to the manifest prejudice of the Rights of his Crown and Dignity, according to his duty, 972. His Writs to the Chief Justice of England, to preserve the rights of him and his Clerks against all new evasions and disturbances to obtain possession of the Churches to which he presented them, that no disinherison might come to him or his Heirs thereby in process of time, 972. His Letter to the King and Queen of Scots at the Popes request, to restore the Temporalities of the Bishoprick of Glasgow to him the Pope made Bishop by his provision, unless he could shew good cause to the contrary, 973. His Writs to prohibit the Archbishop of St. Andrews or any of his followers, to land in England with Bulls tending to the infamy or disinherison of the King of Scots, or any other of his enemies, and to arrest them till further order, 973. His Writ for a Prior to improve a Wood and great waste, leaving the Commoners sufficient Common, 973, 974. His Writs to Abbots and Convents to receive the Monks he sent them from Winton, where they could not follow their contemplations as they ought, 975, 976. His Patent to the Archbishop of York Tenants, to move them to a liberal Contribution towards the satisfaction of the Archbishopricks debts, 977. His Writs to sequester the Benefices of a Clerk accountant indebted to him, 977, 978. His Patent to provide 30 Marks a year for his Bicheator in Ireland, out of the Benefices of Bishops, Abbots, Priors which should fit fall voyd there, during their vacancies, 979. The Romans and their Legates domineered in England over the Laity and Clergy, disposing of their best Benefices at their pleasures, excommunicating the Bishops, Abbots, Priors who contradicted them, through his folly and sluggishness, 980. His Son Edmunds Letter to the Sicilians, styling Sicily his Kingdom, granted him by the Popes special grace, desiring them to admit him for their King and promote his affairs, promising to prosecute that affair, to preserve the Charter of their Liberties, and readily to promote their honour, 985. His flattering Letters and Proxies to the Pope, Urban, and other Cardinals, extolling the benefits, protection he received from his pious mother the Church of Rome and them continually upon all occasions, to procure an absolution from his Oath to observe the Provisions of Oxford, and not to ratify them at the Barons request, or their Agents, being made to the depredation of his Regal liberty, and prejudice of his right, 985, 986, 987, 988, 989. His memorable Writs to all the Sheriffs of England, reciting the Barons breach of their promises and conditions made at Oxford, his absolution by Pope Alexander 4. and Urban 4. from his Oath to observe their Provisions and Confederacies there made, to the prejudice and derogation of his Royal right and dignity, and disturbance of the Kingdoms peace: His promise freely to use his royal power, and exhibit the fulness of Justice to all great and small; and to make publick Proclamations throughout their Counties, that all should obtain justice from him with all security and confidence, and prosecute and obtain their right against great and small before him, and in all Courts by his Royal authority; that he would be wanting in his justice to none, whether great or small; that he would maintain the Great Charter and Charter of the Forest in all points: And that if any should adhere in their Counties to their former Confederacies, or attempt any thing against the right of his Regality, or the Sheriffs Office appointed by him, or preach any thing against him or his honour, or persuade the people to do ought against it, they should apprehend and detain them prisoners, till further order received from him, 989. His and the Nobles Procurations, Appeals against the Antimonarchical Ordinances, Constitutions, Statutes of the Archbishop and his Suffragans in the Council at London, to the prejudice and grievance of his Crown, and Liberties of the Realm and people; yet printed in Lindewode and Atas as the Canon Law of our Church and Realm, 983, 990, 991. He grants the Wardship of the Bodies and Lands of two Wards, to Arlets Nephew, 991. His Writs concerning the case of the Bishop of Elphin in Ireland, 991, 992. See Index 4. Elphin. His Writs to the Archbishop of Cantebury's Tenants, to contribute towards the discharge of his debts, 992. He prohibits the Cistercian and other Monks to buy and sell Wools or other Merchandizes, against their profession and order, to the impoverishing of the Merchants of Lincoln and other Towns, under pain of severe penalties if they transgressed therein for the future, 992, 993. He minures, lowers the Temporalities of the Bishoprick of Strum in his hands, sells the corn and fruits thereof by Inquisition of honest men, the money to be answered for them in his Exchequer, 993. The Bishop of Winton compounds to give him 22 s. 13 s. 1 d. for the corn and stock upon his Temporalities, 994. His prohibition to Sheriffs to distrain Religious and Beneficed persons, to find Horse and Foot for the common defence of the Realm against enemies, being appointed by accord to find Horse or Foot, or pay such a sum of money in lieu thereof as the Bishops should appoint, 994. His Epistle

A Disme granted him by the Clergy for the common defence of the Realm and Church; his Writs for the Bishops to levy and pay it by a certain day, to prevent its levying by his Bayliffs on their default, 1006, 1007, 1008. He seileth the Baronies of Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, who refused or neglected to send Horse and Armes to ayde him according to their Tenures, upon summons, 1008, 1009. He commands the Bishop of Bangor by Writ to release an Interdict against Lewellen, in a Lay-cause not belonging to his Court, 1009. He revokes his presentation under his Great Seal to the Treasurership of York, whiles a prisoner under Simon Montfort, and confers it on another when free; and commands other Commissioners of his appointment to install him, upon the Canons refusal, 1010, 1011. His memorable Writ to the Bishop of Hereford, expressing the reason of instituting Bishops, Pastors, and their duty, checking him for his neglect thereof and non-residence, commanding him to return to, reside on his Bishoprick, and discharge his duty; and the Archbishop and his Official to enforce him to it by Ecclesiastical censures, under pain of seizing his Temporalities, since he was unworthy to reap the Temporalities, who feared not irreverently to subtract and neglect the spiritual duties of his Office, taking the milk and wool of the flock, but neither knowing, feeding, nor caring for them; which neglect he could not permit to go unpunished, 1011, 1012. His Patent to some Citizens of Lincoln, to protect the Jews there from all violence to their persons or goods, 1013. His Writ to the Bishops of the Province of Canterbury, to excommunicate the Earl of Gloucester and others for not going over into Ireland, and seizing the Kings Castles, Towns in an hostile manner, drawing the Prince to violate the late agreement made with the Barons, against former and late publick Excommunications; without sparing any great or small, for this their contempt of God and the keys of the Church, 1013, 1014. His Inquisition to punish the violations of the rights of the Church of Norwich, which he was obliged to defend, by the Inhabitants of Len, 1016, 1017. His privilege granted to the Archbishop of Dublin and his Tenants, concerning distresses for debts, 1017. He sends for two Legates successively to excommunicate the Barons, and suspend the Bishops and Clergymen from their Office and Benefices, who fomented them in their Rebellions, 1018, 1019. He summons a Parliament at Kemilworth, Commissioners there elected and sworn to make an accord between him and those who had been and were in Armes against him, who drew up a Statute and Articles accordingly, 1019, 1022. His protection and safe conduct to Clerks and others who had been against him, to repair to the Legate to make their peace or demand Justice, 1019, 1020. The Popes Provisions of Benefices; his intollerable exactions touching the business of Sicily; the heavy yoke of the Roman Church; Usurers, the principal causes of the differences, Wars between the King and his Barons; whereupon the Prelates, Barons assembling in Council, against the Lord and his anointed, said; You see how we profit nothing; if we thus let the King alone, the Romans will come and take away our purses and money: Let us therefore constitute 24. Elders round about his Throne, which excluding the Parthians, Medes and Elamites coming from Rome, may free Jerusalem from Egyptian servitude, may order all and singular affairs of the Realm, may receive the first seats in Feasts and salutations in the Market-place, with reservation of the Kings magnificence: Whereupon most of them mad with envy and ambition, forthwith made the Constitutions at Oxford, swore all men and the King himself to observe them, the Bishops excommunicating all infringers of them: The Bishop of Worcester and some other Prelates, the Fathers and Judges of mens consciences, gave their assent unto them, contrary to their corporal Oath to preserve the rights and terrene honour of the King and his Heirs, consenting to so great a depression of Royal power. For which the Popes Legate suspended them from their Office, Bishopricks, Benefices; interdicted, excommunicated them and the Barons by a publick sentence, who appealed against them to the See Apostolick, and if need were to the next General Council, and the Church as well Triumphant as Militant; condemn the Spiritual relying on the Material Sward, 1020, 1021, 1022. The Bishops encouraged all to fight manfully, and promised heaven to those who dyed in this quarrel against him, who yet were routed, and their chief Captain slain at Evesham, 1022. The disinherited persons in the Isle of Elly, their high and sharp answers to the Legates propositions sent to them, wherewith the King and he were much incensed, 1022, 1023. His summons of all Earls, Barons, Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, and others who held by Knight-service, to meet with Horse and Armes to besiege the Rebels in the Isle of Elly; the Earl of Gloucester refused to come, though he raised forces to prosecute his enemies, 1024. He summoned a Parliament, to which the Earl of Gloucester refused to repair, but sent a Charter, he would never bear Armes against him or his Son Prince Edmund; his and the Legates demand

mand to the Prelates therein concerning three years Dismes, Horse and Armes against the Kings rebels and enemies, with their high contemptuous answers, 1022, 1023. He places Osburn the Legate in his Royal Throne at St. Edwards solemn Feast, and commanded all dishes to be set first before him, 1023, 1024. He commits the Tower of London to him, and orders him to pawn his Jewels in it and at Wylminster, to raise monies, 1025, 1026. Pope Clement 4. by his Bull grants a Disme for three years towards his ayde and supply, from all Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, Clerks, and Religious persons in England, Wales, Ireland, to be levied by Ecclesiastical censures without appeal, at the improved value, towards his losses, great expenses by the Barons Wars and Rebellions against him; wherein the miseries, extremities he, his Queen, and Son Prince Edward were put to by these Wars, are largely related; his zeal, devotion, munificence to the Church, Church-men, and promoting Gods worship, with his and his Ancestors large endowments of the Church, obliging them to assist him in his necessities, are amplified, 1026, to 1030. His Letters of gratitude to the Pope, Cardinals, Popes Advocate, craving their further assistance, favour, advice in his great affairs, promising the Advocate a full reward, 1030, 1031, 1049. He submits the differences between him and Gilbert de Clare to the Pope, constituting Proctors in that affair; and for defence of his rights in the French Kings Court, against Ecclesiastical and Temporal persons, 1032, 1033. He recites the Rights, Privileges of the Archbishops of Canterbury, which he is willing to maintain; and grants an Inquisition for Lands alienated, seized, or detained injuriously from that See during the Wars, 1033. His Commissions for collecting the Dismes granted him by the Pope; several Patents, Writs concerning it, 1033, to 1039. The Form of his Obligations by his Proctors to the Popes Merchants, renouncing all evasions of, and appeals against them, 1034, 1035. His Letter to his brother Richard King of Almain, concerning his promises to him, which he had violated, and to treat with him concerning them, 1037. He erects a Chauntry in his Hospital at Basingstoke; his Writ reciting the Prerogative of our Kings from the first institution of Christian Religion, freely to erect free Chauntries in all their Houses and Demesnes, without the Bishops leave or disturbance; and to have the custody of all vacant Bishopricks, 1038. His confirmation of the Legates award of an annuity issuing out of two Prebendaries, to continue, notwithstanding they came to his or his Heirs presentation by his Prerogative, 1039, 1040. His punishment of the Jews in Oxford, ordering them to erect a Crosse there, and provide a silver and gilt Crosse to be carried in procession before the Chancellor and Scholars of the University, for throwing down and breaking their Crosse in a solemn procession, in contempt of Christ crucified, 1045, 1046, 1047. He augments and payes the arrears of two Roman Cardinals annuities out of the Disme, to promote his affairs at Rome, 1048. He exempted the Popes Agents and Chaplains employed in England, from paying the Disme out of their Prebends and Benefices, 1048. His Patent and Commissioners for levying the three years Disme in Ireland, 1049. He by advice of his Prelates, Nobles, and Commons in Parliament, transfers his Vow, Voyage, Dismes to the Holy Land, to his Son Prince Edward by Patent, it being dangerous to the Realm for both of them to be absent from it at once, 1049, 1050. His Writs to levy the 10th. part of the Bishops and Abbots Villains goods, which they granted him towards his Voyage, 1050. His Writs concerning the levying, disposing, and account of the Disme levied or compounded for in most Diocesses, 1050, to 1056. Part of them assigned to satisfy the arrears due to the Pope of the Annual Rent granted by

King John Charter, 1054, 1055. His license to a Tenant in Capue to sell Lands in Mortmain to furnish monies for his voyage to the Holy Land, 1056. He grants the profits of the Archbishoprick of Dublin, except Knights fees, Wards, and Advowsons, towards the expenses of his Sons voyage, 1056. His Charter of assignment of all the Revenues of England, except Wards and other casualties, to his brother Earl Richard, for monies taken up from him towards his voyage to the Holy Land, 1056, 1057. His Letter on his sick bed to Prince Edward, speedily to return into England upon his blessing from the Holy Land, being Heir to the Crown, to prevent inconveniences therein expressed, 1057, 1058. His Statutes and Proclamations against Jews purchasing Free-hold Lands in England, and concerning their Houses in London and other Corporations, 1058, 1059. His Writ to the Constable of Dover, to maintain the Privileges of the Prior and Convent of St. Martins Dover, during the vacancy of the Archbishoprick then in his hands, against all encroachments of the Prior and Convent of Trinity Canterbury, 1060, 1061. His license to the Monks of Canterbury to elect, and procurations against their election of a new Archbishop whom he approved not; the Pope thereupon taking advantage to conferre it against both their wills on Kilwarby, 1061, 1062, 1063. His Writs speedily to certify and levy fines estranged, 1064. His license to the Bishop of Worcester to build two houses with lime and stone, and embattle them like Castles, 1064. His grant of the Jews School in London to the Freers Penitentiaries, whom they disturbed in their Masse with their howlings; with a license to the Jews to erect another School elsewhere, 1065. His zeal to punish and revenge the Citizens of Norwich tumults, in spoiling, burning the Priory and Cathedral there, upon a fray between the Monks and them about certain Taxes and Liberties: His Writs, proceedings therein, seizing the Citizens Liberties, goods, persons, hanging some, fining others, and going thither in person to see Justice executed, 1065, 1066, 1067. His prohibition of the ancient manner of trial of felons, Theeves by judgement of fire and water, and appointing other penalties by advice of his Council, Appendix 10. He convened the Popes Usurers in London before him, accusing them as Schismatics, Hereticks, and of High Treason, for that they professing themselves Christians, had defiled the whole Realm of England with the most filthy gain of Usury; for which he being a most Christian King, who had sworn inviolably to preserve the Holy Institutions of the Church, complained he felt himself much wounded in his conscience; which fact when they could not deny, some of them were taken and imprisoned, others hid themselves in corners: Yet at last purchasing their peace for a good sum of money, they were dismissed in peace, and would thereupon have left the Realm, but that they had purchased sumptuous houses in London, Appendix 16. His great oppression and exactions of monies from the Jews at several times, who proffered to leave all their wealth behind them, so as he would grant them liberty to depart the Realm, to get a livelihood elsewhere; he being another Titus and Vespasian, selling them to his brother Richard to tear out their bowels, after he had pulled off their skins, Appendix 16, 17. His excuse of his oppression and rapines by the vastness of his Debts, and smallness of his Estate, which necessitated him to extort money by any means, Ibid. He repents his receipt of 500 Marks from the Convent of Abbadon, for a license to elect a new Abbot without disturbance, upon the death of their Abbot then sick of the palsey, dying within 15. dayes after; because else he might have made 2000 Marks or more by sale of the Woods, besides other profits, Appendix 17. The Pope threatens to excommunicate and interdict the Realm, and proceed rigorously against him for not performing his covenants covenants and promise with him touching Sicily and Apulia, to which he had willingly obliged himself under these pains and losse of his Realm: Whereupon being confounded in his minde, to delay publishing this sentence for a time, and allay his anger, he payd the Pope 5000 Marks; the Realm being impoverished and utterly spoiled of its treasure, all his hopes of obtaining that Realm vanished, Appendix 28, 29. His license and direction to make an Impropriation, and endow a Vicaridge, Appendix 29. His devotion in frequent hearing of Masses, but indiscretion in permitting himself, the Church, Realm to be preyed upon by Popes and their Instruments; which his Obligations to them for ayding him against Lewis at first, against the Barons, Rebellious Prelates at last, and cheating specious proffers, grants to Edmund of Apulia, Calabria, Sicily, were the greatest inducements, 1067, 1068, 1069. His sickness, and pious death, after 56 years and 30 dayes reign, 1067.

Belevoir upon his Letters, till he paid a Ransom, and took an Oath never to bear Arms during his life, 227. His resolute opposition of the Popes, Bishops Usurpations, and contempt of their displeasures, menaces during his 14 years reign, 225, 226, 227. His Charter of Ambrbury to the Nuns of Fontevrault, the former Abbess and Nuns being ejected for their Whoredoms, 228, 229. To the Archbishop of Canterbury to deliver Criminal Clerks imprisoned to him, upon demand, to make their Purgations, 230. His Prerogative to grant Licenses to elect, and confirm when elected, all Abbots, Bishops of his Patronage in England, France, elsewhere; a prohibition to elect any without his License and Assent, 229, 230. His readiness to defend the Churches Rights, but with the preservation of his own, Ibid. His Writ for the Bishop of Norwich to make use of his Court and Judges to recover the Lands of his Church formerly alienated, 290. He seised the Temporalities, confiscates the Goods of Geoffrey his base Brother, Archbishop of York, and imprisoned his Servants, for contempts in opposing a Tax, excommunicating the Sheriff of Yorkshire, and his Officers for levying it. His Fine, Submissiō, absolving the Sheriff thereupon, 230, 231. His Protection to defend the Archdeacon of Richmond, against all violence, injury of the Archbishop of York, 231. His vacating of the proceedings against the Archbishop of York, and the Rights of his Bishopricks, upon his submission and reconciliation to him, 233. His Patents for his Justices to assist Hubert Archbishop of Canterbury to recover the Lands and Rights of his Archbishoprick in his Court, saving his Prerogative, 233, 234. He elects, ratifies one Person of three nominated to him to be a Bishop by the Chapter of Seta, 234. He opposeth the reception, and provision of Gildardus to be Bishop of St. Davids in Wales, and its re-erection into an Archbishoprick by Pope Innocent's Bull, prohibiting any to own, aid, or assist him as Bishop, being never approved by him; nulls his Provision; causeth another to be elected, consecrated Bishop, enjoys all to assist him against the Popes Intruder, as an Enemy to his Crown, Dignity, and the Kingdoms peace, 234, to 238. Claims the Temporalities of all Bishops during their vacancies by ancient Right and Custom, of which Gildardus by the Popes provision attempted to deprive him; which he would by no means endure; requiring all his Subjects as they loved his Honour and Dignity to maintain, defend this his Prerogative as Liege Subjects, and to attempt nothing against it under pain of being reputed, proceeded against as open Enemies to his Crown, 236, 237. The Popes Legate sent to him to promote an Aide granted to the Holy Land, his, and his Barons proceedings therein, who grant of an Aid by their own Authority: their Order concerning its Collection, 238, 239, 240. His Patents to the Chief Justice of Ireland to prevent the Suffragans election of an Archbishop of Ardmach, without his Royal License, assent, not to receive him they elected without it upon any terms for Archbishop, against whom he appealed, 240, 241. and banished this Archbishop his natural Brother till his death, for opposing a Tax granted him, and excommunicating all who levied it in his Province, or invaded the Churches Rights or Goods, 242, 243. The Monks of Canterbury, after Hubert's death, elect their Sub-prior secretly at midnight without his License, lest he should hinder their Election, and concealed it under an Oath of secrecy, till the Pope should approve it; Which the Sub-prior revealing against his Oath, the Monks thereupon petitioned the King for a License to elect; which he granted without contradiction, recommending John Gray Bishop of Norwich, his chief intimate Counsellour, to their Election, as most profitable to him and his Kingdoms; whom they unanimously elected in the Kings presence, placing him on the High Altar: the King presently restored him the Temporalities thereof in the presence of them all; sends some of the Monks at his own charge to Rome to Pope Innocent to confirm his Election, with Letters to the Popes Notaries, Chaplains, to procure his confirmation, according to his Right, Prerogative, and known Custom of the Realm: At which time the Suffragan Bishops sending Proctors to Rome, complaining that the Monks elected him Bishop without them, who hid their Voyces in the election of three Archbishops; and the Monks pleading, that by ancient Bulls and Custom, time out of minde, the Election belonged to themselves alone; The Pope giving a definitive Sentence for the Monks right of Election, without the Bishops concurrence; He thereupon attempting to deprive the King of his Prerogative, of recommending, approving, confirming and promoting Archbishops to this chief Metropolitan See of his Realm, vacated the Sub-priors Election as void, because clandestine in the Night, without the License, or consent of the major and discreeter part of the Convent; and Grays Election too, though made in the day time by the Kings and Monks general assents, because the first Election was not judicially vacated, and because though the King had told two Monks that he would accept whomsoever they elected, yet there was a secret agreement ratified by Oath between the King and Monks, that they should by no means choose any other but John Bishop of Norwich, directing Letters to them to that effect. The Pope nulling both these Elections, pressed the Monks of Canterbury there present as Proctors for both their Elections, presently to elect Stephen Langton a Cardinal, the Popes great Favourite, being an Engl'shman, because he could not suffer that See to be any longer desitute of a Pastor: who answering, It was not lawful for them to make a Canonical Election, without the consent of the King and their Convent: He replied, They had the sole Power of Election, neither is the assent of the King used to be expected in Elections celebrated at the See Apostolick, commanding them upon their obedience, and under pain of Excommunication, presently to elect Langton whom he recommended to them; whereupon all the Monks but one out of fear, although against their wills, and with murmuring, assented to him, singing Te Deum, and leading him to the Altar: Upon which the Pope consecrated him Archbishop, and sent a complemental Epistle, with some Rings and Jewels to the King to receive him as Archbishop, 244, to 248. The King for this high affront of the Pope, and treachery of the Monks against the Rights and Prerogative of his Crown, in obtruding an Archbishop upon him without his privacy, and he his professed Enemy: cashiering him who was duly elected, approved, confirmed by him, notwithstanding his fitness and all Letters on his behalf: charged the Monks of Canterbury with Treason for electing Langton; commanding two Knights with armed force to expell them the Monastery, and banish them the Realm, or else execute them as Traytors: who entering the Monastery with their drawn Swords, commanded the Prior and Monks in the Kings name to depart the Realm presently as Traytors, swearing they would fire the Monastery, and burn them in it if they refused to go: whereupon all the Monks but 13, who were sick, departed into Flanders, where they lived in exile. The King seized upon their Goods, Lands, and Temporalities of the Archbishoprick. He likewise sent Messengers and Letters to the Pope, wherein he reprehended him for nulling Grays legal Election, approved by him, and presuming to confirm Langton, a Person unknown to him, converting very long amongst his publick Enemies in the Realm of France, without either demanding or receiving his or the Monks assent to his Election, to the prejudice and subversion of the Liberties and Rights belonging to his Crown: At which he could not sufficiently admire, for that as well the Pope as whole Court of Rome did not call to memory how much his love had hitherto been necessary to the See of Rome, and that they received plentifuller Fruits from his Realm of England, than from all other Countries on this side the Alpes. Adding, that if need should be, he would stand for the Liberties of his Crown even unto death; immutably affirming, that he could not be removed from his Election, and promotion of the Bishop of Norwich, who was so beneficial unto him. Concluding, that if the Pope would not right him in the Premises, he would stop all passages by Sea to those who would go to Rome, lest his Land being any longer enervated, should be less able to repulse Enemies from it. That since the Archbishops, Bishops, and other Prelates of Churches, as well in England as other his Territories, sufficiently abounded in the treasures of all Sciences, if necessary shall compell, he would not seek, beg for Justice or Judgement from Foreigners out of his own Lands, 248, 249. The Popes insolent Letter in answer to him, that he needed not his assent to Langtons Election, the See Apostolick not using to wait for Princes consents to Bishops Elections: That he had his implied assent thereto; that if he received not Langton, he would involve himself in inextricable difficulties; Since he to whom the keys of all things in Heaven, Earth, and under the Earth did bow, whose Vicar he was, though unworthy, would overcome. That he should not listen to their advice, who loved to fish in troubled waters, but submit himself to his Masters will and pleasure, for his praise and honor: Because it could not be safe for him to resist in this Cause of God and his Church, for which Becket had so lately shed his Blood; and his Father and Brother Richard had abjured, 249, 250. He peremptorily refusing to receive Langton for the Popes Flatteries, or Menaces; the Pope writ Letters to the Bishop of London, Ely, and Worcester, earnestly to solicit the King to accept of him; and if he persisted contumacious and rebellious therein, then to Interdict the whole Realm by his Apostolical Authority: Adding, if he still persisted in his obstinacy, he would then aggravate his hand upon him; since he must of necessity conquer, who for the safety of the holy Church had conquered the Devil and his Angels, and spoiled Hells Cloysters, 250, 251. Upon this intimation, admonition by the Bishops, he was so highly incensed, that he swore, if they or any other should rashly Interdict his Lands, he would forthwith banish all the Prelates, Clerks, and Persons in Orders out of England, send them to the Pope, and confiscate all their Goods: That wherever he found any Romans with a ray of his Dominions, he would send them to Rome with their Eyes pulled out, and their Noses cut off; that by these marks they might be distinguished from other Nations: Commanding the Bishops to depart speedily out of his sight, if they would avoid the danger and scandal of their own Bishops. Having formerly told them, He was ready to do what should be reasonable by the advice of his Loyd Subj<sup>ts</sup>, saving to himself and his Heirs in all things their Right, Dignities, and Liberties, 251. He gave the like Answer to Simon Langton; who returned him this peremptory Reply, That he would do nothing therein, unless the King would wholly put himself into his hands, 250. The Bishops notwithstanding put all England under the Popes Interdict; whereupon all Church doors throughout England were shut up, no Divine Service, Masses, Prayers, Preaching, Sacraments celebrated in them for above six years space, the Bodies of all Christians deceasing were buried like Doggs in High ways and Corners without Christian burial; onely Baptism of Infants, Confession, and Sacraments administration in private to Persons deceasing were permitted by the Popes special Indulgences; that by alienating the Subjects hearts from the King by this antichristian Interdict, he might subject both the King, and Kingdom to himself; The Bishops Temporalities, Goods are hereupon seized, who to save their Persons fled beyond Sea, excommunicating all the Kings Officers who seized their Goods and Temporalities: Whereupon the King banished them, their Kinsfolk, with Archbishop Langton Parents and Kinred out of the Realm, sequestered the Lands, Benefices, Goods of all Bishops, Abbots, Priests, and Religious Persons, who submitted to the Interdict, and refused to celebrate Divine Service, particularly the Abbot of St. Albans; restoring their Lands, Goods who celebrated and disobeyed the Interdict, 153, 354, 255. The white Monks are punished by the Pope for celebrating by the Kings command; Conventium Abbot of the Beaufort, deprived of all his Preferments, Goods, and forced to begg his Bread for pleading his Cause against the Pope by Disputations, Writing, and affirming the Pope had no Legal power to interdict Kings, Kingdoms, or meddle with their Temporal Government, 256, 258, 259, 335. He disposeth of vacant Bishopricks, punisheth Priors for delapidations; Executed a Clerk at Oxford for Murder, for which the Clerks and Scholars desert the University, 244, 245. The Contentions between him and the Monks of Canterbury, about a Presentation to the Church of Faversham, Appendix p. 2, to 14. His Writs to the Monks concerning it; he refuseth their Money, Gifts, prohibits them to disturb his Presentation by Writs: Which they disobey, and put force in the Church: His Writ to the Sheriff to remove the force, threatening to burn the Church and the Monks in it. The violence of the Sheriff against the Monks, the Scuffles, Excommunications, Interdicts thereupon. Pope Innocents Bulls to Delegates to examine the force, to the reproach, contempt of his Regal Dignity; his memorable Prohibitions thereupon in opposition, contempt of the Popes Authority; He seileth all the Monks Temporalities for their contempt against his Writs, Ibid. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11. He is pacified at last upon their Submission, 11, to 14. He requires Hostages of all the Nobles, whose fidelity he suspected, to revoke them to their obedience, if the Pope should absolve them from it. The Answer of William de Brause and his Wife thereupon, with their flight, apprehension in Ireland, imprisonment, sufferings for it, being starved to death in Windſor Castle, 256, 260. He kept the Abby of Ramsay seven years in his hands, because the Monks refused to chuse the Abbot he recommended to them by his Precept, Appendix 18. His Character to St. Albans, Appendix 21. He loseth Normandy by his sluggishness, and many other Lands beyond the Seas, 752. After two years general Interdict of England, the Pope, by advice of his Cardinals, commands the exiled Bishops to excommunicate him every Lords day, and Holy day in all Conventual Churches throughout England, that all should strictly avoid his Company; which they signified to the Bishops of England, who through fear or favour became as dumb Doggs, not daring, but refusing to publish it; yet by secret Whisperings it became common in all places, mouths, 257, 258, 259. He apprehended, imprisoned Geoffrey Archdeacon of Norwich for deserting his Employment in the Exchequer, and saying to his Companions, It was not safe for beneficed Persons to continue longer in the service of an excommu- nicated King; and a few days after put him to death, by a heavy Cap of Lead set on his Head, and want of Food, 258, 267. He seileth the Bishoprick of Lisieux, converted the Profits thereof to his own use, and removed Hugh his Chancellour from his Chancellourship, whom he made Bishop thereof, for his Treachery and Ingratitude, in going to Archbishop Langton, making Canonical obedience to him, and receiving his Consecration from him, instead of receiving it from the Archbishop of Rheims; for which he obtained the Kings special License to go beyond Sea, 259. Most of the Nobles communicate with him, notwithstanding his Excommunication secretly divulged to all; he punished those who did the contrary, 259. The Popes excommunication of the Emperor Otho about the same time, for maintaining the Rights of the Empire according to his Oath, exasperated the wrath and hatred of King John against him, 260. His glorious Victories, Successes in Wales, Scotland, and Ireland, during his Interdict, Excommunication, opposition against the Pope: His Voyage into Ireland; above twenty petty Kings thereof out of fear submit, swear homage and fealty to him: He establisheth the Laws, Government of England in it by Sheriffs, and other Officers: He subdues his Enemies there, and returns thence with Triumph, 260. He summons all the Prelates, Clergy, Religious Persons, Orders, Templars, Hospitals, and Abbots of Cluny to London; Exacts, receives 100000 pounds sterling from them, and 40000 pound thereof from the White Monks, whether they would or nor, nulling their Privileges, 260, 261, 262. He enters into League with the Emperor Otho; forceth the King of Scots to a Peace, to put in Hostages for his Loyalty, not to receive his fugitive Subjects, and pay him 10000 Marks: Forced all the Kings, Nobles in Wales to repair to him to Woodstock, never heard in former Ages, to submit, do him Homage, and put in Pledges for their Loyalty, 261. The Popes two Nuncios after his Victories sent to make Peace between him, Canterbury, and the exiled Bishops; His condescension, that they should return home in peace, and enjoy their Bishopricks; but not the mean Profits forfeited to him: Which they insisting on, returned unsatisfied: Their insolent demands, speeches to him before the Nobles, in the Parliament of Northampton; They excommunicate him publicly, with all his Nobles, Subjects, who from thenceforth communicated with him, absolving them from their Allegiance to him; appointing several Bishops in England, Scotland, Wales, and other parts of the World to publish his Excommunication in all places, prohibiting him and his Heirs from thenceforth to be Crowned; which the Pope seconded, ratified after their return: His indignation at this their Insolency, answer to them, commanding condemned Prisoners to be executed before them, and one Clerk; whom the King delivered to Pandolph to avoid his Excommunication with Bell, Book, and Candle, which he threatened presently to denounce if he executed him, 261, to 266. His Chief Counsellours and Adherents of the Clergy and Laity, against the Pope, 265. The Welshmen excited to rebel by the Pope and exiles; he marched against them to Chester with a potent Army, which he dismisseth being terrified by sundry Letters that his Nobles absolved from their Allegiance by the Pope, would either stay or betray him to his Enemies, 269. Eustace de Vesli, and Robert Fitz Walter accused to him of Treason, by the Realm, 265. Peter the Hermit suborned by the Bishops to prophecy and preach publicly, that by Ascension day next, and from thenceforth he should not be King; that thereon the Crown should be transferred to another: The Kings conference with him; his answer to him; he is close imprisoned till the time to see the event, which proves false: The Kings mirth, triumph on that day: His evasion to make good the Prophecy, That the Pope reigned reigned, not the King: His Execution for his treasonable false Prophecy, 165, 166, 167. The Pope deposes him: at his exiled Bishops instance, gives his Kingdom to Philip King of France, excites him, and all Nobles, Soldiers in France and other Nations, to cross themselves, follow the King of France to vanquish and depose him, granting them the same privileges, indulgencies, protection in this unchristian, unholy War, as those who warred against the Saracens in the Holy Land; which his Legate Pandulph, Archbishop, and English Bishops publish and promote in France, 167, 168. Pope Innocent's secret Instructions to Pandulph to agree with the King, if he would satisfy him, the Church of Rome, Bishops, others concerned in this Affair, and subscribe the Articles of Peace which he had drawn, 167. His Writs to Sheriffs to seize all the Benefices, Lands, Rents, the Archbishop, exiled Bishops or Prior of Canterbury had given in England during their exile, and banish those who had received them. His Writs to all Bayliffs of Ports, to list and furnish all Ships which could carry six Horses by a set day, to resist the French Kings invasion by Sea, and summons of all who were bound or able to bear Arms by Land to meet at certain places to oppose him by Land: The great Forces thereby raised able to resist any Prince under Heaven, if unanimous and faithful, 168, 169. Pandulph's his repair to him, terrifying him with inward and outward dangers, loss of Soul, Life, Kingdom by the potency of his Foes, and treachery, infidelity of his own Subjects, absolved, fallen from their Allegiance to the French, unless he assented to the Popes Proposals, cast himself and his Realm into his Arms and Protection; his unworthy condescension thereupon to restore the exiled Bishops, Archbishop, and their Adherents with all their damages, notwithstanding their successive Rebellions, Treasons against him; to revoke, null all his Outlawries, remit all his indignation against them, to give them safe conduct to return; ratified with his Charters, Nobles Oath, Letters, to renounce his Jurisdiction over the Clergy, surrender his Crown, Kingdoms of England and Ireland to the Pope to hold them of him and his Successor, under 1000 Marks Annual Rent, and swear Homage and Fealty to him, 166, 169, to 196. The manner of his unworthy resigning his Crown, Regal Ensigns to Pandulph, and his insolent reception of them, 173. His detestable, deplorable Charter of Resignation, Homage and Fealty to the Pope and his Successors; whereby he made his Kingdom tributary, and himself a Vassal to them: That in the Charter Rolls, differs in some memorable particulars from that in Matthew Paris, 173, 174, 189, 190, 300, 693, 752. That he never made but one Charter of Resignation, not two, 190, 191. The nullity of his Charter to the Pope largely proved by many Authorities, Reasons; 175, 191, to 330. His dolefull lamentations, complaints, frenzy after he had made it, and publick profession with grief; That after his reconciliation to the Pope, and subjection of himself and his Realms to the Church of Rome, he prospered in nothing, that all things went cross with him, and his Barons scorned, hated, rebelled against him, 196, 197. The Archbishops Protestation against his detestable Charter; his Nobles, Peoples, French Kings revillings, and reproachful speeches against him for it, 193, 194, to 301, 431, 638, 639. The Popes, Jesuites, foreign Historians mistakes of, inferences from it, 9, 231, 291, 1193. The Rent reserved on it, how insolently trampled on at first by Pandulph, 174. When, and how oft payed, upon what account, 306, to 315. His Patents, Letters, Commissions for the exiled Bishops return, damages, 171, 171, 175, to 181. His disclaim of power to outlaw Clerks, 178. His submissive reception of the Archbishop and exiled Bishops, Oaths to them at his absolution from the Excommunication, 178,

179. He commits the custody of the Realm to the Archbishop; his hatching new Rebellions, and inciting the Barons secretly against him, under pretext to defend their Liberties granted by King Henry 1. his Charter; They refuse to follow him into France; he returning to subdue them by force; the Archbishop threatened to Interdict all who should assist him, if he persisted, 181. He by Proclamation commanded the Laws of King H. 1. to be observed, the exactions of Sheriffs, Forresters, and all ill Laws to be redressed, 181, 183, 335. He enlargeth imprisoned Clerks, delivering them to the Legate, 183. Hereticks of his Agreement with the Pope; His sending Ambassadors to Admaricus King of Africa, to surrender his Kingdom to him, become his Tributary; and Mat. Paris his relation thereof, a mere malicious forgery to detame and render him odious, 183, 184, 185, 186. His little regard of the Popish Mass, 186. His sequestration of St. Albans, and removing their Officers, 187. His Messengers, Messages, Gifts to Pope Innocent, the most ambitious, proud, insatiable desirer of Money of all men, and prone to all wickednesses for Money; professing that he was and ever would be his Subject and Tributary (after his Embassy rejected by Martinus) upon condition, that he would confound and excommunicate upon the next occasion the Archbishops and Barons he had formerly cherished against him; who thereupon dispatched Nicholas his Legate into England; His safe conduct to reception of him; His and his Bishops conferences before the Legate concerning their Damages: and release of the Interdict; his Charter and Resignation of England and Ireland, and Homage for them sealed with a golden Seal, made to him, 187, to 191, 197. The Legates usurpations upon the King, Kingdom, Church, in conferring Benefices by Provisions, without the Kings or Patrons consent; suspending Bishops, Abbots, others from their Offices, Benefices, citing them to appear personally at Rome, and not allowing them one penny to defray their charges, 187, 189, 190, 191. The Archbishops vain appeal against his Legatine Power, proceedings as derogatory to his Archiepiscopal authority: His commendation of King John to the Pope, That he never had seen so humble and modest a King, and the great honour he thereupon found in the Popes eyes, 190. His compensation to the Bishops, his Letters to his Nobles, Subjects, and chief Cities, Towns in England, concerning the release of the Interdict, after 6 years, 3 months, and 14 dayes duration, 191, 191, 192. His grant of the Custody of Saint Edmunds Abby to the Legate, and Protection of it for his use, 191. His Writs to three of the Cinqueports, and Sheriff of Nottingham, for restoring the Rights of the Archbishop, and Lands of the Bishop of Lincoln to them, 191. The severe suspensions of such Clergy-men who adhered to, or received Benefices from him during his Excommunication and Interdict by the exiled, rebellious Prelates, restored with their Damages, 194, 195. The Barons demand, raise Forces against him for the confirmation of the Great Charter by the Archbishops encouragement, the Chief Adviser and Instrument therein, 195, 196. His confirmation thereof, and of the Charter of the Forrest, with new Clauses thrust into it by the Bishops for their advantage, by his own Oath, the Popes Bull, and appointing 15 Conservators of it, all sworn to ayde and assist them in the preservation thereof, and seize the Kings Castles, if he receded from the same, 196, 196, 197, 198, 199, 200. His new Charter to the Bishops and Clergy touching the freedom of Elections, saving to himself, his Regal authority, the custody of the Temporalities of vacant Bishopricks and Monasteries during the vacancy; the power of granting Licenses for free Elections upon petition, and right of confirming them after Elections made, or disallowing allowing them for just cause shewn, 337, 338, 936. His Charter of the Patronage, Royalties and Custody of the Bishoprick of Rochester to the Archbishops and his Successors; his ungrateful, treacherous requital of it, in surrendering the Castle of Rochester and Ammunition in it to the Barons against his trust, 339, 340, 344. His Complaints, Letters, Appeal to the Pope against the Barons, in extorting the Great Charter from him, by seizing the City of London, and armed force, while under the Popes protection, and crossed for the Holy war; with the Popes Oath thereupon by Saint Peter, not to suffer so great an injury to go unrevenge; his nulling the great Charter, and all Oaths, Obligations for its observation by his definitive Sentence, Bull, sent into England by advice with his Cardinals, reciting the grant of England, Ireland to St. Peter and his Successors, by King Johns Charter and golden Seal, under the annual rent of 1000 Marks, and Oath of Fealty, excommunicating all who should afterwards preste or maintain this Charter: reprehending them for taking Arms against him, contrary to their Oath of Fealty, and advising them to honour, obey, please him by submission to him, 340, 341, 342, 343. The Barons rise up more fiercely against him, notwithstanding the Popes monitory and minatory Letters to them, endeavouring to expell him the Realm; the Sentence of Excommunication denounced against them in general to be published every Lords day and Holy day throughout all England with Bells, Book and Candles, enjoining all Laymen to assist him with their Counsel, aide, and suspending all Bishops from their Office and Subjects obedience, who neglected to execute it, 343, 344, 345. The Archbishop delayed its publication, as gotten by mis-information, for which he is suspended from his Archbishoprick; cited to Rome, upon New Letters of Complaint by the King against him, there again suspended, and his Suffragans absolved from their obedience to him, for refusing to obey his Superiours, 345, 346, 347, 348. The Barons appeal against the Excommunication as null, because not particularly named in the Bull of it; whereupon they and some Londoners are particularly excommunicated, Interdicted by Name in two other Bulls; which many Ministers refused to publish in or near London; for which the whole City was Interdicted, 344, 345, 346, 348, to 361. Their appeal against these Excommunications, Interdicts, as not warranted by any power from God and Saint Peter; to the next General Council and to Christs Tribunal; celebrating Divine Offices notwithstanding, their revilings against the Pope, 360, 361, 362. His Licenses to elect the Archbishop of York, other Bishops, Abbots, Priors, in the presence onely of certain Commissioners nominated, who were to assent thereto, without whose concurrence he would not confirm them, 348. His Appeal, Parent, Prohibitions to the Chapter of York, not to elect their Dean, or any other Person whose Loyalty the King suspected, recommending to them his Chancellour Walter Grey; whom they rejecting, elected Simon Langton Archbishop, whose Election was null, because contrary to the Kings, Popes inhibition; his own promise to the Pope, dangerous to the Realm, that the Power of it and of the Church should be in two Brothers hands, and Grey thereupon made Archbishop, 349, 350. The King commands the Archbishops suspension to be published at St. Albans, and throughout England, raise two Armies against the Barons and rebellious Clergy, whom they plundered, abused in all places, 351. His licenses for electing, approving Abbots, Abbeffes, Deans, Bishop, recommendations of persons to be elected, and prohibitions, delays to elect others; refuseth to confirm persons elected against his will, 351, 353, to 357. His Letters concerning the union, and against the severing of Glouster Abbey from the Bishoprick of Bath and

Wells, 356, 357. The Popes Legates care to preserve his and his Heirs rights in France, from suffering prejudice by his new Canons there made in a Council, 357, 358. His Bull exempting his Free-Chappels from Excommunications, and all Episcopal Jurisdiction, 358, 359. The Barons, Londoners slight the Popes Excommunications, Interdicts, Bulls, Legates authority, reject King Johns call in, elect, crown Lewis for their King, swear Homage, Fealty to him as their Sovereign, who swore to ayde them, and restore their Lands, Liberties; The Popes Legate Naldo assembling some Bishops, Abbots, Clerks to him, excommunicated him with all his ayders and assistants (especially Simon Langton) with Bells and Candles, commanding all Bishops and others to publish it every Lords-day and Holy-day throughout all England: Simon Langton appeals against it as voyd, in the behalf of Lewis, 362. Lewis his Advocates Objections against King Johns Title to the Crown; his condemnation to dye by the Peers of France, for the murder of his Nephew Arthur: Pope Innocents answer to all their Objections, on King Johns behalf, and the lawfulness of his War against him; The Realm of England being his own, and he in actual possession of it, by reason of King Johns Charter, Oath of Fealty, and annual rent payd for it; who was now his Vassal, and therefore might not be warred upon without complaint first made to him his Superior Lord, to whom the King of England is subject, as his Vassal: with their replies thereto, 362, to 367. King Lewis his notable Letter against his Title to the Crown, to the Abbot of St. Augustines, to stay his Excommunication against him, who proceeds notwithstanding, Appendix 18, 19, 20. King Lewis his Oath with 16. more of his Barons, to banish all the English Barons who adhered to him against their native Sovereign King Johns, as Traytors, and extirpate all their kined, if ever the Crown of England were peaceably seized on him, 366. His sickness, poisoning by a Monk, pious death at Swinestead Abby, forgiving his enemies, causing his Son Henry to do the like, and swearing all present to do Fealty to him as next Heir to the Crown, 366. The Monks scandals raised of his Adultery, Tyranny, Cruelty, &c. during his life, and damnation after his death, 256, 284, 285, 286, 366, 367. His piety and good deeds, 366, 367. He possessed no Land peaceably at his death, whence he was stiled, John the exiled, 366, 752. stiled the Image of a King, and Popes Vassal, 1068. What encroachments Pope Innocent and his Legates made upon his Ecclesiastical and Temporal Prerogatives and Jurisdiction, 229, 230, 367, 368. Pope Innocent kept him so long excommunicated, interdicted, till he brought him and his Kingdoms under Tribute, encouraging his Barons by his Bulls, Letters, to rise up against him as an obdurate enemy of the Church, till he had enormously humbled and made him effeminately to enthrall both himself and his Realms to the Roman Church; but after, the Pope postponing the shame of the world and fear of God, exposed the same Barons (after the manner of Rome) whom he at first supported, excited, to death and miserable dishonour, that he might swallow up the fastest of them; and by the unfatiable avarice of the Romans, this Prince of Provinces was brought under Tribute: King Johns president made a pattern for Popes to disinherit other Emperors, Kings, Princes; and keep their Kingdoms, Territories, Persons so long under Interdicts and Excommunications, till they reduced them under the like Tribute and bondage, 414. His detestable Charter burnt in Pope Innocent 4. his Study at Lyons 31. years after; Its transcribe subscribed, sealed out of tear by the English Bishops at the Popes command, to the enormous prejudice of the King and Kingdom, 300, 663. The Pope, Pandolph and others, disdainfully stiled him his Vassal, in Letters, Discourses, 292, 295, 296, 297, 359, 362, 365.

See Index 10, & 12. throughout, & 14. King Henry 3. King John, Frederick; Exaltions, Excommunications, Interdicts, Non-residence, Pope, Provisions. The Nobles in Parliament feared their manifold Cavils, Treasons in the business of Apulia, since they poisoned their kinsmen and nearest relations very frequently, 931. They fled from those who manfully opposed, chased, pursued them, but chased, oppressed those who feared and fled from them, being encouraged by their effeminacy, 619, 620, 675, to 680. See Index 3 and Gregory 9. Index 10. Roman Court the fountain of all detestable enormities, instead of the fountain of Justice, 746. Hath a power and custome like Hell, to swallow up the rents of all men, and almost all things that either Bishops or Abbots possess; money is there most powerful above all other places, 737, 850. Its scandal in absolving the Dean and Chapter of Pauls from their Excommunication by the Popes command, and yet commanding them to be excommunicated again upon another reason by the Popes mandate, at their adversaries prosecuting, which made them ridiculous even to Laymen, 762. The English generally departed from the Church of Rome, (at least in their hearts, though not bodies) for their manifold vexations, injurious oppressions, contempts, injuries: that the Son of Iniquity might be revealed, their Father the Pope becoming an unkind step-father, and their Mother the Church of Rome a raging, persecuting step-mother, trampling it under feet, subjecting it to extreme conditions, causing the venomous hatred between the Church and people to encrease daily more and more, 763, 773, 778, 824. Is grosse corruption in granting licenses for Non-residency for money, upon any subtle pretence, and to shake off Christs yoke, 774. The discords and contentions of the English concerning Elections and Jurisdiction, added fuel, food, and annual revenues to the Popes and Court of Rome, 852. Their exorbitant Tyranny over English Abbots, Prelates, notwithstanding their Privileges, 926, 927, 928. Their domineering over the Laity and Clergy of England, and bestowing their vacant Benefices by Provisions at their pleasures to Aliens, excommunicating all Bishops, Abbots, Priors who durst to contradict them, through the Kings folly and slothfulness; the Nobles disdaining this their pride although late, rose up to provide a remedy, compelling most Aliens to fly the Realm, commanding all Religious persons who farmed the Roman Benefices, to pay their rents to the Barons Proctors at a time and place they assigned, under pain of burning their Houses, and inflicting on their persons what they provided the Romans should suffer, if they did otherwise; commanding the Bishops, that no man should intermeddle with their rents under the foresaid penalty. By which Provision England was free from the Roman exactions near three years, till Simon Montfort was slain in battle, 980. Their provisions of Benefices for Aliens, intollerable rapines, extortions, abuses for Apulia, the principal occasion of the Wars between the King and his Barons, begun, carried on, fomented by the Bishops instigations, to secure their purses and money from the Roman Harpies, 1020, 1021, 1022. Gualther Mares his memorable Verbes of the grosse bribery, injustice, corruption of the Pope, Court of Rome, and all sorts of Officers therein, whereof he was an eye-witnesse, 1069, 1070. Their Merchants, Usurers defiled all England with usury, and were worse then the Jews, who were supplanted by them, Appendix 26. Falling away from the Pope and Roman Church long since predicted, for their corruption, 401, 799, 800, 802. The Greek Church deserted, separated from, excommunicated them upon this account: See Greek Church, Romans: Their Senator. Citizens insurrection against Popes, chasing them from Rome, condemning their monasteries, Excommunications, as exempted from them by privilege, 415. Appendix 28. See Index 10. Gregory 9. Innocent 4. and 14. Frederick 2. The Pope agrees to conferre all vacant Benefices in England, especially of Religious persons, on Romans; writes for 300, Benefices to be provided for them in three Diocesses; the number, values of their Benefices, Provisions inquired after by Writ, amount to above 60000 Marks annual rent, besides other profits, being near three times more then the Kings ordinary revenue, 564, 572, 573, 777. The Roman Corn threshed out, spoiled by the English, who are excommunicated, imprisoned, severely punished for it, 434, to 439, 1000, to 1006. Russia, Popes pretended Title to it, 9. Russians subject to the Greek Church, 391.

Saracens, Croysadoes, Wars against them; they rejoyce at the Emperors and Popes discords, Wars, 517, 521, 573, 643, 649, 650, 651, 652, 679, 739, 754. Sardinia, Popes pretended Title to it, 9. The Emperor Frederick according to his Oath, seized on it as a part of the Empire, usurped by Popes, for which Pope Gregory 9. excommunicated him, 515, 516, 537, 538. Saxons, seized the Isle of Ely when they invaded England, 922. Scotland, Scots, their submission, Hostages to King John, and League with him, 160, 261. King H. 2. resumes Northumberland, Cumberland, and Westmerland from the Scots King, formerly granted to David by the Emperre in his name, he being not to be defrauded of so great a part of his Realm; upon restitution whereof he gave him the County of Huntingdon, belonging to him of ancient right, 324. The Popes pretended Title to it, 9, 291. Eustace de Vesli, accused of Treason, flies into it, 265. King Edw. 1. his Sovereign Dominion over it, and Pope Boniface his Letter concerning it, 328. A peace between the King of Scots and King H. 3. to whom he did Homage and swore Fealty in the Legates presence: He refused to admit the Popes Legate into Scotland, telling him, he needed him not: That no Legate ever entred it in his, or his Fathers, or any of his ancestors dayes; neither would he suffer any to enter while he was compt mentis: That if he entred, the Scots were rude persons, from whose violence he could not protect him; whereupon the Legate changed his covetous mind of entering Scotland, 486. Another Popes Legate desiring to enter Scotland, is met and opposed by the King, who told him, never Legate entred it before him; that they had no need of him; that Christianity there flourished, and the Church was prosperous: After many discourses, by mediation of the Nobles of both Realms, when the King was about to deny his entrance, he procured a writing, lest he should return confounded into England, That his presence coming thither should never be drawn into consequence in time to come: Whereupon he called the Bishops and others of Scotland unto good Cities beyond the Sea, collected the 11th part of their goods, and sent it to the Pope; departing secretly without the Kings license, and carrying the writing away with him, 506. The Scots Kings and Nobles Charter of Peace, League, Fealty, and submission to King H. 3. ratified by their Oaths, and submission to the Popes Jurisdiction and Censures if intinged,

They enter into a secret Oath and confederacy by the Archbishops instigation, to revive and maintain the good Lawes of King Edward, and Hen. 1. for which they would fight even to death in time convenient, 282, 283. He sends to the

Pope to whom he had resigned his Crown, Realm, for a Legate to excommunicate the Archbishop and Barons, 287. They meet in 2. Parliaments at London and Reading about the Bishops damages, to whom they adhered more then to the King, 287, 288. Some of them connived at King John sealing his Charter; to render him more odious, and take occasion from thence to oppose, contest with, rebell against him; 294, 295, 296. Crown Lands, Charters, alienated to them; resumed, revoked by our Kings, 324, 325. King John's Letters to them concerning the Popes release of the Interdict, craving their effectual ayde, advice, for their and his honor, and reformation of the State of the Realm, 322. Their meeting in Parliament thereupon with the Legate, Bishops, agreeing the summe of the Bishops damages, and for the release of the long continued Wars, Interdicts, 322, 323. Their demand of the confirmation of the Great Charter of Liberties and Lawes from King John by the Archbishops instigation; menaces to raise war against, and withdraw their allegiance from him if denied; providing of horse, arms to force him to it, they seize upon London, raise a great army, whereby through fear the King granted them the Great Charter of Liberties and of the Forest, with many new clauses inserted by the Bishops; consented to 25. conservators of them, whom all swore to obey, ratified them by his Great Seal, Oath; and more readily to incline the Prelates hearts to him, granted a New Charter to them for the freedom of elections; and ratified them by the Popes Bull, 335, to 341. His appeal, Letters to the Pope against these Charters, as extorted from him by the Barons by force, fear, without the Popes privacy, who had the Dominion of England, he and it being then under his protection, without whose knowledge he ought to do nothing; and he crossed for the Holy Land: The Popes Bull nulling these Charters; admonitions, Letters to the Barons to honor, please, obey him as their King, and to him to treat them favourably, grant all their just petitions; and checking them for taking arms against him being his vassals, 327, 340, 341, 342. He prohibits them or their Complices to exact these Charters, and nulls all obligations, cautions to observe them. His Bulls to the Barons to that purpose, 342, 343. They more fiercely rebell against him thereupon; the Archbishop traitorously surrenders Rochester castle to them; the Barons excommunicated for their rebellion; all enjoyed to assist the King against them, under pain of excommunication, 344, 345. The Archbishop suspended for refusing to publish their Excommunication, as gained by misinformation, and for favouring, siding with them, 345, 347, 348, 351. It is yet published every Lords-day against them by the Bishop of Winton, and Pandolphus the Popes Legate, 345. The Barons except against it as null, because general, and none of them named in it, 345, 346. They refuse, condemn King John's offer to grant all their petitions, which the Pope by the plenitude of his power should deem just to grant, hinder his voyage to the Holy Land by their insurrections, whereof he complained to the Pope, 346, 346. Upon which they and their complices are excommunicated, interdicted afresh by name at the Kings request, 359, 360. Their excommunication, interdict published through all England, except London, where the Barons, Citizens condemn them as Null, deny the Popes authority in temporal matters, revile, scorn him, appeal against, and officiate notwithstanding, 360, 361, 364. They renounce King John, send for, receive Lewis of France, Crown him King, swear Homage, fealty to him, 361, 362. Appendix 18, 19. His Oath to them, to restore good Lawes and their lost possessions; which he violated by detaining their Castles; whereupon many revolt from him to King John, and for Lewis and 26 of his Chief Barons taking a private Oath to exile all the English who adhered to them against King John as Traitors,

Requests the Popes Letters to command those Barons whose fidelity he suspected, faithfully to assist and adhere to him, and to compell those who were rebellious by Ecclesiastical censures, without any appeal to surrender his Castles; which they at first refusing, were forced thereto by the Archbishops and Bishops Excommunications, 389, 390, 391, 392. They advise the King to obey the Popes inhibition, not to invade France, 404. The custody of their Heirs, Castles, Land, belong to the King, 430. They expostulate with him for impoverishing the Kingdom, and following the advice of the Popes Legate, and Strangers when he demanded an ayde in Parliament, 485. In the Parliament of Merton, will not change the Law of England concerning Bastardy which they settled, 471, 472, 473. Summoned to a Parliament at York to make a peace with the Scots, 486. They all oppose the King, except Earl Richard, come with Horse and Arms to the Parliament at London, force the King by a Writing under the Legates and their Seals to submit to their Ordinances for redress of the Popes exactions, and other grievances, 498. They all joyn in a Letter to the Pope against his usurpations on the rights of Patronages, by provisions, in behalf of Sir Robert de Twinge, and the whole Realm; the Popes milde Answer thereto to prevent their revolt from the See of Rome, 506, 507, 508. Many of them cross themselves for the Holy war, swearing to go notwithstanding the Popes inhibition to them, 513, 514. Feasted by the King at Westminster upon Ours the Popes Legates departure, 570. They unanimously assemble, complain against and tell the King they would rather dye than suffer the Popes usurpations in suspending their Presentations to vacant Benefices, and his provisions of them to Aliens; theirs & the Kings Consultations, Letters to the Pope to redress their Grievances, 607, 608. They command all the Bringers in of Popes Bulls to cheat men of Money, to be arrested in all Ports, 617. They meet to prosecute their Appeals to a Council against the Popes grievances and exortions; their Message to Martin to depart the Realm within 15 dayes, else they would hew him to pieces; his Complaint thereof to the King and timorous flight out of England thereupon, 618, 619, 620. Vehemently incensed against the Pope for his detestable avarice, treachery in exempting David Prince of Wales from the Kings Alliance, being his Vassal, against his Charter and Oath of Subjection to him, for the Annual rent of 500 Marks; assist him with their Arms to avenge it, by invading Wales with fire and sword, 622, 623. Some of them sent as Ambassadors from the King and Kingdom to the General Council at Lyons, to complain of King Johns Charter, and unsupportable Tribute, as extorted against his Noble Wills who never did, nor would ever consent thereto, 638, 639, 644, 645. Their memorable Epistle to the Pope against it, and Papal provisions of Benefices to Aliens who had no care of the Peoples Souls, but were most ravening Wolves devouring their Flocks, who knew not their Sheep, nor their Sheep them, kept no Hospitality, gave no Almes as they ought, reaping only the fruits of their Livings, which they transported beyond Sea to the Realms unpoverishing, depriving the well-deserving English of their Benefices, which might and would discharge their Pastoral duties, receiving above 60000 Marks, annual Revenues out of England; complaining of Martins rapines and other oppressions, enjoying, exercising greater powers by his Authority than ever any former Legate; desiring him like a tender Father to redress those intollerable oppressions of his Children; to preserve the Rights of the Kings Crown, who was a Catholick and pious Prince; who though willing to obey, and increase the honour and profit of the Church of Rome like an obedient Son, yet they who did bear the burden, heat of the day in his Affairs, and who together with the King diligently intended the preservation of the Realm, could no longer patiently tolerate the said oppressions and intollerable grievances, detestable both to God and man, hoping and believing the Pope would out of his piety apply such speedy and timely remedy, that he might deserve to receive special thanks from all the Nobles, and whole Realm of England, as from his most dear Sonnes in Christ, 645, 646, 547. To which the Pope giving no satisfactory answer, the Ambassadors departed from the Council in discontent, swearing terribly, they would never pay nor suffer to be paid that detestable Tribute to the Roman avarice; nor the Rents of Churches (especially such whereof the Nobles of the Realm were Patrons) to be extorted from them: which the Pope patiently connived at and dissembled till a fiercer storm of revenge. The Popes rancour against the King, Nobles, Kingdom for this their Complaiat, Letter, and opposition against his Rapines; his menacing Speeches, further aggravation of his hand and oppositions against them, 663, 664. They meet in a general Parliament at London to oppose, redress the incessant grievances of the Court of Rome, which vexed them to the Soul, against Promises and Priviledges granted them, draw up their Grievances into several Articles, as against the ancient Custom, Liberty of the King, Kingdom, the appeal and contradiction of their Prelators in the General Council at Lyons: send Messengers, with memorable Letters in their own names, and of all the Nobles and Commonalty of England against these Grievances to the Pope, speedily to redress them, which they might could nor would any longer endure; threatening if they were not redressed by their Messengers return they would rectifie them themselves; and that he should know for certain, such perils would befall the Church of Rome and the King, as could not easily be prevented, 665, to 661. The King by their advice and provision prohibits all Tallages and Contributions to the Pope by his Writs, impudently demanded; collected, notwithstanding their Letters and opposition against them, which the Barons manfully oppose, but the Papal Prelates and King at last, by their advice and menaces to Interdict the Realm, cowardly submitted to, 672, 673, 674, 675, 676, 677, 678. Their new Letter to the Pope, Cardinals, and oppositions in Parliament against the Popes new Exactions; whereat the Court at Rome grinded their teeth for anger, yet boldly proceeded in their obstinate intollerable rapines, 766, to 781. Summoned to a Parliament at London to oppose the unsupportable Contribution the Prelates had imposed on the Clergy in a General Council, who thereupon absented themselves from the Parliament, 890. Summoned to a new Parliament at Oxford, to consist of the state of the Realm, and prevent the Popes manifold exortions which impoverished and exhausted all the Treasure out of the Realm; to which the Bishop, being being specially called, most unworthily submitted to pay 11000 Marks to the Pope, besides the exempt Monasteries left to his rapine, to the Barons great disgust 696. Their complaint against the Bishop of Lincoln and his Officers excommunications, and vexatious citing people to take Oaths against their wills in their Visitations and Courts, in cases of defamations, and matters that concerned not Matrimony or Testament, against the Laws and Customs of the Realm, to the prejudice of the peoples fames, souls, 706. All summoned to St. Edmunds Feast at Westminster, and solemn procession, adoration of the pretended viol of Christs blood, which the King then carried from St. Pauls Church to Westminster, to be there reserved, adored, 717, 718. Oppose in Parliament the Popes grant of First-fruits of all vacant Benefices to Archbishop Boniface, out of Laymens Benefices; upon which the King issued out a Prohibition against their Collection, 718, 719. They deny the King an ayde in Parliament, sharply reprehended him for demanding it, for favouring Aliens, spending the wealth of the Realm profusely on them, for violating the Churches Liberties and Great Charter, against his Oath, for having neither a Chancellor, Treasurer, nor Chief Justice elected by the Common council of the whole Realm: who promised to reform all things with great, but feigned humility; they believe him not, because of his frequent breach of such promises, till they saw a real Reformation; thereupon the Parliament adjourns, and at last broke up in discontent by the Kings sharp answer to, and denying of their Demands, 721, 722. The King displeased with his Counsellors for losing their hearts, who put him to hard unkingly shifts to begg and extort Moneys, 722, 723, 724. prohibited by the Pope at the Kings request to go to the Holy Land, when prepared, and by the Kings Writs not permitted to go out of the Realm against his will, as they resolved, 731. They advise the King to seise the Barony of the Bishop of Worcester for excommunicating the Sheriff thereof against his prohibition, in contempt of his Crown and Dignity, 758. Summoned to a Parliament to grant the King an Ayde of Money and Men for the Holy Land, which they refuse; whispering secretly, that the King was no Soldier, never versed in war; that they could nor expect he could vanquish the Saracens, who took the Martial King of France Prisoner; that he rashly undertook to gain others Lands beyond Sea by power, who was unable to keep his own: reprehending him with great indignation, as born onely to cheat his Subjects of money and empty their purses, and return home in discontent: The King conceiving these speeches and actions proceeded from a malignant spirit and hatred against him, resolved to send for a Legate to compell the Bishops to a Contribution, who then durst not say him nay, 770, 773, 774, 775, 776. In another Parliament after a sharp reproof of the King for violating the Great Charter, and liberties of the Church, they granted him an Ayde, upon condition to ratifie them in all the Articles thereof bona fide without any evasions, which he and his Father had frequently violated against their Oaths, and cause a general Excommunication to be denounced against all Infringers thereof in Westminster Hall, which he did, 795, 796, 910, 911, 797. They deny the King an Ayde for Apulia and Sicily, because undertaken without their counsil and consent, by the whisperings of the Pope and his Italians, and because not all summoned and present according to Magna Charta, 822. They compassioned neither the Church nor Prelates, 821. Compelled Bishops, Clergy-men, and Religious Persons to make suit at their Courts, 895, 900. They animated the cowardly divied Bishops in their Convocation at London, to give nothing out of their Baronies to the King or Popes Legate, 841. The King and Nobles often solicited in vain by the Bishops to redress Grievances against their pretended privileges; they thereupon resolved to redress them themselves; and by their own new exorbitant Constitutions, subjected the King, his Judges, Officers, Barons to new Excommunications, Interdicts, Censures for opposing their pretended Churches privileges, 897, to 912. Against which the King by their advice appealed in his own and Kingdoms behalf, 983, 990, 991. Their proceedings and Ordinances in the Parliaments at Oxford & London against the intolerable rapines, insolencies of the Popes Agents, Poishevines, and other Foreigners whom they banished England, to preserve the Kingdom from utter desolation by the subtilties of the Church of Rome and King, 930. They animated the cowardly Prelates, reprehend the King for his folly, and uncircumspection in embracing the Popes proffers of Apulia to him, without their counsil or advice, which involved him in Infinite Debts, and not refusing it as his Brother Richard did: deny to grant him any Ayde towards it, or Debts contracted for it, telling him they neither could nor would endure such Extortions; whose President all the Abbots but one followed, 931, 932, 933. They sharply reprehend the King for breach of the Great Charter against his Oath, Excommunications denounced against the Infringers, promoting all manner of Alien, contemning, opposing his English Nobles, Subjects, exhausting the Kingdoms Treasure, reducing him self to extrem poverty, contempt; whereupon he did humbly acknowledge his errors, and frequent bewitching by ill counsel, promised by solemn Oath on the High Altar and St. Edwards Coffin to amend all his former errors fully and plainly; which they not crediting, by reason of former violations of this kind, adjourned the Parliament to a further day to Oxford, provide Horse and Arms for their own defence against the Poishevins treacheries; exact the confirmation of the Great Charter, with other particulars for the Kingdoms peace, ease, wealth, swore solemnly to each other to prosecute, and not give over their resolution for the loss of Money or Lands, nor yet for the life of them and theirs, caused the King and Prince Edward to swear to obey, pursue their counsel in all things; swearing they would not leave one foot of Land in England to such Nobles who refused to take the like Oath, 935, 936. They pursue the Poishevins from Oxford to Winton, force them to fly, and banish them out of England, seise their Monies in all places where found, and forced Herles the Popes Nuncio to fly secretly out of England for fear till quieter times, 937, 938, 939. They forced the King to swear involably to observe their provisions made at Oxford, who privately procured an absolution from them, the Pope nulling his Oath and their provisions, 948. They send a notable Letter to the Pope concerning the business of Apulia, as undertaken without their advice, without whom the King ought not to undertake it, complaining against the Bishop of Winchester, his Brothers and Officers opposing of their Ordinances for the Kingdoms settlement, the intolerable rapines, oppressions of his Officials; his refusal to stand to a legal Tryal, who was so detestable to the Commonalty of England, that they would by no means permit his return into England, though the King and Nobles desired it; and that it was the fixed resolution of all and every of them, that they would never suffer this Author of Schism, discord and scandal to live among them: representing other his tyrannical and detestable facts to the Pope, together with their Letter by four eloquent Knights they sent with it, lest he should should corrupt the Pope and Cardinals with money to consecrate him Bishop; which Messengers were to return with all expedition without any disputation or discourse, 948, to 952: which the King seconded with his Letters and Proctor 966, 967. They compelled all Foreigners to fly the Realm, commanded all the Farmers of the Roman Churches not to pay their rents to them, but to those they appointed to receive them, under pain of firing their Houses, and such personal penalties as they intended to inflict on the Romans; commanding the Bishops under the like penalty, not to permit any Romans to meddle with their Rents, whereby England continued three years free from their Exactions, 980. They endeavoured to have their Constitutions at Oxford ratified at Rome, opposing the Kings nulling of them, who yet prevented them, 986, 987, 988. Their Articles of Agreement concerning the Archbishops return into England upon certain conditions, 997, 998. See Ind. 2. 3. Boniface. Their Provisions touching the spoils and plunders of Ecclesiastical Persons, Goods, during the Troubles, Inquisitions after them, and for their safe custody, 999, to 1006. The Kings Letters to the Bishop of London and other Bishops, to excommunicate some Barons for breaking their Oaths and Agreement with him, seizing his Castles, wasting his Lands in an hostile manner, and drawing Prince Edward to rebel against him, 1013, 1014. The King sends for a Legate into England to assist him and excommunicate the Bishops, Barons in arms against him; who not daring to enter into England, sends for some Bishops into France; and there Excommunicates and Interdicts them. They by advice of some Bishops and their Officials appeal against it to the Pope himself, to better times, and a General Council, also to the Supreme Judge for certain causes and convenient reasons; afterwards ratified by the Bishops and Clergy in a Council at Reading; the Inhabitants of Devon star the Interdict which they seized on, and cast it into the Sea, 1014, 1015, 1016, 1018. Roger Abbot of Canterbury published the Popes Bull of Excommunication against them there, nulling their provisions and League at Oxford; absolving the King and all others from their Oath to observe them, from which the Bishop of Worcester and other Clerks adhering to the Barons asserted and preached publicly, the Pope had no power nor authority to absolve them, being made and sworn to by common consent, 1015, 1016. October the Popes Legate soon after coming into England in his red Cardinals Robes, excommunicates all the Bishops, Clergy adhering to Simon Montfort against the King, in a Council at Northampton, suspended them from their Office and Benefices; and then excommunicated all the Barons and others adhering to him; encouraged in their Rebellion by the Bishops and Clergy, 1018, 1019. Their overthrow at the battle of Evesham; the award and accord made between the King and them in the Parliament at Kenilworth, 1019. Matthew Westminster recapitulation and censure of their provisions of Oxford, proceedings, war, arms against the King and Bishops encouragement of them, 1010, 1011, 1012. The disinherited Barons lurk in the Isle of Ely; their high and sharp answer to the Legates Proposals sent to them, which much incensed him and the King against them, 1012, 1013. He summoned all the Archbishops, Bishops, Barons and others that hold by Knight service, to assemble with Horse and Arms to subdue them; The Bishops and Abbots assembled in Parliament refuse to ayde him with their Armes, protesting they held their Baronies only in Francalmoign, not by Knight-service; that they were obliged to assist him only with their Spiritual armes prayers, tears, not with the material Sword; and were bound by their Benefices to maintain peace, not war, &c. 1014, 1015. The Earl of Gloucester refuseth to send Armes to assist against them, yet sends Letters Patents under his hand, he would never bear Arms against the King or Prince Edward, to avoid the Note or Treason. He besieged the Legate in the Tower, prohibits any Victuals to be carried to him; Those in the Isle of Ely falling out plunder'd all the Kings Jewels at Westminster, so distressed him for want of Money, that he pawned his Jewels, the precious Stones, & golden Images in Westminster Abby to Merchants to raise a little Money for the present, which he afterwards redeemed, restored; The Legate excommunicated all the disturbers of the kingdoms peace, and Interdicted all the Churches in and near London, 1015, 1016. The Popes Bull setting forth the Kings sad oppressions, persecutions by his Barons wars, the great losse he sustained, debts he incurred, and miserie he and the Realm sustained thereby exhorting the Archbishops and Bishops to a liberal supply and payment of 7. years Disme which he granted to him, that he might the better defend the Church, Realm, maintain their Liberties, Rights, and promote Gods service with greater zeal, 1017, 1018. They discharge King Henry from his Oath and Voyage to the Holy Land for the kingdoms safety, which might be endangered by his and Prince Edwards absence out of it at one time, 1049, 1050. The Charter of King Johas detestable resignation of his Crown, Realms of England and Ireland to the Pope, under an annual rent of 1000 Marks; and of his Homage, Fealty for them, 273, 274, 288, 289, 290, 341. The differences between that in Matthew Paris, and that in the Charter Roll, 289, 290, 305, 306. But one only, sealed with a golden seal, not two successive ones, 290, 291. Burnt in the Popes Closet at Lyon 31. years after, 200, 210. The Transcript of it sent thereupon to all the English Bishops to ratifie with their seals, which they most trayterously set to it, after the Kings Nobles Kingdoms protestation against it in the Council of Lyon, 300, 301, 642, 643, 644, 645, 663. The menaces, force, fraud, antichristian practices by which it was procured, 253, to 306, 316, to 329, 414, 415, 1068. The false suggestions, recitals in it, 296, 297, 303, 304, 307. The many nullities of it in Law, Conscience, 274, 275, 300, 301, to 306, 316, to 329, 414, 415, 638, 639, 644, to 648. The Archbishops solemn appeal at the High Altar of Pauls against it, in behalf of the whole Realm, 274, 294, 299, 300, 431, 638, 639, 1068. The Lords, Barons, Justices, common peoples general declamations, protestations against it and him, as most vile, detestable, 295, 296. His own detestation of, grief for, indignation against it, 291, 295, 296, 297. Four Parliaments unanimous protestations against it, as null, voyd, because extorted by force, against his Oath, made without the Barons consent, falsely thrust into it, 294, 296, 299, 300, 301, 302, 618, 639, 644, to 648, 1066. The French Kings, Peers, Nobles protestation against it as null, 297, 298, 299. Appendix 19. The Emperor Frederick his declamation against it, as null and of dangerous precedent to all Christian Emperors, Kings, whom Popes endeavoured to trample under feet, and make Tributaries by that ill president, 414, 415, 547, 551, 613. The Kings, Parliaments, Kingdoms appeal and protestation against it in the General Council at Lyon, by their Embassadors, Proctors: the Popes present silence, but subsequent rancor against them for it, 299, 300, 638, 639, 640, 641, 644, 645, 663, 664, 666, 1066. The judgement of our own Monkish Historians; Popish Writers, and resolutions of Foreign Historians, Statesmen, Lawyers asserting its nullity, 291, 292, 293, 299, 302, 303, 752, 1066. Voyd by Popes own principles and resolutions in like cases, 327, 328, 340, 341, 342, 343, 344, 345. Released by the Popes own command, with the Homage and Fealty, the next Parliament after, 296. Some Foreign Historians mistakes concerning it, 292, 293. Popes, Papists vain boasts of the Popes Sovereign Dominion, Right, Title to the Realms of England and Ireland by it, and insultations over our Kings as their Tributaries, Vassals, slaves, 9, 291, 292, 293, 301, 302, 325, 329, 340, to 346, 363, 365, 370, 414, 504, 505, 547, 800. When, how oft, long this annual Rent granted by it, was paid by our Kings; upon what occasions, and when it ceased, 274, 292, 293, 307, to 315, 1054, 1055. King Johas though ever victorious, successfull before it, protested he never prospered after it; and that his Barons rose up against, rejected him, and crowned Lewis King, principally for this his unworthy Charter, which rendered him not only despicable, but detestable to them, others, and himself, 295, 296, 297, 298, 340, to 368.

Charter of Liberties and Laws by King Henry 1. 282, 283, 335. The Great Charter of Liberties and the Forest by King Johas, how procured from him by the Barons, sworn to, confirmed by his Seal, Oath, the Oaths of the Barons, the Popes Bull, 25 Conservators thereof, to whom all others were sworn, 333, 334, 335, 340, 796. Appealed against by King Johas to the Pope, as extorted by force; who absolves him from it by his Bulls for ever, 327, 328, 340, to 346. What new clauses were inserted therein by the Bishops for their advantage, 336, 367, 368. The Barons take up Armes against him after its nulling, for which they were excommunicated, 345, to 348. Often sworn to, confirmed, redeemed, yet violated by K. Henry 3. for which he was taxed in Parliaments, and denied Aydes, till he re-confirmed it with New Oaths, Provisions, Excommunications, for its better inviolable observation for the future; Writs, Proclamations for its observance to Sheriffs, 4, 371, 387, 388, 771, 775, 776, 796, 797, 822, 841, 895, 896, 897, 899, 900, 901, 909, 910, 911, 921, 928, 929, 930, 936, 989. See Barons. The Popes Confirmation of it, of other Charters, and submission to his Jurisdiction, Censures if violated, 336, 337, 450, to 455, 620, 621.

Christ, Head of the Church, not the Pope, 519. Our only Advocate, Mediator, Redeemer, Refuge, Saviour, way, light, life, help, 29, 30, 41, 42, 43. The Church and every true Christian more really the natural body, flesh, bones of Christ, and Christ himself by Scripture, Reason, Fathers resolutions, then the consecrated Hostia, 79. The consecrated Elements in the Eucharist not Transubstantiated into his very natural body and blood, by For this is my body, &c. pronounced over them, 68, to 80. See Transubstantiation. All his power in Heaven and Earth not delegated to St. Peter or the Roman Popes at his ascension, as Papists assert, 10, 11, 12. Had no Vicar-general whiles corporally present on Earth but in one place at once; transferred not his Kingly or Priestly Office to St. Peter or his Successors at Rome, as his Successor or Viceroy when he ascended, 11, 12, 13. Gave all his Apostles the self-same power, gifts, which were only Ministerial, not Monarchical, ibid. Pictured, prayed to by Romans as yet a little Infant in his Mothers lap; or as still hanging crucified on his Croſſe; or not yet risen, ascended into Heaven, 13, 14. His Sepulchre at Venice, as now lying there interred, 15. In what strange ignominious unhumane manner they assert him yet corporally present on earth in every consecrate Host, Chalice,

His three actual descensions from Heaven to Earth since his ascention, at the Death, Funeral; Assumption of the Virgin Mary, 30, to 37, 68. To other Popish Saints, and Catharine of Senis, with whom he daily conversed, imprinted his wounds on, and exchanged hearts with her; gave her the Hostia with his own hands, 69, 70. His frequent corporal apparitions in their Hostias; in form of a little Infant, Lamb, raw flesh, blood, asserted in Popish Legends to evidence the truth of their Transubstantiation; though meer Fables, Diabolical delusions, or Priests impious frauds, 71, to 76. Of blood miraculously issuing out of his Images, Crucifixes broken, pierced, 14. Reliques of his blood shewed, adored in several places, 14, 711, to 780. All his Sovereignty, Kingly power, Offices of Advocate, Mediator, Intercessor, Redeemer, Saviour of Adam, Eve, mankind, with divine worship, attributed, transferred by Romanists to the Virgin Mary, 16, to 64. Made wholly subject, obedient, subservient to her motherly commands, will in all things in Heaven, 20, to 24, 27, 28, 39, 40, 46, 53, 55. Papists appeals from his Justice, anger, to her mercy, 16, 24, 25, 53. Papists easier ascend into Heaven by Maries white, then his red Ladder, 31, 36, 37, 48, 49. See Countess.

Christ, a counterfeit one put to death, 383.

Church; Kings Oath, duty, care, right to protect the Churches in their Realms, their Rights, Liberties, reform all corruptions in them, their Prelates, Members; to make Laws, Canons concerning all Church-affairs, erect Churches for Gods worship, and build, divide, unite Churches, &c. as supreme Patrons, Governors of them, 2, 3, 4, 5, 227, 228, 230, 231, 233, 304, 305, 516, 522, 575, 596, 607, 637, 688, 721, 748, 890, 896, 899, 968, 995, to 1007, 1011, 1012, 1016, 1017, 1027, 1028, 1033. Mary the Virg'in, pourtrayed by the Church of Rome and Papists as the Emperesse, Queen, Lady of Heaven and Earth, sitting on a Royal Throne in Majesty with a Crown, and rayes of glory on, about her head, and a Scepter in her hand; but Christ her Son as a little babe yet lying in her bosome, arms, or at her feet, and so represented to them when they invoke her and him, 14, 15, 16. The Legend of her tearing her marble Image, for a contempt offered to her Sons, 14. Her Image drawn by St. Luke carried in procession, chased away the Plague, 41. Her several Images, Churches reformed to in several places, 51. Their assertions, Devotions, averring her Sovereign Universal Monarchy and fulcresse of power over the Church Militant and Triumphant, the whole world, Heaven, Earth, Hell, Purgatory, and all

Angels, Saints, Creatures in them, as their Emperesse, Lady, Queen both by inheritance, emption, redemption, election, and as Spouse, Mother of the King eternal; totally subverting St. Peters & Popes pretended Monarchy, 16, to 29, 32, 33, 35, 37, to 40, 43, 44, 47, 49, &c. That the Crown of the Church Militant and Triumphant, plenitude of power, and power of the Keyes, is in her by right of Empire, in the Pope, Bishops only by way of delegation, execution, 18, 19. Christ by his Testament neither did nor could bequeath the Monarchy of the Universe from her; and had he done it to her prejudice, the might reverse his will, 29. Their authorized Prayers to her, 70 command, compell her Son, now in Heaven, by her Motherly right and power over him, 22, 23, 41. That Christ as her Son, yea God himself is subject to her, adores, reverence her, obey her will in all things; ever grant, never oppose, deny any thing that she requests for sinners, or her worshippers, servants, 20, to 30, 46, 47, 48. That Christ her Son descended thrice personally from Heaven after his ascension, with the whole Court of Heaven, to honour her at her Death, Funeral, Assumption into Heaven: That he hath advanced her soul and body to his own right hand, and placed her on the very Throne of the Trinity, where she sits, reigns over all Creatures, blessed for ever, in the very glory of Christ himself, not only as an Emperesse, Queen, Lady, but as Gods companion, associate; a Goddesse, clothed with the Deity in her Son; and as a Goddesse of Goddeses, to whom all knees in heaven, earth, and under the earth do bow, 16, to 25, 28, 38, 39, 40, 42, 43, 56. The Church, Popes of Rome professedly adore, worship, honour her with divine adoration, by dedicating Altars, Aves, Ave Mary Bells, Breviaries, Candles, Cathedrals, Chappels; Parish Churches, Colledges, Creeds, Crowns, Festivals, Fraternities, Hours of Prayer, Hymnes, Letanies, Mariales, Masses, Monasteries, Oblations, Offices, Paten Nosters, Pilgrimages, Postils, Primers, Processions, Pfalters, Religious Orders of Monks, Nuns, Sermons, Temples, Te Deums to her, for her publick, private adoration, invocation in all places; by swearing, vowing by her; holding Councils, Excommunicating, Interdicting, and passing all Ecclesiastical Censures, Acts in her name, and by her authority; adoring, invoking, honouring her more then God himself, or Christ her Son; and canonizing those for Saints who most advance her adoration in their Church, 16, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, to 48, 50, to 64. They attribute, transfer all Christs attributes, Offices, Titles to her, in their authorized publick, private Books of Devotion, Postils, Sermons, Mariales; wherein they pray unto, and blasphemously stile her, Our Advocate; Advocate of all Mankind, of Eve, of all in misery, of all penitent sinners; Our best, most faithfull, eloquent, gracious, powerfull, prevalent, sollicitous Advocate, on whom we may most firmly relye; she alwayes obtaining what she requests on our behalf, without suffering the least repulse; who is sooner heard then Christ himself; and by her most powerfull rhetoricke hath made the handwriting of our damnation to fall out of Gods hand, 26, 27, 30, to 40, 43, to 49, 54, 55, 56. saved: Barren Ladies Plaster, and Fax Aets and Monuments, Vol. 3. p. 276: which should have come in p. 53. L. 44. Their new Te Deum & Marian Laudamus, sung to her honour, instead of the old Te Deum, 53, 54. Their Religious Orders Vows in her name, 50. Their special blasphemous Litanies said to her every Saturday in the year, and on other solemn annual Festivals dedicated to her publick worship, 51, 54. Their Whores refrain Whoredom on Saturdayes, out of reverence to her; many Romanists fear, reverence her more then Christ himself, 49, 51. She is proposed in many of their Prayers, Books, Dedications, Prayes before Christ her Son, 53. They say Pater Nosters as well as Ave Marias to her, before her Altars, Images, 52. They pray to her to convert the Realm of England and all in it from the cruelty of Hereticks, 54. They attribute Christs Regal, Prophetical, Sacerdotal Offices to her, and quite undermine them, 13, &c. 29, &c. 55, 56, 62. She had the self-same wounds imprinted on her soul, as Christ had on his body, to make her a Mediator for Mankinds redemption, and Christs comfort therein, 42. St. Francis, St. Dominick, and their Orders her special Chaplains, taken into her special protection to reconcile the World to her Son, 50. They assert, it is her Sons desire she should be revered, honoured more then himself, 28. That she being the Lady of all Creatures, all the Angels, Earth, and as many Creatures serve, worship her, as serve and worship the Trinity; and that all of them reverence, bow the knee to her, as they do to Christ, 23, 24, 27, 53, 54. That she hath the chief care of all the Churches as their Mother; the plenitude of all Ecclesiastical power, Orders, of binding, loosing, perpetually residing in her, by her ordinary inherent Imperial Regal authority, in greater perfection then any Pope, Bishops, Priests, who have but a delegated power and exercise of the Keyes, and that confined, 18, 19. That she had most exquisite knowledge in all Arts, Sciences, Laws, Canons, the sacred Scriptures, Contemplative and School Divinity, as far as humane nature was capable, 17, 18, 19. The gift of Miracles, healing, discerning of Spirits, Ibid. That during Christs three dayes lying in the grave, the Christian Faith, Church resided only in her, 16, 17. Not assumed into Heaven with Christ her Son, lest the Angels and Court of Heaven should doubt which to meet first, the Mother or the Son, 20. The title of Roman Catholicks, more Marians then Christians; and more her Subjects, Servants then Christs, 33, 51, to 56, 62. Her first, greatest Champions in England, the greatest oppugners of our Kings Prerogatives, 63. Freer Tetel his impious scurrilous vaunt of the Popes pardons; If a man had Loven with and gotten the Virgin Mary with Child, yet the Popes pardon was able to absolve him from that offence, 51. Her sole merits, Intercession exceed all Angels, Saints conjoynd, who are all silent, and prevail not if she hold her peace, 47, 48. Cassander, Ludovicus Voss, Esperencius, their censures of the ill consequences of these Romish Doctrines, Practices: Their confessions, that Papists adore Mary and other Saints in the self-same manner as they do God; and deem him lesse placable and exorable then they; relying more on their merits, intercession then on Christs, 49, 52, 54, 55. She restored a Parrot out of an Hawks talons, for crying Ave Mary, 41. Above 30 times more Churches, Chappels, Monasteries dedicated to her, then to Christ, 295. Monasteries, Hospitals dedicated to her in England and Wales, besides Parish Churches; Speeds Catalogue, p. 1059, to 1100. # Of Scripture Texts abused, perverted, alleged, altered by Popes, &c.

INDEX 15. Of Scripture Texts abused, perverted, alleged, altered by Popes, Pontificians, and the Church of Rome, to justify their Errors, Corruptions, and St. Peters, Popes Universal Monarchy, Vicarship; and those which most evidently refute them.

Scripture Texts professedly altered, corrupted for their Adoration, Exaltation, Invocation of the Virgin Mary, as breaker of the Serpents head, their Advocate, Knapfess, Lady, Queen of Heaven, Mediator, Seigneur; Gen. 3. 15. It, changed into She, p. 16, 18, 34. Psal. 3. 1. Pf. 4. 1. Pf. 5. 1. Pf. 6. 1. Pf. 7. 1. Pf. 9. 1. Pf. 11. 1. Pf. 13. 1. Pf. 16. 1. Pf. 18. 1. Pf. 20. 1. Pf. 25. 1. Pf. 26. 1. Pf. 27. 1. Pf. 28. 1. Pf. 11. Pf. 36. Pf. 91. Pf. 125. 1. & Mat. 11. 28. God, Lord, are altered into the Mother of God; by Bonaventura, Bernardinus de Bussi, and others, by Popes approbation, p. 23, 29, 35, 36, 40, 50. Moreover the Second Commandment, Exod. 20. 4, 5, 6. Deut. 5. 8, 9, 10. is quite obliterated out of all their Breviaries, Missals, Hours, Offices, Psalters, Letanies, Rosaries, Primers of our Lady, and most of their late Catechisms, as inconsistent with their Images, and adorations of them: All which are against these direct Texts; Deut. 4. 2. c. 12. 32. Josh. 1. 7. Prov. 30. 6. Rom. 1. 25, 26. 1 Pet. 3. 16. Rev. 22. 18. p. 50, 56. They abuse, wrest these particular sacred Texts, applying them to the Virgin Mary, her Kingdom, Subjects; Gen. 2. 28. c. 16. 9, 13. c. 18. 3. c. 27. 29. c. 29. 20. p. 28, 29, 42, 45. Deut. 33. 3. Judg. 9. 8, 10. 1 Chron. 29. 11. 2 Chron. 12. 8. Ezech. 2. 17. c. 5. 2, 3. Job 12. 10. Psal. 36. 9. Pf. 45. 9. Pf. 48. 9. Pf. 74. 12. Pf. 89. 21. Pf. 95. 4. Pf. 103. 19. Pf. 116. 16. Pf. 145. 16. 31, 37, 38, 45, 47. Besides other Apocrypha Texts, They insist on the very words of the Idolatrous Jews, Jer. 4. 17, 18, 19. to justify their adoration of the Virgin Mary as the Queen of Heaven, as they did the Moon, p. 18. Texts they impudently or blasphemously alledge, wrest, misapply to prove St. Peters and Popes Universal Monarchy, Supremacy over Kings, Kingdoms, &c. Gen. 1. 16. Psal. 2. 8. Pf. 45. 16. Pf. 72. 8. Pf. 89. 27, 37, 38. Isa. 9. 6, 7. Dan. 2. 44. c. 4. 3, 34. c. 6. 26. c. 7. 14, 27. Mic. 4. 7. Mat. 16. 14, 18, 19. c. 26. 18, 19, 20. Lu. 1. 31. John 21. 15, 16, 17. Acts 10. 12, 13. Phil. 2. 9, 10, 11. p. 9, 10, 11, 40, 53, 58, 59, 568, 656, 658. Texts produced by them to prove the consecrated Bread and Wine Transubstantiated into the very Body and Blood of Christ, Mat. 26. 26, 27, 28. John 5. 53, 54, 55, 56. p. 15, 75, 77, 79, 80. Several Scripture Texts, (over-tedious to recapitulate) directly refusing Prayers to Angels, Saints, the Virgin Mary, or to any but God alone, p. 56, 57, 60. Saints seeing of Prayers in the New Popish Looking-glass of the Trinity, p. 59, 58. The pretended Sovereign Monarchy and Vicarship of St. Peter and Popes, p. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13. The Advocateship, Mediators, &c. of the Virgin Mary; proving Christ alone to be our only Advocate, Intercessor, Mediator, Redeemer, Reconciler, Ayde, Hope, Help, Deliverer, Saviour, Light, Salvation, High Priest, p. 29, 36, 41, 42. Texts proving that Christ alone was born without original, and lived without actual sin, not the Virgin Mary, p. 46. That Vows are to be made to God alone, p. 51. That all Miracles are ever visible to all mens eyes, and seldom wrought, by some extraordinary persons, not every Priest; and that God hath made our senses judges of the truth of Christs body, incarnation, resurrection, ascension, as well as Miracles, p. 75, 76. That the Verbe Is, in This Is my body, is predicated only significative, figuratively, sacramentally, not idemically and transubstantiative; p. 77, 78, 79.

To the Reader.

Kind Reader,

THE Reasons why I have enlarged these Tables in sundry particulars, beyond the ordinary brevity of Tables, with very great pains, were three; 1. That those of our English Nation who understand not the Latine Tongue, may read the substance of this Tome in these English Tables, and so reap benefit by it. 2ly. That those Statesmen, Noblemen, Judges and others, who want either leisure, or patience to read over this whole Tome distinctly, may read the Epitome of it, or any part thereof they desire satisfaction in, in these Tables. 3ly. That Statesmen, Divines, Common, Civil Lawyers, Heraldry, and others who delight in History, may read over what most concerns their several callings, studies, in each distinct Table, if they mind not to peruse the whole; which they could not so easily have done, had I digested all these Indexes into one; not so well understood, had I contracted them into the shortest sort of Indexes, forcing their Readers to turn to every page for every thing they look after, and peruse it ere they can discern the purport thereof; which now they may read in these Indexes, without further trouble, and peruse what they please at large in the Text.
